EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Farmers Institute in Independence this week proved a successful meeting. The people of Albany, and Linn county should see to it that the session of the institute to be held here next week, on the 27 and 28 is successful and useful.

IN the case of Dan Burke, the drunken messenger, whose whisky imbibing caused him to be instrumental in the loss of so many lives at the Walnut Grove dam bursting disaster, he being released from custody because it was said that there was no law to reach his case, would seem to be one in which assuming of a special law for the occasion was called for. If any man was ever guilty of a grave crime, most certainly he was.

THE Ladies Aid Society of this city propose to erect an orphans home and a public hospital, if sufficient encouragement is given them. About $1000 has been subscribed, and the land for the buildings will no doubt be donated. A combined hospital and home for orphans such as the society propose to build would be a valuable institution, and would ultimately receive endowments, resulting in the widening of its benefits and an increase in its buildings.

IT is no wonder that the whole civilized world is agitated over such proceedings as the treatment of Russian prisoners, the severity of which is too shocking for common publication. The government of Russia may be hampered by Nihilists and Anarchists, and reforms may, from the nature of the case, move slowly; but a government whose system is so complicated, and is so slow in getting at and correcting abuses in its prison discipline as the government of Russia has shown itself to be, has every inducement to inaugurate speedy reforms; and the sooner it gets about them the better for the world at large, and certainly the better for its own stability.

THE Alaska Commercial Company loses its valuable exclusive privilege of taking fur seals upon the islands of St. Paul and St. George because of the competition excited by its large profits. The North American Commercial Company, of New York, which is to have the lease, is to pay more than three times as much per annum as was paid by the Alaska Company. On the basis of 100,000 seals per annum the government will receive about $1,000,000 per annum, as against $300,000 required under the lease. The exclusive privilege is to run for twenty years. The purchase of Alaska was a pretty good business speculation, as these figures show. The United States paid only $7,200,000 for the country, and it has immense undeveloped resources besides these seal fisheries.

IN its editorial reference to the establishment of a trans-Pacific steamship line by the Union Pacific, the Oregonian points out what it deems the necessity of deepening the river channel between here and Portland to permit the passage of these vessels. This is an expense which may be termed unnecessary, and it will be endless. The Union Pacific management will soon see that a railroad to Astoria is an absolute necessity and it will be built. The bar must be thrown wide open at any cost. It is now one of the safest entrances on any coast, but the projected improvements will make it still better. Let these be finished and then let the ocean vessels stop at Astoria. The expense of keeping the Columbia and Willamette open for light draught boats will be nominal and appropriations can easily be secured, but to attempt more is to attempt wasting the money of the people.—Columbian.

PERHAPS it is not exactly generous, to prognosticate as to the underlying cause of Senator Stanford's recent conversion to the wonderful money loaning and saving's banks schemes; but viewing all of the conditions and circumstances it cannot but be deemed a natural sequence. His advocacy of the scheme that is so at varience with all his practices, and life long work, certainly gives grounds for suspicion. The Chronicle thinks that it is a little singular, to say the least, that this philanthropic proposition is contemporaneous with the movement to reduce the interest on the Central Pacific debt from 6 per cent to 2 or 1½ per cent per annum. Can it be that the president of the company wants to set a new standard of interest with a view to sealing the interest on the railroad debt? It is obvious that if the government would accept 1 or 1½ per cent a year as interest on farm mortgages it could hardly refuse to accept 2 per cent on a railroad mortgage.

Senator Stanford's plan is utterly nonsensical under the present condition of things. Should the Bellamy doctrines prevail, even in a modified form, and the government become the owner of railroads and telegraph lines and the like, it would then be time enough to talk about making farms the basis of a circulating medium; but as things now are people will be very likely to see in Senator Stanford's plan only an attempt to obtain a reduction in the rate of interest on the Central Pacific debt.
