A RASH ACT.

A Young Husband Shoots Himself and Wife.

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

George Saltmarsh After Shooting His Wife Blows His Own Brains Out—Particulars of the Shooting.

A shocking domestic tragedy was enacted in this city last evening, resulting in the attempted suicide of a young business man and the shooting of his young wife.

George Saltmarsh, aged about 22, who has until recently been engaged in the tinware business as a member of the firm of Hopkins & Saltmarsh, shot his wife with a revolver, and then himself, wounding her but slightly and himself fatally. The causes which led to the tragedy are as follows: The principals in the distressing affair, young Saltmarsh and Miss Lola Riley of Eugene were married a few months ago. For a short time they lived happily together. About two weeks since his wife deserted him, returning to her parents in Eugene. The young husband said the cause of the separation was that some one had come between them and that she had transferred her affections elsewhere. Last Saturday, however, she returned, and they have been living together until yesterday, when he said he was going away, and made all preparations to do so. In the evening he walked down the street with some friends and stopped at the Revere House. He said then that he was going away never to return.

He exhibited a Smith & Wesson self-acting revolver and remarked that he was ready to travel. His friends knowing of his trouble advised him not to do anything rash. He walked on to the residence of his mother on Second street where he met his wife, and they started up the street together. They had gone hardly a block, when he drew the revolver and aiming the weapon at her head fired. The ball entered the left side of the neck ranging upwards and came out of the ear. He then pointed the revolver at his own head and fired again, the ball entering the right temple coming out on top of the head, inflicting a ghastly wound from which his brains slowly oozed. The revolver dropped from his nerveless fingers; for a moment he supported himself against a tree beside the walk and then fell. The young wife screamed wildly and ran down the walk, imploring passers by not to let him kill her.

She was taken into the residence of Mrs. C. O. Lee, near where the shooting occurred, and Dr. M. H. Ellis was summoned. He dressed her wound, and said it would not prove serious. Mrs. James Riley, of Eugene, mother of the young wife, is in the city, and is with her.

Young Saltmarsh was carried into the residence of his mother, Dr. J. P. Wallace and Dr. G. W. Maston were called. An examination of the injury showed that the wound would probably prove fatal. He remained unconscious, and talked in a broken manner about the trouble with his wife. He said he hoped they would die together and be buried in the same grave.

At a late hour last night he was still lying in an unconscious condition with no hope of his recovery. His mother and family are prostrated with grief over the sad occurrence.

About Minister Hirsch. Minister Hirsch, who has induced the sultan of Turkey to imprison Moussa Bey for the recent murders and atrocities committed upon Armenian Christians, was appointed from Portland, Oregon, by President Harrison. He is a Hebrew in religion, and a man of high ability. A few years ago he was a candidate before the Oregon legislature for the United States senate, and came within a few votes of election. His championing of persecuted Christians proves that the United States lost nothing by sending a Hebrew as minister to Turkey.—Spokane Falls Review.

Fatal Accident Near Corvallis. Jerry Legrang, an Italian who rents a farm five miles west of Corvallis, went out in the timber Sunday to cut wood. Failing to return in the evening, search was begun, and he was found dead with a frightful gash in the top of his head from which his brains were protruding. His ax lay beside him, and it is supposed that in chopping it struck an overhanging limb with the above result.

Caught in the Snow. Four timber men started a week ago last Saturday to go to their claims 18 or 20 miles above Brownsville. They came very near perishing in the snow, which was 8 feet deep. Luckily they found a cabin, where they stayed overnight, without any thing to eat. They made it to their camp next morning. They came out again last Sunday. There was still 5 feet of snow when they came out.

The Narrow Gauge Extension. E. O. Eccles, formerly chief engineer of the Oregon Pacific Co., who is now in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company, passed through this city yesterday on his way to the terminus of the Narrow Gauge at Coburg, where he goes for the purpose of making a survey of the proposed extension of that road to Springfield. To a HERALD reporter he said that the entire route would be made standard gauge, and the extension made this season. This will give Albany a connection, via the Lebanon branch of the Southern Pacific, with a wide scope of rich country.

TRAINS AGAIN RUNNING ON TIME.

The Southern Pacific Road Open From Portland to Roseburg.

For the first time since the great flood which nearly overwhelmed this state, trains on the Southern Pacific railroad commenced running regularly again between Portland and Roseburg yesterday.

A big lot of delayed mail was received at this city, and there is still more to follow. Trains have been running for several days between Aurora and Eugene. Beyond the latter point repairs have been made southward, and trains can now go through to Roseburg without difficulty or delay.

The people living up the valley, having been measurably shut out from the world for several weeks, on account of the flood, hailed the opening of the road with delight, as they are once more able to receive mail and intelligence from outside points. The road over Cow Creek canyon, where the greatest damage was done by land slides, is said to be nearly repaired. From that point to the California line the washouts and slides are not of any great consequence, and a few days of good work with an adequate force of men, will put that section of the road in repair. The most serious obstructions are in the Siskiyou and near Mount Shasta, and here the principal delay in reopening railway communication with San Francisco will be encountered. The removal of the storm in the south may prolong the blockade there a few days longer than was expected.

NOTES FROM CROOK COUNTY. Principal Review. Henry Page, who was in from Harney last week, reported a heavy loss of cattle in Harney valley. John Devine, he said, was losing 100 head of cattle a day.

The high water on Crooked river the first of the week carried out the new bridge across the river at the mouth of Newsome creek.

Joe Crooks says the snow drifts still remain level with the fences on Willow Creek, though the snow has gone off the country generally. Willow Creekers will be able to test the glacier method of irrigating from these drifts the coming season.

Sam Newsome sold a lot on the banks of Ochoco on Monday to a man named Bell, and on Tuesday the stream raised and washed it away, leaving Mr. Bell nothing to show for his money but a deed to a portion of Ochoco.

The high water Tuesday washed out the foundation to the bridge across Ochoco in the eastern part of town, but the bridge was secured with ropes and chains and kept from floating down the stream. The piers to the bridge on Main street were also considerably damaged, but teams were put to work hauling rock to refill the piers and the bridge was kept in position.

It is impossible at present to estimate the loss in stock in this county, though it is considerable, and will be a serious drawback to the county. But it will also have a good effect in two ways. It will cause stock owners to make better preparations for wintering their flocks and herds, which will make the business interests of the county more stable; and the snows and rains have so thoroughly soaked the ground that good crops are insured the coming season. This means good grass on the ranges, plenty of feed and a sufficient amount of breadstuff to supply the local market.

Joined the Great Majority. For several weeks Mr. Wm. McCulloch, one of the aged pioneers of Harrisburg precinct, in this county, has been lying very low at his home, near Harrisburg. On Sunday at 10 a. m., the struggle ended and he passed over to join those on the shore beyond the mystic vale that human eyes have never pierced. He was one of the earliest settlers in the valley and has always been one of Linn county's foremost farmers, whose word was as good as a bond, and who numbered as friends and well-wishers all who came within the circle of his acquaintance. He was a charter member of the Harrisburg Masonic lodge, and also of Harrisburg Grange, and was one of the mainstays of both. The funeral will take place to-day at 2 p. m. at the Masonic cemetery, at Muddy, and under direction of the Masonic fraternity.

Free Lectures. Commencing Thursday evening, Professor Harrison will deliver three lectures at the court house upon "Religion and State in the United States," discussing the subject in the light of the history of the past, the present omens, and the relation of civil government to religion as taught in the Bible and incorporated by the founders of our government in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. The Blair religious amendment bill and bills respecting religious observances, now pending in the United States senate and house of representatives, will also be discussed. All are invited to come and hear the lecture on the great religious-political issue of the near future.

Proved Fatal. Last fall Winsel Wisener came from Kansas to his brother who was living on the farm of Hon. R. A. Irvine, near Lebanon, with the hopes that a change of climate might improve his health. He was suffering from a pulmonary disease, but the change did not bring him relief, and last Saturday he died. The remains were brought in and interred here, the funeral taking place from the Catholic church.

STATE DISPATCHES.

The Situation on the Southern Pacific Railroad.

THE LINE SOON TO BE OPEN.

A Passenger Train Derailed on the Oregon & Willamette Valley Railroad—No One Injured.

Special to the Herald.

PORTLAND, Feb. 17.—The Southern Pacific train left Portland this evening on schedule time, destined for Roseburg. This is the first day that the road has been in such a condition as would permit passage of trains, and to say that the public and managers of the road are happy expresses but the rudiments of their real joy. The Southern has not had wire connection with Cow Creek canyon since yesterday, but 150 additional men, with a large supply of material, have been thrown in there, and it is thought that in a very short time San Francisco can be reached. The snow storm in the Sierras fell only to a depth of four inches and will not prove a great obstruction. An accident occurred to a passenger train on the Portland and Willamette Valley railroad yesterday morning, which fortunately resulted in injury to no one, but the escape from death of about twenty people was very narrow. The train pulled out of Jefferson street depot at 1:15 a. m., south bound. All went well until the first trestle beyond Riverview cemetery was reached, when a cow was seen at the north end of the structure. No whistles were blown nor was the bell rung (so the passengers stated) and the animal simply stood still. The engine struck her and jumped the track riding on the ties. The passenger coach left the rails next, and had not the train been instantly stopped, the coach, with all the passengers, would certainly have been thrown about fifty feet down an embankment into the river. Their escape was considered by those who witnessed it as almost miraculous.

Running Short of Supplies. According to the Brownsville Times the people of that place have been cut off from communication so long that the supplies of the town are running short. It says: We are sorry to have to chronicle the fact, that if supplies do not get through soon, we fear our Woolen mills will have to shut down. The company sent east long ago for dye stuffs, but they got blockaded in the snow east of the mountains, and there is no telling now when they will arrive, and owing to the washouts near home, none can be got from below, nor borrowed from any of the mills. The supply of flour gave out on the 5th inst. on the south side, and a wagon load was taken down to the narrow gauge road, the lumber car of Mr. Moyer was borrowed, and placed upon the track and a load of the staff of life was pushed across the river by many willing hands, and reached its destination safely. The R. R. bridge is our only way of communication now with the south side.

Death of Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Sarah Jane Thompson died at her home in Astoria, Oregon, Wednesday morning, January 29, 1890, aged 43 years, 1 month and 21 days. Mrs. Thompson was born in Pittsburg, Pa., December 3, 1846. She moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCormack, to Linn county, Oregon, in 1853, where she was married to Mr. H. L. Thompson, December 28, 1864. She moved to Astoria with her husband in November, 1886. Mrs. Thompson was the mother of 10 children, 7 of whom are living at a residence of Douglas county, Washington, and two of her children have preceded her to the realms beyond.

Mrs. Thompson had been ill but a few days, but all hopes of her recovery had been given up. She was a loving mother and wife and was respected by all who knew her. She joined the M. E. church when quite young and was a member of this church at Springfield, Oregon, at the time of her death. The funeral services were conducted at the M. E. church Wednesday afternoon, from where the remains were followed by a long concourse of friends to the Astoria cemetery where they were laid to rest.

Special. A big slide occurred to-day on the corner of Second and Elsworth streets. There were four wagons on the corner when a gentleman from the east came along and was paralyzed with astonishment at the immense quantity of groceries sliding out of the Willamette Packing Co.'s store. It shows what good goods and low prices does.

Fatally Killed by a Horse. Last Wednesday at Brownsville, a horse kicked Mr. Chas. Bant's little son in the forehead over the eye, inflicting a wound that penetrated to the brain. Drs. Osburn and Henry dressed the wound. The child is in a very critical condition and but little hopes for his recovery are entertained.
