THE BEET SUGAR BUSINESS.

One of the topics that particularly interests the producers of The postoffice will be clard each evening this country, at the present time, is the production of beet sugar. The Chicago Prairie Farmer says that it "has kept its readers fully informed as to the status of the United States for the last twenty-five years, including the 11.13pm 12.20 m failures at Chatsworth, Ill. Fond du Lac, Wis., the attempts in New Jersey, in New England States and in California. It is not necessary here to recapitulate reasons one in California, failed. The I commend to my ellow citizens a per cent of sugar as beets of

-oxty dollars per acres." It then goes on to say that the building and operating of a factory, and the growing of beets at Grand Island, Nebraska has proven to be highly successful, as the quality of pure sugar was produced. The factories are to be enlarged, and numerous branch ones started. In conclusion it says that the present season in Nebraska has proved to be the driest known for seventeen years, and some farmers failed to raise not only corn and small grains in elections for congress-whether paying quantities, but beets as we lose it or whether we gain it - | well. Many, however, have raised great industry.
