HATED FOR BARRUNDIA

A Prejudiced Court—New Trotting Rule—Church Fairs Need from the East, and the Great

ASTORIA, Oct. 1.—Charles Johnson this morning at 9:30 o'clock, Mitchell's 13-year-old daughter has been missing two weeks and was found in Portland.

Mitchell went after her a few days ago. This morning he returned without her and went immediately to where Johnson was sleeping and shot him through the head. Johnson jumped up and ran out of the door. Mitchell fired four more shots in his back. Johnson ran down the stairs to the back of the house, raised a window, jumped out and ran sixty feet up a hill, where he fell dead.

MIZNER DESPISED.

So Says the Son-in-Law of Barrundia—Another Account.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 1.—Dr. Beng-rhanson in-law of Barrundia, arrived here last night en route to the United States to present the case to President Harrison. He makes the statement that when Barrundia embarked at Acapulco, Pats guaranteed his life. The story of the murder aboard the Acapulco, as given by Bengleria is that before Pitts read Barrundia's order, two officers went below Barrundia, who was in his under-shirt, asked permission to put on his clothes, and while in the act was shot through one of the cabin windows, the bullet wounding him slightly. He grabbed two revolvers and opened the door, and Torrieto and Pitts ran. Fonseca opened fire from behind a smoke-stack, as did also four policemen of the balls entering Barrundia's face, directly under the eye, he falling to the deck, dead. Torrieto rushed from his hiding place and commenced kicking the body. All this passed within two minutes. Barrundia did not fire a single shot.

"My wife," said Bengleria, "intended to fire a shot at Mizner from the balcony of her house after the killing of her father, but she was passing with the agent of the Pacific Mail Company and she did not do so, but went to the legation where Mizner was sitting with Agent Levechik and United States Consul General Hesper. Levechik seeing her, was going to leave, but Mizner said: 'Don't leave me alone; that is Barrundia's daughter.' To this she replied: 'Yes; this is the daughter of Barrundia, who comes to call you to account for her father's assassination. Sir, you are an assassin. You, who are here representing so great a nation as the United States, are nothing but a great villain.'"

"She was ejected from the legation following the murder Mizner visited the minister of war and inter or at the national palace. He received him with his hat on and treated him with the greatest contempt. He is despised by every one in Guatemala."

STORIES OF POKER MCCOOL.

A Mississippi River Gambler Whose Nerve in Betting Was Unequaled.

"There was in the latter fifties and the early sixties a man who occasionally made a trip on the river by the name of McCool," said Mr. McDonald. "He was a confided gambler and what we called in those days a 'high roller'—that is, he would not only play for heavy stakes, but would have gambled the assets of his possession, even had it been a block of brick buildings in Denver, on what he thought would be the top hand. Where McCool came from to the river, as well as whether he went upon leaving it, nobody knew. But while he was there he made a name and a fortune which were the envy of many a less successful sporting man. His penchant for and success at draw poker won for him the pseudonym of 'Poker McCool,' and I venture to say if one were to take a trip down the river to-day he could find a small army of anti-rebellion slaves who were either won or lost at poker by McCool."

"McCool spent much of his time at New Orleans, and he became a conspicuous equestrian figure there in time. He owned a big black stallion, for which he paid $1000, and when he was astride of the animal he was an attractive object—he and his horse. He thought much of toe animal, and money could not have touched him. Well, one afternoon I am speaking about McCool got into a poker game—a good old draw—with a wealthy gambler named Brady. Neither McCool nor Brady belonged to a temperance organization, and a feature of the game was the frequent turning of the 'low card' for a drink. It was about sundown when the deal began which ended the game and left McCool afoot and bankrupt.

The deal was Brady's and the first card had been given to each of them when Mr. McCool wanted a card turned for another round of drinks. Brady turned it, and a four spot fell to each. With a recklessness and gambling unfamiliar which had characterized the game throughout, McCool threw a large sum of money on the table and Brady called it. It seems to be merely a bet before the draw, and the players tacitly understood that in whatever manner it should be won or lost, McCool called for another card to be turned and it was done. Each got a five spot, which Brady covered, and the draw was turned. Each got a six. Up to this time the players had intended that, after deciding the question of drinks the draw should be proceeded with; but now the game took another turn, and it was decided to settle the hands without drawing. The fifth card was accordingly turned, and it was a deuce. There was an intense pile in the pot and the interest among the crowd, which was packed around the table, was intense and the silence so deep that the ticking of the tall clock behind the bar sounded like a hammer striking on an anvil. Both men sat deeply absorbed in study. McCool's buried card was a six spot and he was certain enough that his pair had Brady beaten. Brady's buried card was a tray and he had a straight and a sure thing. His card sitting behind that hand, was undisturbed and he was prepared to play it out.

"The scene at this time was the most impressive that I believe I ever witnessed. I never saw an aggregation of men so thoroughly impressed with the fact that a tremendous stake hung in the balance. The betting proceeded slowly but heavily until finally McCool had all his earthly possessions represented in the stake on the table except two objects. One of these was his stallion, who stood clamping his bit on the steeple-side; the other was his old negro slave, who stood holding the horse. Finally McCool ordered the negro to be brought in and Brady deposited $200 against him, at the same time raising McCool $500."

"After some moments of cool study McCool told Brady that all he owned was on the table with the exception of his horse. He was willing to put him up against the last bet that Brady had made. The proposition was accepted and McCool ordered the horse brought in, and he was. The interest which I have described as attending the game before now seemed intensified, if that were possible, and the pictures there presented with the faithful old slave, seated by his master's chair, agent of the suspense he was undergoing plainly depicted upon his face, the magnificent horse, who seemed all but conscious of the wealth at stake, and lastly the players and spectators, was one never to be forgotten. When the betting was over and no calling and no calling was lacking to decide the game but the appearance of the two buried cards. McCool called for a glass of liquor. It was not until he had emptied this that he asked to see his opponent's card.

"When it was shown up he silently got up from the table and walked through the crowd, which parted for his passage, out into the street. He never sat in a game that drew a crowd again, and it was but a short time when he disappeared permanently from the river. He was the first man to lose big money at 'still-horse poker' and he had my respect and sympathy ever since."—Denver Republican.

IRON AND STEEL INSTITUTE.

First Session Opened in New York this Morning.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—To-day the first session of the Iron and Steel Institute was opened in Chickering hall. Sir James Kitson, president of the British Association, opened the meeting. He said a few words congratulatory to the members on having an opportunity to see the resources of this country. Carnegie then delivered an address of welcome. Kitson responded: "It is indeed an honor to us to be welcomed here by Carnegie, who is the largest manufacturer of iron and steel in the world. The remarkable reception we have been given here since we landed justifies us in believing that we are welcomed as well by a vast number of people of the United States."

Sir James then went into the history of the Iron and Steel Institute.

THE M'KINLEY BILL

Passed by Congress and Signed by the President.

CONGRESS THEN ADJOURNS.

Striking Miners—Davis for Congress—Tacoma News—Iron and Steel Institute.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—In the senate, Sherman offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five to join a like committee on the part of the house to wait on the president and inform him that unless he has further communication to make the two houses are ready to adjourn. Blair wanted to take up the labor bill and have it acted upon before adjournment. He was informed that the resolution was merely to call on the president for any communication he might have to make and it would not interfere with the consideration of the labor bill. Resolution agreed to.

IN THE HOUSE.

Before the reading of the journal, Preckwidge, of Kentucky, raised the point of no quorum. While waiting for a quorum a message from the senate announced the agreement to the conference report on the tariff bill. Shortly before 1 o'clock Breckenridge withdrew his point, but it was immediately renewed by Kilgore, of Texas.

THE M'KINLEY BILL A LAW.

PROVIDING FOR ADJOURNMENT.

FIGHTING IRISHMEN.

Disgraced Riots at Limerick—Many People Injured.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—At Limerick Monday a series of gable sports was wound up in a disgraceful riot. There were several games going on in different parts of the city and a bitter rival quarrel between two men developed into a riot, and rioting was the result. At the railway station, which was crowded, the first demonstrations were made, when a mob of boisterous toughs began fighting over the claims of the respective factions. A month almost unparaleled for viciousness followed. Sticks were used indiscriminately, and rocks were thrown, windows smashed, carriages wrecked and a number of persons seriously injured. The stationmaster and other railway employees were dangerously wounded. There were no police present, so matters were left entirely in the hands of the combatants and skulls were cracked with the utmost fury. At Leopolis station, bottles were flung at a moving train, severely injuring two men. The railway company has announced that it will run no more excursion trains.

The stationmaster and other railway employees were dangerously wounded. There were no police present, so matters were left entirely in the hands of the combatants and skulls were cracked with the utmost fury. At Leopolis station, bottles were flung at a moving train, severely injuring two men. The railway company has announced that it will run no more excursion trains.

NEWS FROM VICTORIA.

Striking Wellington Miners—One of Leslie's Alaska Exploration Party.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 1.—Six striking miners, who have been on trial for the last two days on a charge of intimidating miners working at Wellington, were found guilty and Chief Justice Begbie held them in $200 bonds, to appear for sentence when called, remarking that the full effect of their act had probably not yet developed.

E. J. Glove, of Frank Leslie's party, returned from the north by the cutter, Patterson, yesterday. He reports the discovery of a shorter route to the Yukon, which has its source in an immense glacier; also the existence of a fertile valley, inhabited by a semi-civilized race of Indians, between the Yukon and the Alsek. Glove will return to Alaska next year.

Public Building for Oakland.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The house committee on public buildings and grounds has ordered a favorable report on the senate bill for a public building at Oakland, Cal. The bill is reported with an amendment reducing the appropriation from $300,000 to $200,000. The report accompanying the bill recommending its passage says that Oakland is a very prosperous and growing city, and needs a properly located, commodious and suitable building for postal purposes. The business of the office, it says, is rapidly increasing with the rapid increase of population. The gross receipts of the office for the year ending June 30, 1889, were $70,243, and the revenue above all expenses, $31,426.

Battle Against Polygamy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—There is every probability that the Mormon converts, who are expected to arrive on board the steamer Wyoming to-day, will be detained at the large office. It is the beginning of a battle against polygamy and the admission of converts to the faith which practices it, to this country. By far the greater number of these expected to-day are said to be young girls, and it is to stop this traffic that the large office authorities will now take up the cudgel against Mormon importations.

New Trotting Rules.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders, new rules were adopted for securing standard records. The old method of trotting for "in cup" records was abolished. The new way provides for a standard stake in which each horse winning a heat in 2:30 or better is sent to the stable. All records secured under the old method will be good up to midnight of September 30. After that all records must be secured under the new rules which go into effect the 1st of October.

Jack the Ripper.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—"Jack the Ripper" has sent a warning to the Whitechapel police that he is about to butcher another woman. The penmanship of the communication is precisely similar to that of letters which it has been the custom of officials to receive from the murderer just prior to his killing some poor abandoned wretch of Whitechapel.

Dempsey will sign articles as soon as they can be sent on to him at Portland from New Orleans, where the fight will take place. CALIFORNIA POLITICS.

Horse Davis Will Probably Receive a Nomination for Congress.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The action of the Fourth district republican congressional convention, which met last night and adjourned till 8 o'clock to-morrow night without a dissenting voice, virtually settles the fight for the nomination. It is believed and it is predicted that Harro Davis will be the nominee. It is known a great pressure has been brought to bear on him during the last few days, and last night a letter was received from him announcing that he would accept. It was to make the nomination unanimous, if possible, it is stated, that the convention adjourned over.

Decision Sustained.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Secretary Noble has rendered a decision sustaining the action of the general land office in refusing to change the homestead patent issue to Henry F. Bevington in the The Dalles, Or., land district, so as to make Hugh Fraser patentee. The former was made an ex-soldier's entry by the secretary of state, but the right to make soldier's entry is a personal right and is not assignable, and if Fraser has any rights, to look to the courts.

DUBLIN, Oct. 1.—The appeal of Dillon and O'Brien and their fellow accused to the high court of justice for a writ prohibiting the magistrates at Tipperary from proceeding with the conspiracy cases, on the ground of bias, has failed.
