

ORIGINAL DEFECTIVE

THE MORNING HERALD: SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1890.

ONE FROM OUR GALE.

Two Young Painters Who Skipped Out With Several Hundred Dollars.

Clair Reed and Charles Waters are the names of two nice appearing young men who came to this city last spring from Illinois. They looked enough alike to be brothers. They were good painters and by their gentlemanly conduct and industrious work soon had some good painting contracts. The adage that appearances are deceitful, however, was verified in the case, for yesterday morning it was discovered that they had collected about $500 for work and had some good painting contracts. The adage that appearances are deceitful, however, was verified in the case, for yesterday morning it was discovered that they had collected about $500 for work and had some good painting contracts.

Mr. Albert Savage of Lebanon, was in the city yesterday. Hon. Seymour Condon, of Eugene, was in the city yesterday. Mr. E. G. Beaudry, of Independence, was in the city yesterday. Julius Joseph has returned from a trip to Sodaville and Sweet Home.

Rev. T. G. Brownson, president of the McMinnville college, is in the city. Pete Montgomery, who was shot in an altercation at the brick yard near this city, is again on the street. The funeral of the late Mrs. R. C. Hill was largely attended yesterday by the many friends of the family.

Mr. Lafe and John Wilson, of Corvallis, were in the city yesterday, having come over to hear Maude Grant. Mr. J. P. Galbraith and family have removed into their residence on Fourth street near the Congregational church.

Mr. J. A. Wilson, book keeper for the Sugar Pine Door and Lumber Co. is quite ill at the residence of Geo. Hechtelder. Judge D. R. N. Blackburn is still lying in a critical condition at his home in this city. He was a little better last evening.

Rev. J. W. Smed, of Albina, will preach in the Congregational church morning and evening, Aug. 31. Everybody invited. The McKemie's wagon road across the Cascades from Prineville to Eugene, is being put in first class order this summer by a force of men who are contently working upon it.

A dispatch from Port Townsend says: United States Marshal O. F. Porter, formerly of Oregon, was married in Sitka to Miss Carrie Doph, one of the teachers in the missionary school. Richard Everding, who was elected police commissioner in Portland last June, has brought back from Joe Simon, from that position, which he still hangs on to with a firm grip. The case will go to the supreme court.

Quarterly meeting at the Evangelical church in this city next Sabbath. Rev. H. I. Bittner, P. E. from East Portland will preach Saturday evening at 7:45. Communion service on Sabbath at 11 a. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present. The committee of the Oregon state senate on taxation is to meet in Salem October 13. If the next legislature will learn a lesson from the last, says the Salem statesman, and not try to do too much, probably some new legislation on the subject of taxation may be the result.

The twin clock at Pendleton was stopped the other day for an hour or two in a peculiar manner. Several pigeons which make their home about the tower perched upon one of the hands on the west face of the clock and the record of the flight of "old Father Time" was thus prevented. A man and family arrived in Lebanon Wednesday from Dakota says the Express. They came by wagon, and were six weeks on the road. He had not been in town two hours before he was confronted by two men who wanted his services at double the wages paid in Dakota.

Mrs. J. Coel, of Doorville, Col., who has been visiting friends and relatives in Corvallis the past week, spent last Thursday in this city, the guest of Miss Adelle Hogan. She is very much pleased with Oregon and thinks her husband and self will sometime remove here and make Oregon their future home. Charles Flock, a brother of John Flock, who shot and killed George Chamberlain last week, says the Prineville News, was arrested and brought to Prineville by Sheriff Booth on a charge of grossly insulting Mrs. George Chamberlain by sitting fire to and destroying a portion of the fence on her premises on Mountain creek. The fence enclosed a field of growing hops.

The Rev. Jesse Kirk, the Indian divine of the Klamath Indian reservation, with his wife and three children, attended conference, and from him we learn that there are 200 Indian Christians on the reservation, all being Methodists except about twelve of the Modoc tribe who believed in the doctrine preached by the Quakers. At the present time they have two schools with an attendance of 200. —Kogue River Courier.

Oregon Has It All.

Oregon has the climate, the timber, the water, the mineral, the grazing lands, the fruit in endless variety, communication with every country under heaven, and the most contented population in the civilized world. Everything that is really desirable to be found in a state, and the conditions upon which they may be possessed are within easy reach of the industries and people. It will support a population five times as great as that which now finds its home upon its soil, with nothing like the impoverishment of its resources. If only Eastern people could be convinced that the savage no longer roams the country in war paint and feathers, but that he is engaged in rural occupations; that our educational facilities are in advance of the log cabin with its rough-hewn benches and Webster's speller as a text book; that we are in a measure civilized, perhaps more of them would venture on an exploring expedition to the sunny slopes of our mountains, if you have this opinion of our country a Uncle Sam will not engage to escort you, take a Pullman car and ride through in comparative safety. If you see our country you will be loathe to leave it. —Lebanon Express.

Further Particulars. The Benton Leader furnishes the following additional particulars of the chieftain at that place, which has been already noticed in the Herald's columns: Quite an excitement prevailed among the citizens on Wednesday evening, caused by a row which came near breaking serious. It seems that Wah-sung formerly owner of one of the laundries, sometime ago, borrowed money from Tve, employed at the Occidental hotel, and on the latter trying to collect it the former celestial became enraged and started after Tve with an ax, and no doubt would have used it had not Tve run into Harriett's store in Farr's block for protection. Mr. Smith stopped Wah-sung at the door, but had to bring a chair into use to accomplish his purpose, when the ax was taken away from the enraged Chinaman. Although no blood was spilt in the affray, Tve was badly frightened and was under the impression that his time had come. Wah-sung suddenly disappeared, though was found by the officers yesterday at Albina and was put in the county jail to await a preliminary examination.

Mexican Heiresses. It is considered a disgrace for a Mexican lady to earn her own living. The men do the cooking and male servants do the housework. If a young lady should learn stenography and typewriting or should try in any manner to earn her own living she would be ostracised from society. There are many heiresses there, and there are many Mexican adventurers who make their living marrying them. They are handsome, indolent spendthrifts and the ladies fall in love with them. A Mexican woman's beauty fades early, and when a wealthy heiress marries one of these men she never lives long. I don't know why. When she dies her husband invariably marries another wealthy girl. I call to mind one man in the City of Mexico who married three heiresses in quick succession. He became one of the richest men in that part of the country, but what a spendthrift he was! Once he visited the United States, and at every city he stopped, instead of writing home, he would telegraph long messages. Hundreds of words. At one place his telegraph bill was $900. This is but a sample of his extravagance. He would lose fortunes at the gambling table. He was finally killed in a quarrel.
