VERY LIKE A WAR.

Dispatches received at Chicago from Pine Ridge, S. D., say that the number of hostile Indians now away from the agency is estimated at 3000.

This looks very much like an Indian war in real earnest. Instead of being an affair of detached bands, as appeared at first, it now looks as though the entire Sioux nation were on the warpath and determined to fight in spite of any obstacles and against any odds.

It is useless for the Indian-lovers of the East to say that this outbreak is due to the dishonesty of Indian agents in their dealings with the Sioux. There doubtless have been individual cases of fraud practiced on the Indians, but the war is due to the fact that the Sioux have succeeded in arming themselves with rifles and ammunition of the most approved modern type and believe themselves strong enough to cope with any force that the government can send against them in the dead of winter. It is due to the nomadic Indian who is as untamable as the rattlesnake or the grizzly bear that he conforms to the ways of the whites only when he is compelled to, and that he cherishes a bitter hatred to the dominant race.

Of the outcome of the war there can be no question, but the seeds of peace will have to be sown on fields watered with the blood of many a white man. There will be no Indians of the Sioux nation left unless some shall make their escape into Canada, but the work of extermination will be a bloody and a costly one. The Indians will fight to the death, as, indeed, they must do. They are not cowards, nor are they unskilled in the use of arms. They are fighting on the defensive, in a country they know thoroughly well, and the consequence must be that the war will be no holiday excursion but hard and bitter work.

THE differences between matters in this country and in some of the old monarchies of Europe, are illustrated in the story told in the Berlin dispatch printed recently which does not aggregate the condition of the German private soldier. He may be insulted every day by his officers, yet he can't resent this treatment nor can he appeal to any tribunal for redress of his grievances. If, when he has served his term, he attempts to get satisfaction on what is cynically termed the field of honor, he is apt to suffer the full penalty of the law, which is never enforced against a titled offender. It isn't strange, therefore, that young Germans who are liable to to military duty should find this country, where titles carry small weight and military service is unknown, a mighty pleasant place of residence.

THERE are certain things in the assessment and taxation business for Oregon, that all parties are agreed upon as being necessary and proper, one among the doing of which is the election of precinct assessors. Why cannot the legislators, who assemble at Salem on Monday, select these special points upon which there is no doubt of the sentiment of the people, and no disagreement by any body, and make amendments to the present law to that extent, and then use up the extra ability of the members in discussing the points upon which there is disagreement and arrive at some conclusion upon them if possible, but not endanger all amendments by hanging them upon the success of disputed ones.

HYPNOTISM is hereafter to be one of the regular pleas in excuse for all of the crimes in the calander. Gabrielle Bompard, the French murderess commenced the fashion, and it is being followed up by defaulting bank cashiers, and will be the plea of the majority of the fraternity who seek a scape goat upon which to place their misdeeds.

CONVENING OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The meeting of the Oregon Legislature in the State Capital at Salem, on Monday, will witness the gathering together of the representative men of the state; men of marked ability and experience being among the number, and from them is expected much benefit to our growing commonwealth.

There are questions of deep importance to be acted upon, and there is need to be as wise as serpents, if not as harmless as doves, to fully appreciate and act upon them. Without doubt the members have been thoroughly preparing themselves for the fray.

Among the questions that will come up for decisive action, is the amendment or change in the assessment laws; the question of appropriating a liberal sum for Oregon's representation at the World's Fair, the modification of the railroad commission law, the question of maintaining mortgage tax and usury laws, the electing a new United States senator, besides the usual volume of bills of local importance. If the members of the fifteenth biennial session of the Oregon legislature settles these questions in a manner satisfactory to the public they will have done well. As these questions come up the HERALD will take part in the discussion and will endeavor to offer some good reasons for needed legislation in the direction mentioned.

Those desiring to receive the news of the legislature along with the other principal news of the world, fresh every morning, should send in their orders for the HERALD. Those who subscribe now will receive all the news of the legislative session. Send in your orders.
