The census enumeration in both Salem and Portland is being pushed rapidly to completion and will show an increase to warrant the recount. The balance of the state is largely interested in seeing a full count for these places and that the enumeration shall be complete.

Kate McGee, supposed to be insane, has been locked up in the city prison at San Francisco to await examination. She threatens to kill Alexander Lynott, a hackman, who claims to be entirely ignorant of the cause of the woman's animosity.

The dispatches tell about how Rev. Henry Rominger, of East Portland, formerly of Albany, had a recent novel experience at Bethlehem, Penn., officiating at the marriage of his own mother, for which purpose he went overland from Oregon. His mother wedded another clergyman.

A tramp was arrested in New Haven recently who had bank books in his possession showing $4,400 to his credit. Every box car in the country will soon be covered with figures where less thrifty "noboes" have estimated the number of times the "growler could have bee rushed" on that amonnt.

Prof. (?) McKanlass, the colored minstrel pretty well known here, recently eloped with a white Colfax girl, and when caught was living at a hotel with her. He was arrested for adultery, but the evidence was not strong enough and he skipped. The girl is at home madder'n a wet hen.

A swindler representing himself to be a traveler for a Portland oil house, is selling at good prices encased sand which he falsely represents will clarify oil and absolutely prevent lamp explosions. Ashland, Condon. Fossil and other places, have been "done up" by this bilk with his very ancient fake.

The Salem Capital Journal says: Halsey is booming. It now has about four hundred inhabitants, and thinks it does as much business as any other little town of its size in the valley. Has no saloons and is as pleasant a town as the country can boast of. Has two large ware-houses with immense cleaning capacities.

The following is offered by one of our exchanges as a sample of autumn poetry: "We sit in our den at midnight, when the clock was ticking away, and we think of the cash subscriber, who has wandered in to-day. We con o'er all the good things that two dollars will buy, and the joy which the thought brings to us gushes forth, from pale blue eye. How often, oh! how often, as the days go moving past, we would long if longing could help it that this each business would last. But alas, our heart is weary, likewise our pale blue eyes, for a few and far between meals, comes to us each glad surprise. Yet we sit in our den at midnight, and scratch with a stubby pen, and along for the cash subscriber to wander in again, and we think, mayhap, some delinquent may want to witness our smile, and may happen in to-morrow and swell our little pile.

INCIDENTS AND ACCIDENTS.

The report received in Pendleton that John Bowman had been found at his cabin in the mountains in a precarious condition with a wound in his head, was confirmed. L. S. Goodsby, his sheep herder, was afterwards apprehended for the deed and held to answer before the grand jury. It appears that the two men were quarreling over some trivial matter, and Goodsby struck Bowman over the head with club. He then fled without ascertaining how much damage he had done, but afterwards went into Pendleton to give himself up, where he was arrested.

Judge W. W. Jacobs, a native of Virginia, and Mrs. N. A. Kees, an Oregon pioneer and one of the Whitman survivors, were united in marriage in Athena, Umatilla county.

A curious suit is spoken of in the following: "It is said a Milton citizen is down for the purpose of bringing suit against J. B. Mahan, on the charge of misappropriating the townsite of Milton. Mahan represents Milton as a freewater suburb in his map of "a wheel within a wheel," and the Milton citizen thinks this is grand larceny under the statute "made and provided," etc. If the plaintiff gains that suit it will be a case of poetic justice with a vengeance. The elderly female, who goes under the name of Justice, could tear off the blindfold from her visual organs in perfect astonishment. Shakespeare could be adopted as a standard law book thereafter.

A peculiar accident took place on the railroad near Seattle recently. In grading streets a contractor had loaded down the six-inch main of the Spring Hill Water Company with so much dirt that it burst the pipe and flooded the railroad track on the Northern Pacific, covering it with dirt so that trains were delayed several hours.

The Grant's Pass Courier says that the Rev. P. M. Starr, who was injured during the conference by the back seat of a carriage, in which he was sitting, giving way, was carried on a stretcher to the railroad on last Saturday evening and thence started to his home in the Willamette. Mr. Starr is one among the old time preachers in Oregon, where he has labored for forty years. Friends all over the state regret the accident and hope for his recovery.

Copper from the mines in the south part of the county has begun to arrive by the wagon load. This will be shipped to San Francisco for a practical mill test. After 100 tons or so have been practically tested, if results are satisfactory, the owners of the mines will commence extensive operations.—Grant's Pass Courier.

Unprincipled Rogues.

A party of horse traders have been attempting to play swindling games in Portland by trying to get extra trades out of horse owners by throwing acid upon the horses, causing them to kick, thus making the owners think they were unmanageable and get good trades out of them. The rogues did not succeed.

Cool Burglars.

An exceedingly bold gent of the thieving class entered the residence of W. T. Shanahan in Portland yesterday afternoon, and coolly arrayed himself in a new suit of clothing, leaving his old suit on the floor. He took with him several other suits, and a quantity of jewelry, making good his escape.

OUR COLLEGE.

Is First Class Order For the Twenty-Fourth Opening.

A look over the grounds and buildings of the Albany Collegiate institute, shows that our popular institution of learning, of which every citizen of Albany is proud, has been put in excellent condition and many new improvements added. The chapel room has been furnished with the very latest improved seats and furniture through out, and will be the main school room off from which two ample recitation rooms open, also furnished with the best furniture and appliances. Below will be the preparatory department, and commercial departments to all of which the best and latest improved furniture has been added, and also a society room.

In the rear of the building are the ample and well arranged rooms or gymnasiums, one for each sex and separated by the wood shed so they are entirely distinct.

Sewer and water pipe privileges have been added so that the grounds are thoroughly well drained and everything put in the best sanitary condition possible. The latest improved appliances in that direction are to be added.

The improvements have been made at great cost and the trustees and faculty deserve great praise for the efficient management.

The teachers will all be here this week, ready for opening on next Wednesday.

A. Halvorsen, Potato Patch, 3d district, Santiam placer mine.

Street Cars for Salem.

The Oregonian says: The Oregon Land Company yesterday sent five horse cars up to Salem to be run between that city and the fair grounds during fair time. The company have bought the street car system in Salem, comprising seven miles of road, and as the Southern Pacific Company has announced that it will not run trains from Salem to the fair grounds during the coming fair, the street railway must prepare to accommodate the travel. The five cars were procured from the Multnomah Street Railway Company, and were hauled down Washington to First street at an early hour yesterday morning. They were then transferred to the First street track and run down to the terminal grounds, and up rails, placed for that purpose on to Southern Pacific cars and taken to Salem. The old familiar cry of "all aboard for the fair grounds," will be heard as usual on the streets of Salem this year.

GRAIN SACK QUESTION.

In the matter of grain sack and the tariff measures, Senator Mitchell has introduced two amendments to the proposed bill, which bear directly upon the question. They are as follows:

Provided, That on all imported bags for grain made of burlaps, and exported from the United States to any foreign country filled with grain, there shall be allowed, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, a rebate of duty equal to the amount of duties paid upon such imported grain bags: Provided, however, That there shall be no rebate on any such bags as may be re-imported duty free, which right to re-import such bags free shall remain as under existing law.

Provided, That on burlaps of jute, not exceeding forty-five inches in width nor twelve ounces to the yard, substantially of the kind and quality heretofore imported at the Pacific ports of the United States for manufacture into bags for the export of wheat, barley, and oats, there shall be allowed, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, a rebate of duty equal to the amount of duties paid upon such burlaps as may be actually manufactured, within the United States, into bags not exceeding the dimensions of thirty-six by twenty two inches.

To-Days Excursion to to Newport.

The train will leave Southern Pacific side track at 2 P. M., to-day arriving in Newport at 5:30 P. M., returning to-morrow leave Yaquina 5:45 P. M., arriving in Albany 9:05. The weather at the bay is fine and you cannot miss it if you bring your family or your best girl and participate in the last popular excursion of this season. Only $2 for round trip. Plenty of accommodations at the hotels. The Corvallis brass band will accompany the excursion and will give a ball Saturday evening in Newport.

Mr. Castell, the owner of the works and foreman of the foundry, has no superior in his line of work on the coast, and work intrusted to him is sure to be promptly and satisfactorily executed.

Arrested for Vagrancy.

S. H. Walpole, who figured in the Banta shooting scrape at Lebanon, and was subsequently run out of that city, was arrested yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. He was arraigned in Recorder Henton's court, waived examination and will plead at 1:30 o'clock to-day. His bail was fixed at $20, which was furnished.

ALBANY, Or., Sept. 5, 1890.

About 4 P. M. on Monday of this week my house, in Benton county, one mile from this city, was destroyed by fire. The household goods were insured in the Oakland Home Insurance Company, of Oakland, Cal. To-day, after a careful investigation, the company's adjuster, Mr. M. H. Merrill (a gentleman of whom the company may feel justly proud for his thoroughness and skill in business), settled the loss sustained by his company, to my entire satisfaction. I make this statement without any solicitations whatever.
