EDITORIAL NOTES.

SENATOR MITCHELL has received an increase of service on the mail route between Salem and Argento, from three to six times per week.

GENERAL Clarkson, assistant postmaster general, it is said still persists in his intention to resign, and has so informed President Harrison.

THE waste of time in the lower house of congress in calling the roll and voting, is to be obviated by the use of some patent device to facilitate the voting with more rapidity. It is evident to any one who has witnessed a roll call and vote in any legislative body, that too much time is taken up, especially in as large a body as the house of representatives. Some device by which members could touch an electric button and simultaneously register their votes in plain sight of all ought to prove practicable. It would be an enormous saving of time and money every year.

THE death of Logue the Indian Territory outlaw, who was a desperado of the most pronounced type, but was finally brought down with a bullet through his breast from the pistol of a deputy marshal, was finished up in true romantic and dramatic style. It is said that he rose as the officer approached his apparently lifeless body, and remarked as he drew a bead on the marshal with his pistol: "I'll learn you to be a more careful how you approach a gentleman to shake hands." When he had put a bullet through the marshal's arm he fell back dead. In the hands of an able romancer here's the plot of a thrilling short story of border life, with a climax which has the true western flavor.

No more greedy money loaning people can be found than the English, nor no more enterprising people to scent out and appropriate new fields for investments of gold. They occupy every section of the globe in which capital can be availably located. It is said to shore up their investments in South America that the English creditors have come to the rescue of the Argentine government. By the negotiation of a large temporary loan the treasury is relieved from its embarrassments and delivered from the fear of approaching insolvency. With the financial troubles averted for a season, the political crisis is at an end. The hondholders had reached a point where an extension of credit was absolutely needed in order to secure the immense interests which they have at stake in the Argentine.

THE results of the advance in the silver bullion market has beed a surprise, not only to the advocates of silver but to its opponents an overwhelming astonishment. Even those that favored the silver bill expected an advance in the price of bullion and that there would be an inflow ffom the English houses to this country, but it was not expected that the passage of the silver bill in our congress would cause silver to vance in the English market to such an extent as to invite shipments of bullion from this country to England. Yet that is the fact of the case and the result is assuredly going to establish the truth of the claim that free coinage will be of benefit to the whole country.

THERE has been some loose talk about depriving Nevada of Statehood on account of its poor showing in population. Some people seem to think that congress can reduce it to the ranks—that is, to the territories—but it can not. The constitution provides a way for getting into the Union, but no way for getting out. There is a regular form of procedure for the admission of States, but when a state is once admitted it is there for better or for worse. It is unfortunate that Nevada hasn't turned out better. The State has a population of less than 50,000. The census will probably show less population now than in 1880. At the last election, after an exciting campaign, there were only 12,000 votes. And yet Nevada with 45,000 people, has two United States Senators just as many as Iowa or New York! Very true, but it is too late to change the arrangement now. The State is in the Union, and it is there to stay. The only hope is that it may improve its condition, and make a better showing in the future. Senator Stewart holds out some encouragement. He says that Nevada is now in a transition state from a mining to an agricultural community. He believes that if given a fair chance the state will greatly increase in population and compare favorably with the other states. Let us hope that his prediction will come true. It would be a very strange condition of things if Nevada should always remain what it is now—a state, yet without one-third of the population necessary under the present apportionment to entitle it to a single congressman.
