THE AGE OF SPECULATION PASSED.

To the thinking, philanthropic, man it cannot be otherwise than a matter of satisfaction, to learn that the practice of making money by speculating in the food supplies of the people, that is the accumulation of fortunes by creating fictitious values either above or below normal prices, and by manipulation without actual handling—really buying and selling on future holdings—accumulating gains with rendering any returns, has passed its day and probably will not bear its influence in future operations.

Not only are the prospects better in that direction, but also in the general speculative field, wherein a few manipulators have been enabled to control an enormous proportion of the wealth of the world, the era of a change is quite apparent, and a change to that is for the better, for speculation was never the handmaid of thrift or progress. It is said that not since 1879 and 1878 has there been as little speculation in the great staples as to-day, although in this country there is one-fifth more grain produced, one-sixth more cotton, twice as much iron, twice as much copper, and one-fourth more coal than then, while the railroad stocks and bonds dealt in on the Stock Exchange have doubled, and vast sums of other securities have been added to the total available for speculation. The decadence of speculation is as great elsewhere as here. The stagnation of the stock exchange is the subject of an article in the London Economist a month ago, and it points out that dropping the bank rate from 6 to 4 per cent. and adding 80 per cent. to the reserve have done nothing to quicken speculation. The clearings on the "settling days" in February, 1887, were £111,174,000; in 1888, £120,845,000, and in 1889, only £100,987,000. "As the ordinary bankers' clearings on account of the trade bills and checks of the countay have not declined," says the Economist "it is the more evident that this contraction has been due entirely to the Stock Exchange. Of this there is no doubt whatever. The same depression exists in Paris, Berlin, and Vienna. Nothing is doing at either of these places in speculation. Two leading French financial writers, M. M. Jacques Siegfried and George Levy, have just published a book on the ebb of business in the Paris Bourse. The work has led to a wide discussion. In it they declare that the fall in the Credit Mobilier, the losses of the Comptoir d Escompte in the copper syndicate, and the collapse of the Panama Canal have left the great French financiers afraid to venture on any new enterprises or maintain the position of France in the speculative traffic of the world. Berlin is no better off, and no one knows when the era of speculative expansion there will reach its end. No one has any adequate reason to suggest for this collapse. The two most often presented are the large number of securities launched in 1889 and the extent to which the market has been manipulated by corners and trusts. The former is the favorite explanation in Great Britain. In this country charges depression to manipulation. In France it is laid to the enormous losses in the Panama Canal and other enterprises. In Berlin, Vienna, and Rome, depression succeeds overtrading and vast realty speculation. The depression exists, whatever the reason, and it is to-day the one great fact which separates present conditions from the past. The current of mercantile business in all these countries as as great as ever.

The bone of contention that formed the basis for the democratic success in the usually republican city of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was what is known as the Bennett complusory education law, a measure purely in the interests of the public schools and opposition to which is opposition to public school education in this country. Even the democratic workers realize this fact and the wiser among them repudiate the fruits of the victory, as witness the words of the Chicago Herald, a democratic paper: "Democracy in this country owes much to the public schools. Free schools and manhood suffrage are the poor man's fortresses. He can be robbed of neither unless he shall foolishly yield to the blandishments of his enemies. He would amount to little without them. The rich man can educate himself and his children as he pleases. His money gives him power with or without the ballot. Not so with the man of limited means. The fathers gave him a vote for his defense and they gave him the free schools for the training of his children. Both of these institutions are the essence of American democracy, and the day when they shall be surrendered will be an evil one for the Republic. So far as the Bennett law is concerned, its real enemies are chiefly the enemies of the public schools. It may have many thoughtless opponents at this time, but they are temporarily under bad influences; they are misinformed as to its nature and cope, and they will presently see their error. To permit the democratic party in any state to be used, even for one campaign, as an instrument with which to strike a blow of any sort at our school system would be a folly that could not be atoned for in years. Let the democrats of Wisconsin ponder well their decision in this matter. There are some victories that are more costly and more disgraceful than efeats."

THE attempt of certain Eastern papers, notably the New York Times, to assert that Secretary Blain had nothing to claim diplomatically in the Union of the Central American states is as unfair as it is untruthful, for Mr. Blaine as early as 1881 suggested that every union to the states in question. Mr. Blaine's influence and statesmanship have also been apparent in the deliberations and successful issue of the Pan-American conference.

Have you heard what Mr. G. L. Weast, of Cambridge City, Ind., says of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy? I took one dose, as per directions, and it gave me almost instant relief. I cheerfully recommend it to the afflicted." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Foshay & Mason.

Mr. F. J. Smith, Editor of the Ft Abercrombie, Dakota, Herald, says: "The most wonderful medicine, I have ever met with, is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Put in alkali water, it imparts a pleasant taste and prevents the painful diarrhœa, which alkali water produces. Take Simmons Liver Regulator One Dose

WORTH

100 Dollars!

DEAR S. L. R.: I consider one dose of Simmons Liver Regulator worth $100. I was constipated, had Headache, could eat nothing with satisfaction or appetite; had the blues, and felt altogether out of sorts. I resorted to Blue Mass, Calomel, Quinine, and every remedy suggested, but only obtained temporary relief. One dose of S. L. R did me more good than $100 worth of doctors and doctoring. Resp'y, J C MARTIN.

I have been a teacher for twenty years, and during that time have had repeated attacks of headache, produced by torpid Liver, and have been entirely cured by Simmons Liver Regulator. I found it to be of so mild a character in its action, as not to interfere, in the least with my duties in the school room, to those similarly situated and subject to the same, I cannot too highly recommend Simmons Liver Regulator.
