odist church, with the Rev. Mr. Forsythe as their pastor.

They hired the Roscoe school-house for a temporary place of worship, where the reverent gentleman preached Sunday to a large and sympathetic audience from the text, "Where are the nine?"

When the Rev. E. E. Howell, of Illinois, Ill., was deposed we were able to approve of it.

His congregation did not object to his playing croquet, only to his taking a lantern and going out and playing when he should have been at prayer meeting, and in this they were right.

But the case of the Rev. Mr. Forsythe is radically different. We are not told that he went out Sunday morning when he should have been holding services and put on a mask and padded gloves and jumped up for high balls and ran for fouls.

We do not find him out Wednesday evening siding for second or stealing third. As for the announcement of the ball game in the pulpit it was no worse than to announce the singing, the swings or the lemonade.

The ball game was legitimate, and much better, we should say, than many church fairs where a man puts in ten and takes out one, and offentimes a very little one at that.

Tax tight grip on money in Wall street does not threaten the avenues of business in Oregon.

Farmers have good crops and will get air prices, and will have money of their own without borrowing.

The trouble in Wall street will probably be of short duration.

This Oregon state fair will open on Monday, September 15. It promises to be a successful exhibit.
