Oregon's Fruit Yield.

Salem Statesman: A newcomer from one of the storm-ridden states of the West reached Oregon last year and purchased land near Salem on which was a nice young orchard. He was in town the other day, complaining of the country. He said he would "a lief live in a cyclone country as in a country where the trees broke down under the loads of fruit." He is surely to be pitied.

Linn County Coal.

The Lebanon Express says: J. W. Bishop, residing ten miles east of Lebanon on Hamilton creek, brought to this office some fine coal croppings. Experienced coal miners have examined the ground and the outcroppings and pronounce it the most promising of anything they have seen in this part of the state. One gentleman told Mr. Bishop that he thought a rich vein of coal could be struck at a depth of 50 feet. What we need, and must have, if Oregon ever takes rank as a mineral state, is men to develop our resources. Mr. Bishop offers to give a one-half interest to any man who will develop the mines.

NOTES FROM TANGENT.

A Heavy Yield of Fall Grain—An Inovation in Harvesting Operations.

TANGENT, August 14.

Harvest is progressing rapidly in this vicinity and some large yields are reported. Mr H. W. Settlemire reports 35 bushels per acre, Mr. A. Settlemire 33, and Mr. C. P. Knighten 30 bushels. The spring grain has not yet been threshed, but it promises a good yield.

The M. E Church building at this place is rapidly nearing completion. The spire is done and the bell is in place and can now be heard in our peaceful little village.

Miss Kate Howard has returned from a visit in California. Miss Trixie Morgan has also returned from California, where she has been on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Andrews, of Oakland.

The writer saw a woman running a binder on Sunday last south of here in a wheat field apparently successfully, which is seemingly an inovation in harvesting. A man was industriously shocking up the grain after the machine.

Too Many for One Train.

Tuesday morning as the south bound passenger train pulled out, more tramps were aboard the train than the good grace of Conductor Kearney could stand so the train made a stop near Stinson's factory and ejected his objectionable freight in such a manner as to arouse their ire. The tramps then ran ahead of the train and waited for it to pass them when they hurled several rocks at Engineer McCarty who was in the cab. Mac could not let this insult pass so he applied the air-brakes, and bounded out after the offenders, in company with the conductor and brakemen, chased the tramps into the brush.—Grant's Pass Courier.

Fruit in Oregon.

Dr. J. R. Cardwell, in an address at Portland, before the Oregon Horticultural Association after remarking that Oregon is the best prune-producing district on the continent, advised his hearers to set a few more prune trees adding that they would not probably miss it by setting two thousand Italian prunes, five hundred Coe's Golden drop and five hundred Prune d'Agen, and if this number should prove too limited, they might add a thousand Bartlett pears. If still there be a few more acres left they might set in equal numbers Northern spy, Thompkins King, Baldwin and Gravenstein apples. But the land must be well prepared, by which expression he meant that which has been deep-plowed, cross plowed, thoroughly harrowed and subsoiled twenty to twenty-four inches deep.

Burglaries are becoming very frequent at The Dalles, and several citizens mourn the loss of articles of clothing and ornament recently purloined.

Work on the extension of the motor line into Astoria is being pushed rapidly, no time is being lost. The men take advantage of the high tide at night and drive piles by lantern light.

One of the laws passed at the last legislature was what was known as the logging act, introduced by Hon. W. Kirk Price, of Jackson county. At the last session of the county court an application was made for a road under the act in this county, resulting in the same being refused upon the ground that the entitling clause was not sufficient, practically declaring the law unconstitutional.

Eugene was much excited last week over the mysterious disappearance of a son of Frank Brown. He disappeared Wednesday. Eugene and the surrounding country were scoured, and about 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon he was found under the house of his grandfather, with whom he was living. He had been under there twenty-four hours without anything to eat. He did not get home at the proper time and was afraid of being punished, so he crawled under the house.

What One Short Year Brings.

Astoria Pioneer: A year ago in June there was a wild rush for Oklahoma by thousands, and the land was quickly taken up and towns sprung up like magic. Now the citizens are calling upon congress for relief to keep them from starvation, as their crops have been a failure. And yet there were a good many who left the Northwest for that region at the time of the boom.

SPAGHT—In this city on Friday, August 15, 1890, Mr. George Spaght, after a lingering illness, aged 45 years.

The deceased leaves a husband and a large family of children. Mr. Spaght is section foreman on the Southern Pacific railroad.

THE OREGON EDITORS.

Their Excursion Train Collides With a Freight and Shakes Up the Scribes.

PORTLAND, Aug. 15.—The Union Pacific special excursion train which left here at 8 o'clok this morning with a party of visiting editors and their wives met with an accident near Clarnie station, about twenty-five minutes after leaving the station.

The superintendent had issued orders for the track to be cleared as far as Troutdale, at which point the excursionists were to inspect the cattle yards of the American Dressed Beef company. The train consisted of three coaches, engine and tender, and was making about twenty-five miles an hour. Conductor Gilbert was in charge, and Messrs. Barrett and Albright engineer and fireman respectively.

Contrary to orders, a freight train was delayed on the main line, and was just in the act of side-tracking when the special came up. The caboose and two flat cars were still in the [illegible], as the sidetrack was too short to hold the train, and [illegible] they were just [illegible] round a curve. Engineer Barrett did not see the obstruction till the curve was rounded, when all effort to stop was futile, and the engine plunged into the caboose, knocking it all to pieces and telescoping the flat cars. A freight passenger who was riding in the caboose was badly [illegible] up but fortunately escaped being killed. The engineer and fireman jumped, saving their lives. The engine was almost demolished.

Mr. Ed Casey, who had charge of the party, was thrown against a seat back and received a badly bruised nose.

Mrs. Casey was considerably shaken up and fainted, but was not seriously injured.

Engineer Barrett received a bad cut on his head and Fireman Albright's left hand was also injured. While the conductor of the freight was side tracking he heard the passenger coming and sent a flagman out to signal it. The flagman failed to do his work in time, and in an instant more the excursion train rounded the curve and struck the freight in spite of the application of the air brakes.

After recovering from their fright part of the crowd walked over to the Mount Tabor motor line and rode to the city. The remainder stayed with the wreck till it was cleared up, when the regular west-bound passenger came along and brought them all in, arriving here about noon.

The programme of the day was sadly interfered with.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the steamer Salem left the foot of Yamhill street with the delayed editors aboard.

About 100 members, accompanied by their wives, were on the Undine, who joined those on the steamer Salem. A business meeting was held on board. The following are the officers elected for the ensuing year: L. Samuels, of the West Shore, Portland, president. Vice presidents, E. Hofer, Capital Journal, Salem; D. I. Ashburg, News' Canyon City; C. S. Jackson, East Oregonian, Pendleton; S. C. Beach, Examiner, Lakeview; E. C. Casey, Pacific Farmer, Portland. Secretary, E. C. Pentland, West Side, Independence. Treasurer, S. S. Train HERALD, Albany. Sergeant-at-arms, R. J. Hendricks, Statesman, Salem.

A vote on the place of holding the next annual session was taken with the following result: Salem, 26; Portland, 15; Albany, 9; Chemawa, 1. Salem was then made the unanimous choice. The meeting then adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock this evening with the Chamber of Commerce in this city.

The City Council of Omaha and Others Will Arrive in Albany To-Day.

Please have your representation meet them at the train. T. F. OSBORN,
"President Chamber Commerce."

These distinguished visitors are coming to look at the country and to get a glimpse of the city and her people and should be accorded a hearty welcome.

Members of the Board of Trade and citizens generally are requested to meet at the city council chamber at 9:30 this morning to make arrangements to meet the visitors from Omaha, who will be accompanied by a delegation of citizens from Portland.
