The Holiday number of West Shore is an elgant specimen of color printing. Its designs are beautiful and varied, and its literary features are of the highest order, all being suited to the season. Nothing finer has been received from the great eastern illustrated papers. Every journalist in the northwest feels proud that such a publication, which has no rival outside of New York City, should be produced here, and every citizen of the northwest should take an equal pride in it and give it a hearty support. Copies of the holiday number can be purchase of news dealers, or by mail from the publishers at Portland, Oregon. Price 25 cents.

Carroll, John Kuser, John Devain, John Ball, S. F. Flowers, O. L. Martyn, J. A. McMullen, D. J. Wiseman, Chas. Raymond, J. W. Hoag, C. H. Prescott.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

Intentions of the Big Roads Concerning Construction in Oregon.

Many speculations are being made with regard to the intentions of the Union Pacific, as regards western development, now that Jay Gould has assumed control. Of course it is beyond the ken of outsiders to fathom the view of the railroad king—but one may take a common sense and business like view of the situation. It is a fact that there are three transcontinental roads, all powerful in themselves, that are striving for the prospective business of the growing Northwest—the Nordern Pacific, Union and Southern Pacific. In all the speculation and guesses that have hitherto been given to the public, says the Columbian of Astoria, little has been said about the Southern Pacific. The very fact that this line now stops at Portland ought to be sufficient to a close observer to indicate that President Huntington has not given up the idea of building more lines in Oregon. By constructing a line from Ogden to a point on the Southern Pacific system, say Albany, he would compete with the Union Pacific for the Portland trade and incidentally open a rich and valuable country along the route. President Huntington is about the most wide awake railroad man in the United States. He has been the head and front of the Central and Southern Pacific system, and his brain conceived and carried out the project whereby he can ship produce from Portland by way of San Francisco and New Orleans to Newport News, Va., where the Southern Pacific of Kentucky has immense warehouses and elevators—the whole owned and controlled by the Southern Pacific system. He has cast his eye on Astoria by the sea, and if he is sufficiently encouraged, he may determine to build the line from some point on the Southern Pacific in Oregon to Astoria, so as to come to deep water. But builders of railroads, such as Huntington, Gould and Hill are somewhat independent—or more properly speaking, they can afford to wait awhile. It is therefore evident that those sections mostly interested, in order to get the advantages that such lines would give a community, must come forward and offer inducements to those gentlemen, to get their attention.

Dangerous Trestles.

Messrs. Clow and Faull, members of the Oregon state board of railroad commissioners, have recently returned from a tour of inspection of the lines of the Southern Pacific as far south as their jurisdiction extends. They are just now preparing their report, which will be submitted, with recommendations, to Manager R. Koehler, of the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon. The trestles in Jackson county they found to be in a bad condition generally, many of them having been built when the road first went through, eight years ago, since which time little or no repairs have been made to them. The long trestle at Talent they found to be dangerous—probably more so than the one at Latish before the disaster. An examination of this trestle was made at the request of numerous persons residing in the vicinity. Their recommendations to the road in relation to this trestle will urge its immediate reconstruction in a substantial manner. The Harrisburg bridge has also been examined. The bridge was found to be in good condition, but some repairs to the approaches are recommended.—Salem Statesman.

Belligerent Lawyers.

Col. John Kelsay, one of the old war horses of the Oregon bar, and as well known as an Indian agent as an attorney, despite his years seems to be as vigorous as he used to be. According to the Corvallis Gazette a spirited discussion between Rayburn and Kelsay at the special term of circuit court on Wednesday, culminated in a personal encounter upon which Judge Pipes threw a bucket of cold water in the style of a $20 fine on each of the belligerents. No one was struck, but a chair was waved in a threatening way when peacemakers interfered.

The River and Boats.

The Willamette is slowly rising at this city, and the indications are that boats will soon commence running. Messrs Edwards and McDermitt, government inspectors of river steamers have been overhauling the "Three Sisters," "Wm. M. Hoag," and "N. S. Bentley," tied up at the water front at Corvallis. The inspectors were enthusiastic in their praise of the excellent condition of these three steamers and pronounced them O. K. in every particular. The Oregon Pacific river office at this city will be opened in a few days.

Meeting at the G. A. R. Hall.

Those who are willing to take part in an entertainment for the G. A. R. benefit are requested to meet at the G. A. R. hall to-night, to make arrangements for putting on a play to put a relief fund in the Post treasury. Those having copies of the Meteran of 1812 are requested to bring the books with them. The ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps are especially requested to be present and lend their aid.

Fell From a Train.

A brakeman named Meekin slipped and fell from the platform on the north bound overland train on the Southern Pacific shortly after leaving Harrisburg yesterday morning. The train was immediately stopped and the unfortunate brakeman was picked up and taken aboard. He was found to be severely injured, and was taken on to Portland.

THE MYSTERIOUS ANNIE ABBOTT.

The Wonderful Feats of This Electric Bit of Femininity.

Concerning the wonderful feats of the mysterious electric wonder, Annie Abbott, who will give an exhibition of her phenomenal powers in this city on Christmas night, the Oregonian says:

Shortly after 8 o'clock the lady appeared on the stage and was greeted with applause. At the suggestion of her manager a committee of ten from the audience came upon the stage and took seats. On the committee were two lady physicians, and one of them took Mrs. Abbott to an adjoining dressing room, and after making a thorough examination, reported that she had upon her no magnetic or other apparatus; nothing, in fact, but the ordinary feminine apparel.

Mrs. Abbott in appearance is about what she is said to be—slight in figure, though compactly built, with a remarkably well-developed forearm and biceps, and a pleasant, attractive face.

After viewing her remarkable performances, wherein she handles heavy weights, almost as though they were feathers, the wonder is how she does it. It is certainly not by physical strength, for a Hercules could scarcely accomplish what the little woman does She pulls and hauls about the stage a chair in the hands of strong men; she holds a chair, and, seemingly with no exertion, successfully resists the efforts of several men to take it from her; she stands with a billiard cue resting on the inside of her extended thumbs, and seven men fail to push her from her perpendicular position; she lifts seven men piled promiscuously on one chair, and a number of other similar feats are performed with an ease that is surprising.

Withal it is an interesting and at the same time a very amusing exhibition. What the force is that enables so small a personality as Mrs. Abbott to exercise such phenomenal strength puzzles all beholders, and would no doubt prove an interesting subject of investigation to those of a scientific inclination.

LEBANON NEWS.

From the Express.

Snow has fallen to the depth of six inches on the upper Calapooia.

Ten teams and about twenty men find regular employment at the paper mill.

Now that the diphtheria excitement has abated, people need no longer be afraid to come to town.

Dr. Odell, of Sodaville, received a telegram Saturday bearing the sad intelligence that both of his parents were in a very critical condition. The doctor started immediately to the home of the afflicted.

The suit brought by J. R. Kirpatrick of this place against C. C. Calkins of Seattle for commission and damage was decided in favor of the former a few days since J. R. Kilpatrick was awarded his commission and damages.

The people in this part of Linn county, although not opposed to an appropriation for the Columbian Exposition, think that a little timely aid from the State in building wagon roads to our mines on the Santiam and Calapooia would do as much toward advertising and developing our resources as any other means that could be adopted.

At the meeting of the Lebanon Literary Society, Monday evening, the following officers were elected: President, Rev. G. S. Hanleiter; vice-president, F. H. Bahr; secretary, Miss Lulu Westfall. Following the election of officers, the mortgage tax law was discussed, resulting in a victory to the negative. Excellent music was furnished by the cornet band.

A pleasant evening was spent by a large company of young folks at house of C. B. Montague last Monday. As this was the last evening that Charley and wife would spend with their young friend friends previous to their departure for Vancouver, all were bent on making it one of social enjoyment. The company dispersed at a late hour after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Montague success and happiness in their new home.

Course of Lectures.

Rev. Miles Grant, of Boston will give a series of free lectures on "The Prophecies," at the W. C. T. U. hall, commencing Monday evening Dec. 22, and continuing through the week. This lecture will illustrated by a history chart 68 feet long and 7 wide. One special object of these lectures is to present positive proof of the inspiration of the Bible. Mr. Grant brings letters of recommendation from Moody, Earl, Hammond and other evangelists. A number of our citizens who have heard him in Portland, speak of these lectures as remarkably interesting. Every one should him.

A Cruel Joke.

Yesterday afternoon some wicked boys procured a stout piece of wire and after fastening it around the neck of a farmer's dog, tied the other end to a wagon that was standing on First street. Presently an old man came and drove off with the wagon. He did not observe the dog until he had dragged the poor brute nearly a block. The wire was then unfastened and the canine, bleeding from its wounds, was liberated. Owner of the dog was afterward seen looking for the in no peacable mood.

A Fine Number.

THE ALBANY BRIDGE BILL.

The City Will Now Have the Right to Commence the Work.

The people of Albany were glad to read in the HERALD'S dispatches yesterday morning that the Albany bridge bill had passed. It was amended in the house as follows: That the city of Albany shall build and maintain at all times, as accessory works to the bridge, such booms, piers, dykes, guard fences, or similar devices as may be necessary to insure at all times a permanent channel for a sufficient distance above and below the bridge site, and for guiding of rafts, steamboats and other water crafts safely under or through said bridge; that in case the bridge should be constructed, to provide for railroad trains, then all railroad companies desiring to use the bridge shall be entitled to the same equal rights upon the payment of reasonable compensation for such, and equal privileges shall be granted to all telegraph and telephone companies.

This amendment was concurred in by the senate, which leaves the question of building the bridge entirely in the hands of the people of Albany, without any impediment in their way.

The Masquerade Ball.

The following committees have been appointed for the masquerade ball to be given at the opera house on New Year's eve: Reception—J. L. Cowan, T. J. Overman Invitation—David Link, George Richards, P. H. Farrell, William Richards, F. Arnberger. Floor—M. D. Phillips. Thos. Monteith, T. L. Wallace, of Albany; M. L. Borris, of Corvallis, and C. M. Lockwood, of Salem. The ball promises to be a brilliant affair.

Bidding Still Active.

At the regular meeting of the Albany Building and Loan Association held last evening at the parlors of the Bank of Oregon, two loans were effected, one of $900 on 65 months interest in advance, and one of $600 on 64 months interest in advance. This indicates quite a lively state of building operations here.

FINE DRESSED CHICKENS ONLY 25c. AT MUELLER & GARRETT'S

Sale of Dolls.

The ladies of the United Presbyterian church have some dolls hats, bonnets, bedsteads, under wear, etc., left over from the Fair, which they will sell on Saturday next at the W. C. T. U. hall. As the ladies do not wish to have anything left over, these things will be sold at reduced rates. Any one wanting well dressed doll for Christmas can get it at a bargain. There is yet quite a variety of dolls and all be disposed of at the lowest prices. Doors open at 10 a. m. and during the day Dec. 20.

COMMITTEE.

Christmas Candies.

Parker Bros. have just received a fine assortment of Christmas candies and holiday confections of every description. They did not go to Portland to order their goods but purchased direct of the factory's representative, and thus saved expense, and they will sell Christmas candies cheaper than any house in the city.

Boots and Shoes.

Purchasers of Boots and Shoes bear in mind that big advertisements and offers of big discounts do not always mean best values. You will have to pay some one a profit as no one can do business without exception. The question is who can sell you the best goods for the least money.

SAMUEL E. YOUNG.

About Holiday Goods.

"Useful as well as ornamental" is the kind of Christmas presents to be found at T. L. Wallace & Co.'s, such as gents' fine lyste thread and kid gloves, silk and fine linen handkerchiefs, mufflers, silk suspenders, fine neck wear, full dress white shirts, fancy negligee cashmere and silk shirts, silk and alpaca umbrellas, with fine gold or silver handles, fine plush velvet slippers as a fine ready-to-put-on tailor made suit or overcoat for men, boys and children, valises, hand-grips or a fine silk hat, and hundreds of other valuable things too numerous to mention.

How Severe Colds Are Broken Up in Montana.

From the Virginia City, Mont. Madisonian.

When we find a medicine we know to possess genuine merit we consider it a duty, and we take pleasure in telling the public what it is. Such a medicine we found Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, last winter, when la grippe was prevailing. We are satisfied that we warded off several attacks that were threatening by the use of this syrup, and we have since relieved, in a few hours, severe colds, add in the course of two or three days, entirely broken them up by its use as have several of our friends whom we have recommend it. It is all that it is represented to be by the manufacturers. If you have a cough and want to stop it, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will do the work. For sale by Foshay & Mason.

The Reason Why.

Why is it that Klein Bros. can afford to sell boots and shoes so reasonable? Because they are both practical shoe makers and make their expenses by working on the shoe bench, and any boot or shoe you buy of them, no matter what kind it is, man, woman or childs, that rip, run over or the sole rips loose, they repair them for you free of charge, and as they do all the work themselves, they don't charge you 25 to 50 cents a pair extra for a warrant to pay some shoemaker to repair them for you. They also make a specialty of repairing rubber boots.
