An Encouraging Outlook.

Farmers in this vicinity, as a rule, are in good spirits, owing to the excellent condition of their fall grain. Those who plowed as early as the condition of soil would permit and sowed their fall grain, now have green fields and the grain is growing as fast as is desired. They do not look for freezing weather this winter to kill the grain, and feel assured of a bounteous harvest. Grass is fresh and green but it is not growing fast.

The Street Railway.

A representative of the great Thompson & Huston electric railway company, is in the city, and has had an interview with the Albany street railway company about the adoption of an electric system in this city. Whether or not this will be done has not been determined, but it is certain that the company's line will be extended this season.

The Sunday Fine Matter.

The city of Pendleton is wrestling with the Sunday question. The East Oregonian says: For a time in Pendleton, after the saloon men made a "righteous kick" on the Sunday fine question, cigar-store keepers, and all classes of tradesmen not exempted be the state law, were compelled to pay a fine of $7 to the city for doing business on Sunday. After this was kept up until there was danger that the city might lose several small tradesmen who became disgusted, and were on the point of removing to some more liberal town, where blue laws did not prevail, the fines were dropped except in the case of saloon men, who, if they kept open paid their $7 every Sunday. Now, the new marshal and recorder deem it their duty, and they are right in this particular, to enforce the Sunday law ordinance to the letter. The marshal has taken pains to notify business men whom it covers in order that they may close next Sunday if they wish. The ordinance is wrong, but as long as it stands it should be enforced. Its enforcement will quickly lead to some new and better city legislation on the subject or the gradual depopulation of the town. If revenue is needed, the different classes of business men should be graded, and pay license in proportion to the extent and nature of their business.

By Request.

McPherson Post No. 5, G. A. R. assisted by the best local talent will reproduce at the opera house on Friday evening Jan 16, 1891, the thrilling military drama, "The Veteran of 1812," or, "Kesiah and the Scout." It is pronounced by competent judges to be one of the best plays ever produced on the amateur's stage. Tickets on sale at Will & Link's music store. Admission, reserved seats, 50 cents, gallery, 25 cents; doors open at 7:15; curtain at 8 promptly. The entire proceeds will go into the relief fund.

Change in Business.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Swedish Ladies Concert at the Opera House Saturday Evening.

Concerning the Swedish Ladies Concert Co., which will appear at the opera house in this city on Saturday evening, the Oregonian, which is not given to flattering companies that are undeserving, says:

The large and enthusiastic audience that filled the Marquam Grand opera house last evening, in spite of the downpouring rain, to listen to the first concert of the National Swedish Ladies' Concert company, was a flattering tribute to the time for lifting the curtain, and the event fully justified the expectations of the vast audience. As was to be expected a large percentage of our Scandinavian citizens, with their families, were present, and as a number of the selections rendered were given in the Swedish tongue, the concert, to them was like a breath from their native land. It was in every way a decidely unique entertainment. Here were eight young ladies, each arrayed in the peasant garb of the Northland, with voices as fresh as the morning dew and full of melody, ranging from a high, clear, pure soprano to, one might almost say, a basso contante, singing in perfect time and smoothly moving rhymth, the song of their native land together with other tuneful members. To say that the concert was a success is but stating it mildly. Every number was encored, some of them twice and three times.

The various quartettes and octettes were beautifully sung, "Breezes of the Night" being especially well rendered. The star of the performance last night, however, was the contralto, Miss E. Bruce. For the first number she sang a lively Offenbach, "C'est l'Espagne," revealing a marvelously clear deep toned, musical organ, highly cultivated and full of expression. Enthusiastically recalled, she sang, "In Old Madrid" in superb style, and the audience insisting upon hearing her again, she responded by rendering the difficult song "Last Night."

Right of Way by a Ruse.

The Statesman says that at Silverton Sunday the Oregonian railway—formerly the narrow gauge—succeeded in widening its sidetrack which runs down town over Walter street. When the Oregonian lines proper were being widened the citizens of Silverton and the city fathers opposed the railway company in its endeavors to widen the sidetrack, and it has been of no use since the rolling stock was changed. The company had to get down Walter street and to the mill in some way, and every time they started to change the gauge the city stopped them, saying no right of way had been granted for a standard gauge track there. But the company was not to be defeated, so bright and early Sunday morning they put a force of about fifty men on and widened the threefourths of a mile of road, leading from the main line down Walter street to the mill, before the citizens of Silverton knew what they were about or had an opportunity to interfer. It is claimed the right of way as never granted the company, by either city or county, for the laying of its ... on this street, ... may be expected, as the railway has had peaceful possession for so many years.

A Clever Beggar.

A new game has been worked in Eugene the past week. A man strongly resembling a tramp has called on some of the business men and presented them ... bronzed horseshoe. He then ... plains that he ... of their residence and thought he would bronze it and present it to them for luck. After the shoe is received with thanks he explains that he is a painter and unfortunately is out of money and would like a present of 25 or 50 cents.

LETTER FROM REV. I. D. DRIVER.

He May Meet Rev. Miles Grant in Debate in This City.

Several days ago some of the friends of Rev. Miles Grant, who has been lecturing in this city, sent to Rev. I. D. Driver, at Portland, a formal challenge to meet Mr. Grant in debate in Albany on the question of "Conditional Immortality of the Soul."

Mr. Alvin Carothers has received the following letter from Mr. Driver:

PORTLAND, Dec. 27, 1890.

DEAR SIR:—When I was a pastor or presiding elder, it was my business to meet all "false doctrines," and I did this as it was a duty I agreed to perform. Now I have no charge, and all my income comes from my lectures. I commence a course here to-morrow to continue through next month, which will absorb my time and attention. It is the duty of the shepherd to defend the sheep from the wolves, as much as to feed them. This is the pastors' duty, for which they are paid. With suitable remuneration I will meet any man. Yours in haste,

I. D. DRIVER.

Mr. Carothers has since written to Rev. Mr. Driver, offering to pay him $25 and expenses, if he would come up. If the reverend gentleman does not consider this remuneration too infinitessimally microscopic, he may accept the challenge. Mr. Grant wants to undertake to demonstrate that the soul remains dormant after death until the resurrection morn, while Mr. Driver would labor to prove the immortality of the soul and to show that it never loses its entity, but continues its active existence in the unseen world, immediately after death, which is the general orthodox belief.

What Did the Preacher Think?

Over in Jersey City there is a very bright little girl of 6 years, whose father is a Presbyterian, with an occasional fondness for the bottle. They live a few doors from the church. A few Sundays ago the parents went to the communion service, and baby was alone to escape the long ceremony. It was a warm day, and "Coronation," the usual closing hymn, floated out through the open windows. The good deacon took the pastor home to dine with him. When grace had been said little Bessie remarked:

"I knew you was comin' home papa?"

"How did you know, little one?"

"Cause I heard the song."

"What song?" asked the preacher.

"Oh, you know: the one where you say 'Bring forth the royal demijohn.'"—New York Sun.

The men of this vicinity need not be jealous because their wives talk so constantly about Matthews and Washburn. Its not their good looks the ladies are talking about, it is the good qualites of the cook and heating stoves they sell. Every one seems to be delighted when they buy from M. and W.

If Wilcox does not make a picture that pleases you, you need look no further.

MARRIED.

ACHISON—LEAR—At the residence of the bride's parents in this city, on Jan. 8, 1891, by Rev. F. S. Prichard Mr. E. W. Achison and Miss Sarah Lear.

The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. After partaking of an enjoyable lunch the happy pair left on the noon train to enjoy a wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Achison expect to return about Feb. 14 and will make Albany their home. They have the good wishes of a wide circle of friends.
