SPYING OUT THE SOUTH POLE.

The results of the polar expedition, though they have added much scientific knowledge to the world's store of information, are hardly commemorate to the want and misery they have produced. Yet daring men as ever full of the love of adventure will still continue to embark upon such desperate ventures.

The Tribune say that a new chapter in the story of polar research is soon to be written. Some months ago, it will be remembered, Baron Nordenskiold and Baron Dickson offered to organize and equip an Antarctic expedition, provided that the Australian colonies, in whose especial interest it was to be sent out, would aid them to the extent of $25,000. That offer was practically accepted last month. A committee was formed, learned societies and the press took up the matter, popular subscriptions came in freely, and according to recent advices the entire amount needed is probably now in hand. In about a year hence, therefore, we may expect to see the paths of Ross, Wilkes and D'Urville followed by the best equipped exploring party that ever has entered the southern Seas. Baron Nordenskiold is one of the most distinguished and successful of Arctic explorers, and Baron Dickson has been the munificent patron of many such ventures. Between them, therefore, they will give to this expedition all that both knowledge and wealth can bestow to insure its safety and success.

Whether the results of such an enterprise will repay its cost is an open question. But it is not rash to look for an affirmative answer. There are likely to be made scientific discoveries of considerable importance. Nearly half a century has passed since those inhospitable regions were visited. In that time vast progress has been made in ways and means of scientific observation, as well as in navigation. This exploring party may be expected to penetrate further toward the Southern Pole than any of its predecessors, and to bring back reports on the air and sea and land far more complete than did they. We shall know from them what currents move those seas, and what plants and animals inhabit them; what meteorological conditions prevail whether Erebus still sends forth fire and terror is still a cone of unmelting snow; whether the icy barrier still keep unbroken its thousand miles of crystal battlements; possibly, even, whether that mighty wall of ice and snow engirds a continent or an archipelago.

But there are other considerations which, we are told, have mightily moved the merchantile mind of the Australasian commonwealth. The Antarctic waters are the home of myriads of whales and seals, and of fishes also; and these are of great commercial value. Their remoteness from the markets of the world has hitherto caused them to be neglected. But now that the mammalian hosts of the Northern Seas are so decimated the eyes of whalers and sealers are turned toward the vast resources of the South. The Antarctic waters are as near to Australia as Baffin Bay to England. There is good reason, therefore, to look for the establishment of paying commercial enterprises on and within the Antarctic Circle. With both scientific and monetary impulses to quicken it, this scheme of discovery should not and doubtless will not languish, and our mapmakers may well prepare to encroach still further upon the blank spaces hitherto marked by them "unknown."

THAT TERRIBLE MCKINLEY BILL.

The East Portland Vindicator says:

"There is talk to the effect that the large contractors will make a reduction in wages to carpenters so as to make a balance with the increase in the price of nails and iron fixtures, glass and paints. The price of lead alone for paint has advanced three dollars per hundred. This is an immense item when applied to the building in East Portland now contemplated for the next year. The new tariff law has put the price up. It will be hard on the mechanics to be cut down in wages while everything has been raised by the law just passed by congress."

The particular luminosity of the above quotation is calculated to shine down the pathway of ages yet to come, and cover its author with the philosophic halo that shall outshine old Socrates himself. To understand it thoroughly it is necessary to know that the old tariff rate on "white lead and white paint containing lead, dry or in pulp, or ground or mixed with oil" was three cents per pound. Under the McKinley law the same articles are exactly three cents per pound. Just how the McKinley bill raises the price three dollars per hundred no one but an astute philosopher, who could make black white for partisan purposes could possibly tell.

A New York paper which has figured out an average tariff rate says that a contemporary who criticised his methods knows nothing about the matter because the latter insisted that it was silly to ignore the reductions and the free articles in a calculation of the kind. The free trade paper that tries to frighten its reader by showing that the average rate is increased entirely overlooks the fact that Great Britain, which only collects duties from a few articles, has a much higher rate than our free trade contemporary gives to the United States.

Take Simmons Liver Regulator One Dose

WORTH

100 Dollars

DEAR S. L. R: I consider one dose of Simmons Liver Regulator worth $100, was constipated, had Headache, could get nothing with satisfaction or appetite in the shoes, and felt altogether out of sorts. I resorted to Blue Mass, Calomel, Quinine, and every remedy suggested, but only obtained temporary relief, one dose of S. L. R did me more good than $100 worth of doctors' medicine. Respy, J C MARTIN.

I have been a teacher for twenty years, and during that time have had repeated attacks of headache, produced by torpid liver, and have been entirely cured by Simmons Liver Regulator. I found it to be of so mild a character in its action, not to interfere, in the least with my duties in the school room, to those similarly situated and subject to the same, I cannot in higher recommend Simmons Liver Regulator.
