He crossed the plains fi st in 47 what was then called the Southern route to Oregon, coming through the big canyon of Doughlas county before there was even a road blazed, crossing the Canyon creek fifty-seven times and following the channel half the time for a road. He has crossed the plains three times' driving a team each time. The last time, in 1851, he brought with him a young wife to share the hardships of a life in the wilderness. He located the first road in Lane County, following the trails of the red man. Here on the banks of the beautiful Willamette he and his wife located Willamette he and his wife located a home, reared a family of three hose reel; A. W. Coffin, San Frandaughters and five sons.
