A SENSATION.

A Man Shot Dead by a Woman He Had Betrayed.

SKELETON FOUND BURIED

A Bigamist Convicted at Ellensburg—12-Year-Old Girl Instantly Killed—A Big Fire.

QUINCY, Ill., Oct. 18.—One of the most sensational shooting affairs that has ever occured in this city took place on one of the principle business streets this afternoon Dan G. Price, of Salina, Kansas, being fatally wounded by Miss Lillie B. Booth, of Camp Point, who was in turn shot by Price. Price, accompanied by his brother was walking down the street, when Miss Booth crossed the street and placing the muzzle of a large revolver against his back fired. Price's brother grappled with the young woman, and the wounded man ran into a store, but immediately returned to the sidewalk and shot her down. Price died soon after the shooting, but Miss Booth's wound is not necessarily fatal.

About a year ago young Price went to Salina and Miss Booth followed him to Kansas and commenced proceedings against him for bastardy, but he was acquitted.

THE UNION PACIFIC.

A Letter from President Adams Regarding Its Business.

BOSTON, Oct. 18. — President Adams, of the Union Pacific, who has been examining the system in the West, writes most encouragingly of the outlook. He says if the Union Pacific had sufficient equipment to move the tonnage offered, its gross earnings would be from $300,000 to $400,000 per month larger. He attributes the decreased net returns in the face of increased gross earnings to damages sustained by the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company through heavy snows and freshets last year. In view of the large amount of freight offering the Union Pacific, traffic men have received strict orders [illegible] the cuts of rival lines, but [illegible] business offering at full rates.

Fell Forty-five Feet.

PORTLAND, Oct. 18.—Contractor John S. Kocker, while inspecting the new Hotel Perkins, Fifth and Washington streets, slipped and fell a distance of forty-five feet to the basement. He was badly bruised, but will recover.

A PALETTE PARTY.

It is a Delightfully Social and Entertaining Affair.

If the name suggests a vague fear that the entertainment to be described must be limited in its enjoyment to artists or persons interested in art, let me forestall such a sentiment by saying that this very plan was adopted for an evening's entertainment when no one present was at all skillful in the art that a palette naturally suggests. Every one, however, was ready to do his share towards the general amusement, and a delightfully sociable affairs was the result.

The hostess numbers the palettes beforehand, writing at the top of each the name of a guest and under it a list of numbers, from one up to as high a number as will include all who are to take part. A blank space is left at the right of each number. The thumb-hole is tied through with a narrow ribbon and on the end of the ribbon is fastened a tiny lead pencil. Any adornment in gold paint or colors can be added to the palettes as taste and skill suggest. The palettes can be bought at almost any art store, made of wood, celluloid, water color paper, or card-board. If the art store fails, a picture-framer might consent to cut from a pattern the number of palettes desired

As each arrives he receives a palette with the order to find his partner by matching the ribbon attached to his palette. Care must be taken to distribute the colors so that each gentleman secures a lady. When every one has arrived, and upon it and where a good light falls upon it and where it can be seen by the assembled company. A large, smooth drawing board is placed upon the easel, and a sheet of drawing paper, two feet square, pinned on the board.

The hostess then asks for the person whose palette is labelled No. 1 to step up to the easel and draw with charcoal a certain live object. She whispers the name to the one who is to draw, and gives him one minute to complete the portrait. The others are to bend every energy to guess what is being drawn, and when the minute is up each one enters his guess upon his palette in the blank space at the head of his set of numbers.

The artistic follower may feel more at home in executing his one-minute sketch. When all have finished, a committee is appointed to examine the palettes. By comparing the list of guesses with the list of the hostess, the prize-winners can be easily determined by those who have the most correct guesses.

The pictures should be labelled with the name of the bird, beast or fish each represents,—"This is a stork," "this is a cow," etc. The palettes may be worn at the button-hole on a gentleman, and the belt of a lady, during the remainder of the evening, and then carried away as a souvenir of as jolly and unique an enterainment as has yet been discovered.—Alice M. Kellogg.

BEATEN AND ROBBED.

An East Portland Man's Experience With Thieves.

PORTLAND, Oct. 18.—One of the most daring and desperate robberies ever heard of in this section of the country was committed at 3 o'clock this morning at the East Portland end of the steel railway bridge, where Ben Burlin keeps a saloon.

At that hour, while asleep in a room in the rear of his saloon, he heard the side door leading to his sleeping apartment kicked in, and immediately thereafter he saw three men enter. He leaped from his bed and grappled with one of the men, but was promptly knocked down with a revolver, and otherwise very badly used up. The burglars failing to get the safe keys from him, one of the fellows, a powerful man, held Burlin while the others drilled a hole into the safe door in the saloon and blew it open with powder. Their work was rewarded with $200 in coin, and after obtaining that they made a hurried departure.

The gatekeeper on the bridge says but two men crossed the bridge, and one had a handful of coin when he paid his fare. It is possible Burlin may have been mistaken about there being three men, as he was very badly injured by the burglars, and very much excited.

Verdict of Not Guilty.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The jury in the Ellenberg murder case came into the court yesterday afternoon with a verdict of 'not guilty' and the prisoner was discharged.

This morning, while the jurors were taking exercise in the street in care of a special officer, George W. Palbert, a wealthy milk dealer, shouted to them: "If you convict that woman, you ought to be shot." Officers arrested him and Judge Rumsey held him to await the action of the grand jury.

To-night it is learned, however, that the engineers at the meeting transacted only routine business.

Long, a brother of the murdered man, walked up and fatally shot Van Dyke and then surrendered himself.

THE DEAD JURIST.

Arrival of the Remains at Keokuk, Iowa.

HIS BODY LYING IN STATE.

Viewed by Thousands of Mourning People—Covered From Sight Forever—The Funeral.

KEOKUK, Ia., Oct. 18.—A committee of citizens met the body of Judge Miller at Burlington and conducted it to Keokuk, arriving here at 9 o'clock. The honarary pall-bearers of the various committees took the body in charge and were escorted by Company A, Second regiment, I. N. G., Torrence post G. A. R., the Guard of Honor and several thousand citizens. The body was borne to the Federal building, which had been elaborately draped in mourning. The casket was conveyed to the court room in which the dead justice had recently presided and placed upon a catafalque. The face of the beloved jurist was exposed to view, and during several hours, while the body lay in state, it was viewed by several thousand people.

When the funeral services were held both public and private buildings were draped in black and presented a sombre appearance. A high wind during the early morning destroyed many decorations. All along the line of march over which the funeral procession moved flags were displayed at half mast. Besides the distinguished men who accompanied the remains from Washington, many others assembled here to pay their last tribute of respect. The supreme court of the state was represented and large delegations of attorneys from all the states included in the circuit presided over by the dead justice.

At 2 o'clock the funeral service was held at the Unitarian church, of which the deceased has been a member. The church was entirely inadequate to accommodate even a small part of the crowd. The funeral procession, headed by clergymen, moved up the centre aisle, followed by pall-bearers bearing the casket. In a few minutes the family entered with with Chief Justice Fuller, members of the supreme court and various other delegations. There were many handsome floral tributes. The burial service was conducted by Pastor Hassalt; prayer by Rev. McIlwain; sermon by Rev. Hassalt. The funeral procession to the Oakland cemetery was the largest ever seen here and included officials and court dignitaries, military and civic societies, fire department and citizens. The hearse was drawn by four black horses. The services at the grave were very simple, and the body was lowered and covered from sight forever.

A DIFFICULT OPERATION.

Modern Surgery Achieves a Notable Triumph.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Modern surgery achieved a notable triumph at the Philadelphia hospital, where a Ceasarian operation was performed by Dr. Wm. Ashton, obstetrician, at the institution yesterday, and the case will go on record as a remarkable incident in science. The patient was a young colored woman of robust health. Both the child and mother are expected to recover. Dr. Ashton finished the operation in the remarkably short time of twenty-one minutes and thirty seconds. The child, a female, has been placed in an incubator, a curious contrivance, resembling very much in appearance a child's ordinary bath tub, of tin, made with a section on each side for holding hot water and a compartment in the middle for a child. A uniform temperature of 100 degrees is maintained in the compartment.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 18.—Capt. L. W. Cutler, editor and proprietor of the Field and Farm, of this city, died at Salida this morning.

Five Claims Patented.

The Oregonian says: C. M. Idleman, who is interested in several mining claims in the Bald Mountain district, in Clackamas county, stated yesterday that the property has been surveyed, under direction of the surveyor general, and that patents for five claims were issued. The mines are said to contain good ore, some that was assayed panning out from $250 to $500 to the ton. The greatest obstacle in the way of immediate development is inaccessibility. The mines are difficult to get at and it will require the expenditure of considerable money to give the transportation facilities necessary to extensive operations. Still, the owners are pegging away, and in another year they expect to make a spurt in development work that will astonish the natives.

A Shameful Practice.

Some unscrupulous salmon dealers about Portland are shipping consignments of "dog" salmon, a most worthless fish, under the guise of choice Oregon salmon. These fish are purchased at a low price by equally unscrupulous dealers in the east who sell them as genuine lordly Chinook. The practice threatens to bring Oregon salmon into bad repute in places where the business is carried on. The offenders should be caught and compelled to stop their shameful traffic.

EASTERN NEWS

Action to Suppress Italian Assassination Leagues.

ANOTHER RECORD BROKEN.

A Negro Lynched by a Mob—Idaho Election Figures—News From Salem.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18.—Joseph Macheca and several other Italians were arrested to-day, charged with being accessories to the murder of Chief of Police Hennessy. At a special meeting of the city council this morning Mayor Shakespeare's message was read denouncing the murder of Hennessy through hired assassins and declaring that a terrible secret orders exist in New Orleans; that the chief of police was assassinated for enforcing the laws; that any citizen incurring the enmity of these societies is liable to have a sentence of death passed on him and carried out by the assassins. A resolution was adopted that the mayor appoint a committee of fifty, or more, if he deem proper, to thoroughly investigate these secret orders and report. This afternoon the mayor received an anonymous communication notifying him that he will be the next victim. Intense excitement over the developments prevails in this city, and there is danger of the lower classes being incited to inaugurate a bloody race war against the Italians.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18.—A secret meeting of a committee of 50 citizens was held to-night, and the committee announced that it would pursue the investigation to the end, to bring the murderers of Hennessey to justice and break up the Italian assassination leagues in this city. A thousand dollars was raised on the spot, and by next week the committee expects to have $5000 to assist the work. One of the facts stated was that the ship Elysia is coming up next week with 70 Italian emigrants on board. The mayor interviewed the custom house authorities, and as a result they will go down and meet the ship. Unless the emigrants can satisiy the officers that they are desirable financially and morally they will not be allowed to land.

Joe Macheccal, who was arrested to day, has heretofore been considered a prominent Italian, above the murderous plots of his more ignorant fellow-countrymen. Since his arrest some damaging evidence has developed.
