Fall and Winter Announcement.

We beg to announce that the two large shipments of woollens consigned to us, and recently purchased of Boston and New York houses, will arrive in the course of a day or two. These goods should have been delivered August 1st, but owing to the recent strike of the New York Central & Hudson River railroad, we were unable to receive them sooner and regret exceedingly the disappointment to our customers. The stock comprises the latest foreign and eastern designs, and required no little skill and care to meet the wants of the public, as we fully anticipate to please the most fastidious. We will announce the arrival of these goods and trust an early inspection. Respectfully,

ZACHES & SON,

Merchant tailors, drapers and fine trade designers. Opposite the postoffice.

TRAFFIC AT YAQUINA.

Exports and Imports Carried by the Oregon Development Company's Steamers.

That Yaquina Bay is justly entitled to the liberal appropriation allowed in the river and harbor bill will be at once admitted by those who are familiar with the growing importance and business of this harbor.

Mr. J. S. Polhemus, assistant engineer of the government work there, in making a report of the business of the past year to Capt. Symons, says:

In reply to your letter of the 28th ult., relating to commercial statistics, I beg to say that I enclose herewith a list of the exports and imports carried by the Oregon Development Company's steamers from and to Yaquina harbor furnished me by Mr. William M. Hoag:

The two vessels which carried this freight are the Willamette Valley, owned by the O. D. Co., and the Farrallon, chartered. The Willamette Valley carried about 1,000 tons of the cargo, and the Farrallon about half as much. They draw when loaded from 12 to 14 feet.

The only other vessel employed in carrying freight to and from the Bay during the fiscal year was the steam schooner Mischief, with a carrying capacity of 2000 cases of salmon—70 tons. She made voyages when cargoes offered, and weather permitted, throughout the year up to two months ago, bringing salmon, shingles, wool, hides, etc., from the Siuslaw and Alsea bays to Yaquina, taking general merchandise as return cargo. She did not clear from custom, and has now gone to Alaska, and I can find no record of her freights, but I would estimate she made 25 round trips and carried 50 tons at a load. I think this freight is all accounted for in the O. D. Co.'s statement. The Mischief draws 8½ feet loaded.

No vessels were built here during the fiscal year.

Only one boat runs on the bay and river, viz: The T. M. Richardson, which makes two round trips a day between Newport and Yaquina City, four miles apart, and carries passengers and general merchandise to Newport. She is a small boat, sixty feet long, allowed to carry 100 passengers.

After the Wrong Man.

Superintendent Geo. S. Downing, of the penitentiary, has returned to Salem tired and disgusted, after a long chase in the tracks of a man he supposed to be the escaped convict Miller, but whom he at last found to be an escaped lunatic from the Oregon asylum for insane. Mr. Downing heard of his man at Albany, and the description as to size, age, dress, etc., tallied all right with the bird he was after. He traced the chap to Lebanon, thence up the hill to Sweet Home, where it was found that he had waded the South Santiam rather than cross a bridge, that he had no money to pay for his grub or lodging when he stopped and that he had proceeded toward more elevated regions by means of the mountain road. Mr. Downing also continued to "mount," hearing of his bird of passage every now and then until he reached Fish lake, seven miles beyond the summit, when he overhauled the runaway, but his chagrin can be imagined when an examination revealed that the man was running away from the asylum instead of the penitentiary and that his name was John Parker instead of John Miller. Mr. Downing left the man where he found him and now wishes the asylum authorities would take care of their cranks, or [illegible] when one of them gets away.—Salem Journal.

Church Notice.

Subject of the morning sermon: "Christ's Preaching" The topic for the evening discourse will be "The Skeptical Disciple." Sabbath school at 12:15 p. m. Young people's meeting in the lecture room at 7 p. m. Topic: "The Wonderful Love of Christ; He Took Our Place." Leader. Mr Fortmiller. The public will be made welcome. Ushers will show you a seat.

Arrested for Perjury.

Thos. Anderson, a well-known farmer living near Tangent, was arrested yesterday for perjury and arraigned in Justice Wyatt's court. He plead not guilty and the time for his trial was set for to-morrow at 10 o'clock. A civil suit to recover money was brought against Mr. Anderson some time ago by a man who had been in his employ as a farm hand, and he swore that he had worked during the months of April and May last. This Mr. Anderson denied while on the witness stand, hence his arrest on the above charge.

Barlett Pears.

I am agent for the Salem Cannery and prepared to buy all the Bartlett Pears brought to me in a shipping condition. Parties having pears to sell will do well to see me. SAMUEL E. YOUNG.

Wanted.

A good, fresh milch cow. For particulars enquire at the Depot hotel.

In Oregon this year the hop crop will amount to about 35,000 bales, or 5,600,000 pounds, which, at 26 cents per pound, will bring into the country the sum of $1,456,000. A short month ago the market opened at 15 cents and the difference of 11 cents on a pound will amount to $616,000 to the hop growers of the state.

A BOSTONIAN'S IMPRESSIONS

O Pretty Maude Granger and Her Enchanting Costumes.

"It is doubtful if there was a Bostonian in Washington last night who was not present at the National theater. There were two incentives to draw him there. One was the announcement of the appearance of charming Maude Granger, and the other the fact that she was to give her first American presentation of Lucy Hooper's play, "Inherited," or "L'Heritage d'Helene," as it was originally produced in Paris a year ago. Boston people are partial to both the actress and the authoress. Mrs. Hooper had made her home among us for so long previous to her taking up her residence in Paris that every one knew her, and since her sojourn in the gay capital her brilliant letters have kept her constantly before us. Every one is acquainted with the success of the Paris production of the play, and no little interest was evinced in its Washington production. What a magnificent audience was present to witness it. The boxes were filled with cabinet officials and their families and members of the foreign legations. A box had been reserved for the president and family, but he was prevented from attending.

The fashion of Washington was there, and I have never seen more elaborate costumes in a theater during a season of grand opera. The press dispatches have before this advised you of the success of Miss Granger and the play, but I want to give you my impression of this beautiful, emotional actress. Those impressions I previously had were derived partly from her photographs and partly from reports of those who had seen her. Strange to say I never had. I thought her tall and Junoesque, large, exceeding in fact, with a pair of big, flashing, coal-black eyes and a presence altogether to which the term magnificent would be applicable. Judge of my amazement when a pretty little creature swept out who quite upset all my preconceived ideas.

She is short, quite short, with a lissome figure, and eyes that may be black or blue or gray. I could not tell, but large and round and full. They neither flash nor dance, but are soft and pleading, and taking altogether she is a delicious little woman. And what a dresser! I have seen actresses with magnificent costumes, but there is something out of the common in Maude Granger's style. The costumes may be Worth's or they may be Madame Smith's, but I never saw a woman who knew so well the art of dressing. She inclines to neglige, and wore two robes of white and gold. The second was of white satin and a little more elaborate than the first.

But the costume she wears in the second act is a wonder. It is of some dark material, with a long train and one side is completely covered with what appears to be natural flowers. It is richly embroidered with gold bronze, and was hung all over with little golden jigmarees of some sort. The effect was quite enchanting I assure you, and the feminine population of Washington are raving over pretty Maude Granger and her wonderful gowns. — "Rosalind's" Washington letter to Boston Herald.

Forest Fires.

The Mist, published at St. Helens, says that a fire has been raging in the immediate vicinity of Clatskanie the past week. It has done considerable damage, and the citizens experience uneasiness in regard to its future progress. Among other things it has destroyed, is 50,000 feet of lumber for Mr. Tichenor, together with his old saw mill, one-half mile of fence for William Convers, and at last reports was making its way toward the mills of Mr. Blood and George Howitson, as also the new mill of Mr. Tichenor's. Work has been stopped in all of the above named mills, we are informed.

An Insane Pioneer.

Capt. A. P. Ankeny, an Oregon pioneer, was taken to the Asylum at Salem from Jackson county Monday. Capt. Ankeny built and owned the large block known as the Market Theatre block in Portland. Some years ago he became owner of some valuable mining property in Jackson county. He and his son have been engaged in these mines and it is supposed the worry and anxiety of business wrecked his intellect.—Eugene Guard.

Another Hunter Killed.

William Randall, a farmer of Chimney Rock precinct, aged 35 years, went out hunting Saturday with a party and became separated from the others. The accidental discharge of his rifle sent a ball in his leg below the knee, following the bone up and lodging in the thigh, where it severed an artery and he bled to death. He leaves a wife and five children.—Valley Record.

Want a Bonus.

The Oregon Mineral Paint company has bought several lots in Lebanon, near the terminus of the railroad. The company ask a small bonus of the Lebanonites, which will doubtless be raised, when buildings will be erected. A cooperage will be established and all the appliances necessary for the manufacture of paint will immediately follow. A good article of paint is now being turned out from the mill and the enterprise is an assured success.

"For summer complaint says Ben L. Bear, a prominent druggist of Los Angeles, Cal., "I know of no other remedy so sure and safe to use as Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy." "Mr. Bear is not alone in entertaining that opinion as, wherever known, the remedy is praised by all who use it. For sale by Foshay & Mason,

THE OREGON STATE FAIR.

Digest of the Premium List and Rules —The Money Appropriated.

The thirtieth annual exhibition of the Oregon State Agricultural Society will be held at Salem, beginning Monday, September 15th. The state appropriates $5000 annually for premiums, and in all about $15,000 in cash premiums will be distributed. Entries may be made with the secretary at Salem for six days before the fair and for three days before the fair on the State Fair grounds near Salem. Entries close on Monday, the first day of the fair at 7 P. M. and articles must be in place to exhibit by 10 A. M. on that day. The rules forbid any licensed dance-house, gambling arrangement, or improper or immoral entertainment or exhibition. Wheels of chance, lotteries, monstrosities or deformed beggars are forbidden the grounds.

The Oregon State Board of Agriculture is composed of J. T. Apperson, Oregon City; T. G. Richmond, Dallas; V. B. DeLashmutt, A. F. Miller, R. E. Bybee, Portland; Wm. Galloway, McMinnville; D. S. K. Buick, Roseburg; T. L. Davidson, John C. Wright, Salem: D. H. Looney, Jefferson; J. B. Keeney, Pendleton.

The officers for the present year are: D. H. Looney, Jefferson, president; Wm. Galloway, McMinnville, vice-president; J. T. Gregg, secretary A Bush, Salem, treasurer; J. Q. Wilson, Salem, chief marshal; E. M. Waite, Salem, marshal of pavilion.

Under the heading of trials of speed there are seven trotting and seven running horse races. There are purses of $6000 offered, to be competed for under the national rules.

The premium list embraces such an array of figures that no branch of industry is without liberal and intelligent recognition.
