For coughs it acts like a charm, and can be inhaled into the pipes or passages, where no other cough cures can reach

BERNARD LEVY.

KEMMLER IS DEAD.

But the Electrical Execution was a Horrible Failure.

A SECOND SHOCK REQUIRED.

Strong Men Turned Fainting from the Sickening Stench of Burning Flesh and Kemmler's Groans.

AUBURN, N. Y., August 6.—The trial of a new means of taking human life, while promoted by humane motives, has resulted in the sickening spectacle presented by a pinioned wretch at whose vital centre was kept pounding for several moments an alternating current of electricity, which thoughtlessly destroyed his life, subjected the criminal to a torture of which no living being has knowledge and none can describe. The imperfect registry of the current's pressure or faulty contact of the electrodes prevented instantaneous death. The layman may gain some conception of the killing by the statement that a person whose body should be shaken into fragments could not have suffered such pain as did Kemmler, whose nerve cells and tissues were disintegrated, not in a flash, as designated, but by the relatively slow strokes of the electric hammer upon them. Only a deliberate pen can adequately describe the scene.

Dr Fell stepped forward with a long syringe in his hand and deftly wetted two sponges which were at the electrodes, one on top of the head and the other at the base of the spine. The water which he put on them was impregnated with salt. Dr. Spitzka answered the warden's question with a shout "all right," which was echoed by the others about him.

Kemmler was killed at 6:30. The first shock was not successful. He revived, and there were frequent respirations, though the doctors claim there was no consciousness. After some delay the current was turned on again and kept on for four and one-half minutes, the first contact having been 12 seconds. The current was kept on the second time until the body fumed and gave off unpleasant odors. Dr. Spitzka, the celebrated expert, said afterward that the experiment was a failure, and this would settle electrocution. "There will never be another," said he.

Kemmler's nerve was something wonderful. He never faltered. He directed the adjustment of himself in the chair and counselled the warden to moderation to secure perfect safety. The shock was given at 6:43½ and was continued about 18 seconds. Two minutes after the current was cut off there was evidence of respiration

"Turn the current on instantly The man is not dead," cried Spitzka.

Faces grew white and forms fell back from the chair. The warden sprang to the doorway and cried, "turn on the current," but the current could not be turned on. When the signal to stop had come the operator had pressed the little button which gave the sign to the engineer to stop the dynamo. The dynamo was almost at a standstill and the volt meter registered an almost imperceptible current. Operators sprang to the button and gave a sharp, quick signal. There was a rapid response, but it was not quick enough to anticipate the signs of reviving consciousness as the group of horror stricken witnesses stood helplessly by, all eyes fixed on the chair.

From Kemmler's lips began to drip spittle and in a moment more the chest moved and from the mouth came a heavy, stentorious sound, quickening and increasing with every respiration. There was no voice but that of the warden crying to the operator to turn on the current. The wheezing sound, a half groan which forced itself past the lightly-closed lips, sounded through the still chamber with ghastly distinctness. Some of the witnesses turned away from the sight and one fainted.

It seemed a long time reaching a climax—in reality there were but seventy-three seconds in the interval which elapsed between the moment when the first sound issued from Kemmler's lips, until the response to the signal came from the dynamo room. It came with the same suddenness that marked the first shock which passed through Kemmler's body.

The sound which had horrified the listeners about the chair was cut off sharply as the body once more became rigid. A slimy ooze still dropped from the mouth slowly down the beard onto the gray vest.

Twice were there twichings of the body as the electricians in the next room threw the current on and off. There was to be no mistake this time about the killing. The dynamo was run up to the highest speed and again the full current of 2000 volts was sent through the body.

How long this was kept in action no one knows. To the excited group about the chair it seemed an interminable time. Dr. Daniel, who looked at the watch excitedly, and who thought he had an appropriate idea of the time, at least, said it was four and a half minutes in all. The warden's assistant, who stood over the dynamo, said that on the second signal the machinery ran only three and a half minutes altogether.

No doubt this time the current had done its work, if not well, at least completely. Dr. Fell, who stood at the side of a special correspondent of the Associated Press, turned and said: "Well, there is no doubt about one thing. The man never suffered an iota of pain." In an after consultation, other physicians expressed the same belief. It was some mitigation of the horrors of the situation to believe this, but the mitigation was extremely slight.

The autopsy began at 9 o'clock. It was found when the body was spread out on the table, that very severe rigor mortis had set in. There was little relaxation and it was with difficulty the corpse was straightened out. On examination it was found the second electrode had burned through the skin and into the flesh at the base of the spine, making a scar nearly five inches in diameter. The heart, lungs and other organs were taken out and found in good, healthy condition. They will be preserved for further examination. The brain was also taken out. It, too, will be carefully examined.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The story of the electrocution of Kemmler has been the talk of the town to-day. Extra editions in which the horrible details were told at great length in the papers were read with a shudder. The general consensus of opinion seems to be that the attending of an execution by electricity is sufficient condemnation of this method of inflicting the capital penalty.

AUBURN, August 6.—The doctors say that the man from the very first contact was beyond consciousness, and some thought the action which startled all and sent the warden away with a white face to order the current renewed was only the reflex muscular action. Not so one physician, who declared that he could strike his name that he could bring Kemmler back to life with brandy.

HIS HEAD CRUSHED.

Fatal Accident to an Old Resident of Salem.

OREGON'S CENSUS WRANGLE.

Fire at Linkville—Oregon Farmers Have a Good Wheat Crop—State and Coast News.

SALEM, August 6.—Charles A. Smith, aged 40, unmarried, fell from a truck load of shingles this morning. His head was run over by a wheel of the truck and he was instantly killed. He had been subject to epileptic fits for some years. It was thought his neck was broken in the fall. His mother and sisters live here and three brothers in Seattle. He was an old resident of Salem and vicinity.

OREGON'S PROTEST.

The Grounds on Which the State Demands a New Census.

PORTLAND, August 6.—The president of the chamber of commerce to-day sent the following message to Oregon's delegation in congress, relative to the alleged imperfections in the census in this state: Washington cast at her state election this year 58,443 votes and the census gives that state 339,000 population. Oregon cast at the state election this year 134,000 votes, and the census should in a like ratio give her a population of 418,000, while it gives only 264,262 The glaring political injustice of this is that while the smaller state of Washington will get two members in the lower house of congress and a proportionate power in the electoral college, the larger state of Oregon will get but one member and a corresponding loss of representation in the electoral college. Oregon protests against the virtual partial disfranchisement in the national congressional election for the next 10 years, growing out of the blunders of the census department, and appeal through you to the secretary of the interior for a recount of the entire state.

EUGENE NEWS.

Sheriff Sloan Demands an Investigation of Charges Against Him.

EUGENE, Or., August 6.—At the request of Ex-Sheriff Sloan the court to day appointed a commission for the purpose of investigating the accounts and business of the sheriff's office during his entire administration, which lasted four years.

Mr. Sloan made the request on account of charges against him of irregularities in the business of the office and errors in the books. He is ready and able to make good any and all discrepancies that may appear upon investigation. It is supposed to be the work of incompetent deputies.

Mining Suit Decided.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 6.—In the U. S. circuit court to-day a verdict for the defendant was given in the case of George H. Francour vs. Oscar Newhouse. This action was an ejectment involving the title to the Eagle Bird mine in Nevada county. The mine is valued at $1,000,000 and the improvements at $200,000. Francour claimed the title under a deed from the Central Pacific railroad issued in 1889 and the defendant under a U. S. mining patent issued in 1887. This case affects over 700 other mines in the Sacramento land district.

Marion County Wheat.

SALEM, August 6.—The ruling price of wheat is 64 cents, while at Gervais it goes a cent higher. Harvest everywhere is going on and the yield of grain is exceptionally good, many fields averaging 30 bushels per acre and some has been exceeding that figure. The wheat is hard, plump and dry and free from wild oats and is exceptionally fine.

Shooting at Ellensburg.

ELLENSBURG, August 6.—Two negroes, Marshall Brown and Geo Oglesby, got into a row at Roslyn last night. The latter drew a revolver and shot Brown in the right side, the bullet penetrating the lung, though probably not fatally. It is impossible to learn the cause of the trouble, but it is supposed to have some connection with the row of Monday, in which Pat Henry was stabbed. The prisoner was brought to Ellensburg. Pat Henry, who was stabbed Monday, will recover.

Fire at Linkville.

LINKVILLE, Or., August 6.—The residence of Dr. Heminway, at Bonanza, caught fire at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning from a defective flue, and was burned to the ground. Nothing was saved. Three small children that were in the house were badly burned, probably fatally. Loss, $1500; no insurance.

Iowa Democrats.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, August 6.—The democratic state convention met this morning. A platform was adopted declaring in favor of tariff for revenue, denouncing the McKinley tariff bill and favoring reciprocity, not only with South America, but with all nations. The following ticket was nominated: For secretary of state, W. S. Chamberlain; treasurer, A. L. White; auditor, G. S. Witters; judge of the supreme court, P. B. Wolf.

SECRETARY BLAINE.

His Views Upon the Reciprocity Question Gain.

CHICAGO, August 6.—A special to the Tribune from Cape May says that the seaside conference is at an end, and the president and Secretary Blaine will leave for their home. As a result of the conference the president will send a message to the senate or if not a state paper a verbal message recommending the senate to adopt the Aldrich amendment to the McKinley bill, which vests discretionary power in the president to suspend the operations of the customs duties whenever he shall deem it wise to do so, or when other countries shall reciprocate. It can be stated with authority that the work of the conference resulted in a victory for Blaine. The president fought against the scheme of his secretary upon many grounds, and last of all declared that reciprocity would result in an injury to commerce. The president said a decided change must be made in the McKinley bill. It is said to have been agreed upon that Blaine will not interfere with the passage of the force bill.

A LA FARMER JONES.

A West [Virginia] Baptist Minister Buncoed Out of $1000.

NEW YORK, August 6.—A special to the Sun from Wheeling, W. Va., says that Thomas D. Stewart a baptist minister living about five miles from New Martinsville, was buncoed out of $1000 yesterday by three Wheeling confidence men. Two of the strangers made a bargain with Stewart for the latter's farm for $6500, and Stewart started to town with them to secure the money. On the way a drunken third party inveigled Stewart and his new friends into a game of three card monte and one of the latter won $500. Stewart was then induced to bet, but having no money he went to New Martinsville, drew $500 from the bank and got a note for $500, which was discounted, and went back and bet, winning $200, with $500 belonging to the strangers. The money was then put into a box and Stewart was told to keep it for a day or two. Stewart went home, opened the box and found it full of newspaper clippings, but no cash.

The Original Package Bill.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—In the house to-day Ried, of Iowa, presented the conference report on the original package bill. The report leaves the bill exactly as it passed the senate and is dissented from by Oates, of Alabama, one of the conference. After debate the conference report was adopted—yeas, 150; nays, 3.

To Protect California's Big Trees.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Secretary Noble instructed the commissioner of the general land office today to renew the order suspending from settlement and entry the sections of land in Tulare county, California, upon which the "Mammoth Trees" are growing.

Imprisonment for Life.

JACKSON, Cal., August 6.—In the case of Alex Thompson for the murder of Will Spray, the jury to-day rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree, fixing the punishment at life imprisonment.

France and England Agree.

PARIS, August 6.—An agreement between France and England in regard to Zanzibar has been signed. By the terms of the agreement France gives her assent to the establishment of a British protectorate over Zanzibar,

Slang Phrases That Are Very Old

American Notes and Queries

Lord Byron says: "I have learned that your poem is announced by the name of 'Dallah Rookh' I want you to make a great hit" In 1857, Landor, writing to J. Forster about "Aurora Leigh," says: "I am reading a poem full of thought and fascinating with fancy. In many pages there is the wild imagination of Shakespeare * * * I had no idea that any one in this age was capable of such poetry. There are, indeed, even here some flies upon the surface, as there always will be upon what is sweet and strong."

The Wheat Crop.

Farmers of Orego have cause to feel in good spirits this year. The wheat crop is heavy and the prices are advancing. A grain dealer of this city said yesterday that the wheat of Linn county is of as good quality as ever harvested. The grain is plump and is free from wild oats or weeds. The price in this city is 64 cents. A small choice lot sold the first of the week for 69 cents. The shortage in the old world is bound to make fair prices this year, and farmers ought to be properous.

Have you seen those new style hair ornaments at the Ladies Bazaar. They are the latest thing out.

A WOMAN'S WILD LEAP

She Jumps from a Willamette Steamer and Is Drowned.

NEWS EAST OF THE ROCKIES.

Rival Land Owners Fight a Terrible Battle—One Hundred Shots Fired and Several Men Killed.

PORTLAND, August 6.—Mrs. Annie Keobel jumped overboard from the upper deck of the steamer Latona this afternoon and was drowned. She got on board the steamer at Oregon City, and when the boat was near Elk Rock she suddenly leaped overboard and sank at once. A boat was lowered from the vessel, but the body sank and was not recovered. The woman had been in ill health for some time and was undoubtedly insane. She had acted strangely on the boat and was being watched. She leaves a husband and seven children.

A MURDEROUS LOVER.

Failing in His Suit, He Murders His Sweetheart and Suicides.

NEW YORK, August 6.—A special to the Herald from Winona, Minn., says that early last spring Otto Wensloff came here from Montana and engaged out as a farm hand. The attraction calling him here was his comely cousin, Miss Hulda Wensloff. He appeared, however, to be doomed to disappointment, for despite the most assiduous attentions, Miss Hulda occasionally smiled upon other suitors. This exasperated young Otto and resulted in several quarrels with the girl's other admirers, and on Monday night Otto entered Miss Wensloff's sleeping room and awakened her. He then again urged his suit, but was given a firm negative answer. He then told her he had intended killing her three weeks ago, but thought her time had not yet come. With this threat he placed a revolver close to her left ear and fired. A sudden movement caused the ball to lodge in the tissues of her neck. He then placed the revolver against his own temple and fired, causing almost instant death. The girl may live. The young man, a short time since, sent tokens to his mother, sister and brother in Germany, and they are supposed to be on the Atlantic bound for America.

A DEADLY FIGHT.

Rival Land Owners in Colorado Exchange 100 Shots.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col., August 6.—Thos. Welch and Alex. Lavalle have for some time disputed over the ownership of certain lands in the northwestern part of Gunni on county, on Muddy creek. Yesterday Lavelle and five helpers went to cutting hay, and expecting trouble, they were all armed. Welch and his son, with three others, soon came up and opened fire, which was immediately returned. The parties exchanged about one hundred shots. Welch, his son and Alex. Lavelle, were killed outright. Chas. Purnam was shot three times and will die. Pete Small got two bullets, but it is thought he will live.

EMIGRANTS KILLED

By the Ditching of a Railroad Train.

VIENNA, August 6.—A railway train was thrown from the track near Pilson, Bohemia. The cars rolled down an embankment into a marsh. The stoker and several passengers were killed. Eighty were killed. Most of the passengers were emigrants bound for the United States.
