The Ashland Valley Record says that Chief Engineer Hood and party, who have been surveying in Cow creek canyon for a month or so, have established a new route. This was made necessary by last winter's slides, and it is said to be a better road than the original.

It is a book press and fills a vacancy between the large and small press which he now has for book work. The new press is of the Cottrell make, the others being both Hoes. ONE BODY FOUND.

The Two Boys, Victims of Friday's Drowning, Still in the Treacherous Waters.

The fate of Roscoe Goss and the two boys, Allen Matthews and Tay McFarland, who went boat riding on the Calapooia Friday evening, was only too plainly discovered yesterday. Nearly all night and all day yesterday the searchers, aided by divers and men with grappling hooks, dragged the river above and below the falls.

Shortly after 6 o'clock two boys found the body of Mr. Goss below the falls where it had been carried into an eddy over half way toward the opposite bank. He was badly disfigured and hardly recognizable. The body was taken to the home of his bereaved wife. It happened that his mother was here on a visit when the accident occurred. Mr. Goss was about 35 years of age and was an industrious and respected citizen, being assistant electrician at the electric light works.

The manner in which the accident occurred can only be conjectured. The party were seen in the evening a short distance above the falls where the water is discharged from the Vine street branch of the canal. They were in the act of gathering some ferns and it is reasonable to believe that in so doing the boat was allowed to drift under the waterfall, capsizing it.

The boat has been in a leaky condition, but had been repaired and was thought to be safe.

The search was continued until late last night, but the bodies of the unfortunate boys were not recovered.

THE BOYS IN BLUE.

The Anniversary of F Company's Organization Celebrated Last Evening.

Last evening completed the third year of the organization of F Co. of the Oregon National Guard, at which time the period of enlistment of several members expired.

The company was formally inspected at the armory by Capt. M. H. Ellis in the presence of a number of visitors, many of whom were ladies.

The formal mustering out of the members, whose terms has expired, was postponed until Tuesday evening, as was also the election of officers.

The company and their guests at the conclusion of the inspection proceeded to the Delmonico restaurant, where a banquet was served.

Capt. M. H. Ellis, of the regimental staff, on behalf of the company presented Captain O. H. Irvine with a beautiful diamond locket, making a neat presentation speech. Capt. Irvine was taken completely by surprise, but made a brief speech in reply. Short speeches were then made by different members of the company, after which they again repaired to the armory, when a social dance was given.

F Co. has been an ornament and credit to the city during its three years of existence, and by all means should be perpetuated. There is no doubt but that enough members will reenlist and new ones join to maintain a vigorous company.

Killed at Brownsville.

Meagre information was received in this city last night of the accidental death of Herbert Stanard at Brownsville yesterday. A dispatch was received by his brother, George Stanard, stating that he was hurt and died at noon. How it occurred was not stated. His brother left last night for Brownsville. The deceased was the youngest son of A. W. Stanard, a well known citizen of that place.

Died on the Road.

The Salem Journal says: Geo. G. Bingham, of this city, district attorney elect, was awakened at 2 o'clock this morning by a messenger from McMinnville, who brought the sad intelligence that Mr. B's father, W. H. Bingham, had died the previous evening on the road between his home at McMinnville and the coast, to which he was going for a summer visit. Mr. B. accompanied the messenger immediately to his old home now in mourning. The deceased came to Yamhill county from Wisconsin in 1872 and has ever since held a high place in the esteem of all who came in contact with him. He was in the lumber trade some years at McMinnville, and later up to a short time ago in the furniture and undertaking business. He was a good man and citizen in all respects; was a prominent Freemason and one of the foremost in all public enterprises. He was about 60 years old.

Mining Operations at Wagner Creek

J. J. Owen, editor of the S. F. Golden Gate, and Hon. Wm. H. Jordan, speaker of the California legislative assembly came out to their mining property at Wagner creek Monday. They belong to the Empire Milling and Mining Co. incorporated at San Francisco, who have a force of men at work on the Trombley quartz lead and will find out what there is in it. These gentlemen returned home yesterday so well pleased with their visit that they have increased the number of crews at work and ordered the commencement of another tunnel lower down in the mountains in order to fully test the claim. Should the quartz come up to their expectations, they will put in improved quartz milling machinery. "Mining is a gamble," remarked Mr. Jordan, "and we are willing to take our chances on what we have. We will either take out considerable money or sink it in the mountain."—Ashland Valley Record.

We have our new spring stock of kid gloves, and the best value ever shown in Albany at W. F. Read's.

BUSINESS AND TRADE.

Real Estate Transfers Continue Active and Business is Brisk.

Albany has made some long strides forward during the last year, and this season some finer buildings than ever are going up.

Real estate business is brisk and healthy. Values have gradually risen in the market from abnormal to normal values. Speculation values have not taken shape, nor is it the desire of Albany that inflation of values should give spasmodic and unhealthy vigor at the risk of a relapse and the consequent stagnation of business.

In business the advance is even beyond a [illegible] retail trade. The flouring mills are supplying a demand from the Sound, San Francisco and elsewhere. The [illegible] works are shipping the products to all parts of the State and into Washington Territory. The furniture manufactures, of which there are several, are sending their output abroad in considerable [illegible]. The [illegible] in [illegible] dress of the men [illegible] the demand coming from all parts of the State and adjoining Territories.

Several of the business houses have a large wholesale trade and this is bound [illegible] when the Eastern railroad connections are completed there [illegible] no reason why [illegible] should not [illegible] land or San Francisco. With these distributive advantages wholesale houses must spring up and branch wholesale enterprises take shape at this city.

Accidentally Shot.

Eugene Guard.

A case of accidental shooting occurred one-half mile north of Elmira Wednesday afternoon between two and three o'clock that may result fatally. James E. Richardson and son, a lad of about twelve years of age, took their guns and went out on a deer stand to wait for the dogs to run a deer by. The boy left his father and went off some distance after a squirrel. Returning he thought he saw a deer running through the stand and while endeavoring to shoot the deer, the gun, a single barrel shot gun, loaded with BB shot, was discharged, accidentally wounding his father. A couple of shot lodged in his left hand, one in his left forearm, several in his left leg below the knee, and one in the left breast just above the heart. The boy immediately secured help and he was conveyed to his home. He suffered intense pain from the shot in his breast. Dr. N. L. Lee, of Junction, was called and afforded all possible relief. A probe was used as far as deemed expedient but the shot could not be recovered. The wound in the breast is the dangerous one, and it is a question whether or not it will prove fatal. No particular blame can be attached to the boy. A report Thursday evening says that Mr. Richardson was resting easy, but in a critical condition.

ALBANY'S POPULATION.

Various Estimates Made by Leading Citizens—The Census Taker's Work.

In view of the loose manner in which the census is being taken all over the country it will be of interest to note the opinion of conservative business ~~men~~ on the population of Albany. There is no doubt but that many have been missed by the enumerators in this city, and Albany will not be fairly represented unless those who have not been counted make themselves known by sending in their names to the enumerators at once, and assist in finishing up the work.

A representative of the San Francisco Examiner was in the city a short time ago and obtained from leading business men their opinion as to the population of Albany, which is given as follows:

Mayor J. L. Cowan of the Linn County Bank and President of the Albany and Astoria Road, said Albany had the best prospects of any valley city with a present population of 5,000. It is bound to become a city of 20,000 within a few years.

S. E. Young, a leading merchant, said 4,500 at least.

Jay W. Blain, cashier of the Oregon Bank—Over 5,000. I look for a city of 10,000 population within two years.

T. L. Wallace—Over 4,000. Certainly Albany will become the metropolis of the Willamette valley, and with its seven railroads will become known in the future.

L. E. Blain, a successful clothing merchant, spoke of Albany as a business center of remarkable promise, already receiving a large trade from a wide radius. His estimate is 5,000.

Judge Flinn, President of the First National Bank—4,800. The city needs more industries to furnish employment for those coming continually into our midst. While the city has a steady growth, more factories are needed.

Captain E. J. Lanning of the Red Crown Mills, a leading mover in the Astoria Railroad, gave 5,000 as his estimate of the population.

The estimates given above are conservative and are not beyond the actual population of the city, but it is doubtful if the census men come within 1000 of the real number of people.

The trouble is the government has been paying too much attention to propounding trivial questions and too little to the main work of securing the actual population of the country. It would be well to have a general recount, as is being made in Portland.

The Fast Trains

All of the section foremen on the main line of the Southern Pacific are in receipt of orders to erect mail catchers at the stations on their sections. This is one more move preparatory to the quickening of the running time of the overland mail trains, which will hereafter be provided with mail grabbing hooks, the same as the fast trains East and overland. After June 30, the overland will not stop at the smaller stations, and will catch the mail by means of the catching apparatus.

A Linn County Pioneer.

The editor of the Stayton Sun met John Crabtree in the mountains. He is ninety years old, and he had been mowing grass with a scythe; last year he made quite a number of rails. Among other things he told that he moved from Virginia to Jackson county, Mo., in 1833, and moved to Oregon in 1845, and that on July 11, 1846, he settled on the land where he met him. Himself and family were among the first settlers in Linn county.
