STATE DISPATCHES.

The Columbia Frozen Over - A Love-Sick Youth's Suicide.

PORTLAND, Feb. 26.—The Columbia river is again frozen over. At The Dalles the ice stretches from side to side an inch thick and is growing heavier every hour.

At 7 o'clock this morning a large range in the kitchen of Mrs. B. Bauris' boarding house on Fifth and Stark streets exploded, creating a noise similar to the discharge of a hundred pound gun.

HE TOOK STRYCHNINE.

FRANK GROVE, Or., Feb. 26.—Frank Dunn, a young man of this place, who expected to be married to Miss Ida Griffin one week from yesterday, was informed Monday night by his affianced that he could consider the match broken off, as she would not marry him.

AN EXPLANATION.

SWEET HOME, Feb. 26. To the Editor of the Herald: I see in to-day's issue of the Herald an account of the death of Miss Lily Osborn, of this place, and I would raise my voice to crush down the base slander and calumny thrown on her young life.

I was not personally acquainted with either her or any of her family, but let me give you a few facts and you can draw your own conclusions. Lily was working here during the time my late husband Dr. J. C. Gilbert visited and lectured at this place last September and came to consult him. I have studied medicine for several years with my husband, and consequently knew about most of his patients, and on coming here to live he told me of this case, and the facts are simply these: The period which usually occurs at the age of 13 or 14 years had never taken place with her, and she had been in poor health for several years as a result of this.

On his arrival here with the sad news, Lily sat up in a deep study for some time, finally she looked up at her father and mother and said: "There my saviour has gone, it is no use trying any more, he was the only one who could help me." She had shown very decided signs of mental disturbance for a month previous to this at intervals, but from this time she was quite despondent, and I have not the least doubt that the shock was too much for her weak state, and that it preyed upon her mind.

Her parents are poor, but they watched over her as well as possible and did all they could for her, but in the flooded state of the country they were practically shut off from much intercourse with their neighbors. I wish these facts published because I feel so deeply for her poor mother. Is it not enough for her bruised and bleeding heart to bear to have to lay away her daughter under such sad circumstances as I have related without some monster, say rather fiend in human form, trying to rob the dead girl of the price-less treasure—her chastity? The whole community here were deeply grieved and shocked at her sad end, and her girl companions feel as if a star had been cast upon all since reading the article in your paper.

It is true that she left a note, but it contained only this: "I am going up the creek to drown myself. It is no use trying to live any longer without God." Not even her signature to it.

As far as her knowing the suicide spoken of is concerned I know nothing of that. It is none of my business, but I do know that it is against all the laws of nature for there to be a particle of truth in the cause of death assigned in your article.

A Good Investment.

LETTER FROM ASTORIA.

The People Down by the Sea Have Their Eye on Albany Instead of Pasco.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

ASTORIA, Feb. 25. The steamship Santa Rosa came into port all right, notwithstanding the blowing of the breeze that whistled around Astoria cables and shook to their foundations many of the ancient wooden structures that ought to give place to something more substantial, and during the night the rain, too, seemed to come down in quantities to remind us that the rainy season still reigns and lingers not, even in the lap of spring, but comes in such abundance as would if it hit our half-frozen, dried-up brethren east of the mountains. The fact is the world is all awry, we are too wet, while others are too dry.

The contractor of the cable road is here, the $100,000 demanded is guaranteed and the work of construction will begin as soon as the details of the business have been adjusted.

The A. & S. C. Railway Co. are energetically engaged in waiting for something to turn up, while reports are rife that great activity along the whole line will be the order of the day just as soon as they get a good rainy.

Just now we have our eye, not on Pasco but Albany, and are anxiously looking for the engineer corps that will locate the terminus of the Albany & Astoria railway on deep water. We have an idea that the Albany company means business and will push the work when once inaugurated, and we want to see the road built, because it will undoubtedly be the popular route. It will pass through a country new and fertile; it will skirt the sea shore in its most romantic and pleasing situations. Towns and villages will spring up along the line as if by magic.

Citizens of Albany have long been interested in Astoria's welfare; they have invested their money and waited long for its enhancement in value, but they need wait but a little longer to realize from their few hundred—maybe as many thousands, and from their thousands some will doubtless count their millions. And while the flood tide of prosperity is surely coming with crested wave and firm advance no man will fail of success that takes advantage of his opportunities.

The new custom collector will soon take charge of the office. He retains one of the old democratic inspectors and appoints another man, whose claim to recognition is very questionable with good republicans, in fact I think the new collector himself is wonderfully surprised at his own appointment, and well he may be, for his political influence could scarcely retain a favored or visit an enemy to his party. We are beginning to think here that the department never changes its politics and is opposed to rotation in office.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

At the home of Mr. J. B. Morgan, of Tangent, Oregon, Rev. H. Gould joined in marriage on the 23rd day of February, 1890, Mr. W. A. Williamson and Miss Malinda C. Morgan; also Mr. John Canavan and Miss Florence E. Ownbey, all of Linn county, Oregon.

A Rumor.

It is reported on what seems to be good authority that the syndicate, composed of Oregon capitalists and wealthy New York firms, who invested heavily in this city last fall, have agreed to give sufficient land to the Quincy Stone Works of Quincy, Ill., to start an extensive factory here, and that the same has been accepted, and will be a part of the improvements of this city in the near future. Also that water power has been offered to a Michigan company to start extensive mills and factories in Albany.

For fine perfume, toilet articles and soaps go to Hubbard's drug store.

Sparring Match.

A sparring match for points took place in this city last night between a couple of admirers of the manly art. A number of sportsmen were present besides the referee, time-keeper and seconds. The affair was kept quiet, and the names of the participants were not made public as it is said the police got wind of it and are on their track. The fight is said to have been a spirited one and lasted six rounds, in which several knock-blows were struck. Both participants were groggy at the close, and showed severe punishment. If no arrests are made by the police the mill will probably be fought over in about three weeks.

The Channel Changing.

Steamboat captains who have attempted to navigate the upper river since the big flood report the discovery of many changes in the channel and say that it is now a difficult task to go to Harrisburg. Between Corvallis and Harrisburg the changes have been numerous and it is thought at a common stage boats can do nothing between those two points before the government does some revetment and other work there. All along the river the channel has been subjected to change.

From Crook County.

The Oshio Review says: Walter Brown, of the tenth foot of John Day, passed through town Thursday en route to Willamette valley. Mr. Brown said the snow had all gone in the John Day country, but the loss of stock on his range had been heavy. John Hyde, he said, had already lost over 100 head of cattle. There had also been considerable loss of horses, though Mr. Brown thought the horses had died more from disease than from want of feed.

He is well known to the people of Albany and the entire State, having had years of experience in this business, also in a piano forte manufacturer, and has no equal in that line of business. It always pays to patronize home enterprise and the public should remember that they can now get pianos tuned in a more skillful manner in Albany than elsewhere in the State.
