THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8, 1890.

By the grace and favor of Almighty God the people of this nation have been led to the closing days of a passing year, which has been full of the blessings of peace and the comforts of plenty. Bountiful compensation has come to us for the work of our main is in every department of human industry. Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Thursday, the 27th day of November, to be observed as a day of prayer and thanksgiving, and I do invite the people upon that day, to cease from their labors, to meet in their accustomed houses of worship and to join in rendering gratitude and [illegible] to our beneficent Creator for [illegible] he has granted [illegible] as a nation and [illegible] nuance of his protection and [illegible] for the future.

[illegible] to my fellow citizens [illegible] ege of remembering the poor, [illegible] ss and sorrowful. Let us endeavor to merit the recompense of charity and gracious acceptance of our praise. In testimony whereof I have thereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this eighth day of November, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and ninety, and the independence of the United States the one hundred and fifteenth.

[SEAL] BENJAMIN HARRISON.
By the President: JAMES G. BLAINE.
Secretary of State.

BIG WAR SHIPS.

DURING the past week there was launched from the Brooklyn navy yard the ship-of-war Maine, which is the first of the big war vessels to be added to the naval forces of the United States and which is calculated to place our navy on an equality with the modern navies of the European powers.

The Maine is the largest vessel in the navy of this country, sufficiently protected by armor to be available for offense or defense and to cope with the best vessels in the navies of foreign countries.

Just now there is an adverse current of opinion upon the subject of enormous war ships. English critics have pointed out the inherent weakness of these marine monsters, and have called attention to the fact that the huge ordinance with which they are armed is not only extremely complicated and difficult to be handled by any except experts, but it is apt to be structurally weak and liable to become a source of danger to those who are operating it. Big ships imply big guns, and the question is being asked in all seriousness whether the matter of size has not been overdone, and whether smaller vessels are not, on the whole, more effective.

The United States is serving its apprenticeship at navy building. Thus far the work we have turned out would do credit to the master builders of the world, but we must not hasten too rapidly. There is ample time to let other nations make experiments and to profit by there mistakes. It may be that we need a number of big fighting ships like the Maine, but before we go too extensively into that kind of naval construction we should know somewhat more of the actual work accomplished by the enormous ships of the English, French and Italian navies. A European war would be extremely useful to the United States in that aspect of the case, for then we could see the big ships in fighting array and see what they could do.

THE evolution of the Thomas cat is a matter of interest, and the New York Independent has studied the subject and says: It is general'y taught that the domestic cat was first domesticated in Egypt, the Greeks and Romans not possessing it, and that the cat was not known to have lived in Italy earlier than about nine centuries before the Crusades. Rolleston claimed that the domestic cat of the Greeks and Romans was a marten. Virchow, having examined the mummies of Egyptian cats, finds that they had nothing in common with our household pet, and that the Egyptian cat was simply a tame creature, or domesticated savage, like the monkey or gazelle.

THE hand of Jay Gould is the all conquering power in railroad matters at present, and his mandate promises to be the ruling cry in every matter pertaining to railroads. Gradually he has encroached upon the leading companies until now he has them in the hollow of his hand, and can dictate the policy of all of them. No king or potentate of either ancient or modern times has held the dictatorial power that doese Gould at the present time. How the people of the country will take his arrogant fixing of the traffic for all that their is in it remains to be seen.

THE wonderful cures ascribed to Prof. Koch's lymph for injecting into the veins, to cure pulmonary troubles, are to be sciertifically investigated, Dr. Lewis of New York being sent for that purpose. Just at present the craze upon the subject is at its extreme heighth, but if from all the fuss and feathers there comes a medical treatment that will bring relief to the consumptives, mankind will have reason to bless the memory of Koch.

THE sloggers in the land seem to be on top once more. The San Francisco jury practically decides that the glove contests are legal, which decision gives a new lease of life to the business in that city, and an impetus to it all over the country we can now look for an era of brutal prize fighting and the cultivation of the lowest instincts of humanity. Athletic sports are good, and commendable, but prize fighting is brutish and demoralizing.

Ladies call and get a pair of those kid gloves that E. C. Searls is selling at cost.

Have you seen those beautiful cement walls in the cemeteries, put up by Egan & Achison, at half the cost of stone.
