THE INDIAN POLICY. The policy of the government toward the Indian has always been open to the gravest criticism, and it is a matter of congratulation that better council is beginning to prevail and that a different policy based upon the performance of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship, is inaugurated by the movement to give them land in severalty and break up the reservation business.

more faithful officer to care for. It is also akin to the practice of European authorities in skipping their pauper class of people to this country, thus shirking the responsibility of their keeping upon us. It is however a practice that is remarkably prevalent in all sections of every country on the globe, and takes its inception from the inordinate selfishness of humanity.

THIRTY-SEVEN bodies have been recovered and buried out of the seventy persons that were lost in Walnut Grove, Arizona, storage dam bursting disaster. From a pile of lumber on a high bluff, which the water did not reach, coffins were made and floated down the stream to where the bodies were found, and they were buried where found; some of them 30 miles from the starting point.

The question of the equality of the sexes is constantly augmenting its forces and growing in importance and strength. Recently in Copenhagen a school, dealing with social and political matters, where contemporaneous history, constitutional law, ethics and psychology are taught, has been opened for women. In all parts of the world the question is pressing itself upon the minds of the people and producing radical changes.

The little son of Robert Lincoln, Minister to Great Britain, who bears the name of his illustrious grandsire, and who has been hopelessly ill in London is now reported better with hopes of his recovery. The whole country will wish for his recovery to perpetuate the honored and revered name.

It is estimated that the mileage of new railroad building during 1890 will exceed any previous year, and this is taken as an indication of prosperity.

STANLEY is expected in London about the 15th of April.

One of the peculiar conceptions of justice that gets entangled in official brains was recently exemplified in Western New York. A young man convicted of an attempt to shoot a young woman, had his sentence suspended upon the condition that he left the state. This is curious law. It operates on the same principle as does the policeman who makes the drunken man "move on" off his beat, leaving the case for some
