SUBSIDIES FOR A STEAMSHIP LINE

That our country is vastly behind the other nations, in the matter of the merchant marine service upon the high seas, is a fact acknowledged by all, and forms a subject for statesmanship to employ its most active work to correct and permanently cure the existing apathy.

Senator Frye has introduced a bill to subsidize steamship lines and by this means revive our merchant marine by the same means that the European governments have gained control in that direction, but now comes the captious oppositions.

"The Boston Post" admits that the British Government is heavily subsidizing steamship lines on the Pacific Ocean, but feebly contends that the subsidies "have been given for colonial purposes, precisely as the United States has subsidized Western railways when objects of importance to the Government depended on some trustworthy means of communication."

MR. WEATHERFORD SHOULD EXPLAIN.

Governor Penoyer in his speech at Hillsboro attempted to explain why he came to sign the Dill and Baker City laws, both of which exempt bonds from taxation. He said he did not read them; that they were brought to him by the representatives from those counties; that notwithstanding he had vetoed the Portland bill, and these gentlemen knew he was opposed to non-taxed bonds, they assumed him that those bills contained nothing unusual or objectional; that through this little piece of deception he was "hoodwinked" into signing them.

As Mr. Weatherford of Linn county was one who voted for the Dill and Baker City bills, he ought to answer Penoyer's charge of "ignorance or perjury."

A question for the grain bag men to solve can be stated in this manner: The McKinley bill places the raw material, jute, on the free list. If a manufactory of sacks would start in Albany to make the 300,000 sacks used in Linn county, the duty on these sacks, $11,000, could be saved for the county and put up as the assured profit to be shared by the owners of the factory and the farmers who would get cheaper sacks by the competition of the home manufactory.

The passage of the McKinley bill, leaving all political consideration out of the question, will open up the chance for a paying manufacturing business right here in Albany. Look it up you that want to encourage home industry.
