TRY IT AND JUDGE IT BY ITS ACTUAL WORK.

In the hasty partisan condemnation of the McKinley tariff measure, by the opponents who inveighed so loudly against it and with such apparent success, no fair consideration was given. The only fairness in the matter would be to give time for actual working of the law before passing judgment. This is now being demonstrated and we quote from a Chronicle editorial some of the results:

Recently the announcement was made that the Sheffield manufacturers of cutlery were preparing to reduce the wages of their workmen in consequence of the decline in their American trade caused by the new tariff. Now it was stated that the wages of American gold beaters in New York have been advanced 20 per cent. since the McKinley bill, that cigar-makers received $2 more per 10,000 for cigars made by them, and that, in general, the wages of journeyman cigar makers in New York are 28 per cent higher than they were last summer, while the greatest prosperity is promised for the trade during the coming season.

The officers of the labor unions are not in any doubt as to the cause of the increase in wages. The president of the Gold Beaters' Union of New York says in so many words that the workmen could not get the increase in wages which they asked until the new tariff law went into effect, and the secretary of one of the largest of the cigar-makers' unions makes the same statement, in effect.

It should be observed here, however, that intelligent protectionists do not assert that a high tariff operates uniformly and directly to raise wages. They know that the all-prevading law of supply and demand cannot be set aside or overshadowed by any fiscal laws or regulations; but they do contend, and the free traders have never been able to meet the assertion, that under the protective system manufactures of all kinds are aided and encouraged; that new avenues of industry are opened; that the demand for labor is increased, and that consequently the standard of wages must be maintained at a higher level than in countries where unrestricted competition is permitted and even encouraged.

Because the benefits of protection are so often indirect was the reason that the recent attack on the McKinley bill succeeded so well in the East. There was not time between the 1st of October and the 5th of November for the new law to demonstrate its excellence and its fitness to our conditions. It operated something as a mustard plaster might on a person who knew nothing of the remedy. At first there is an intense irritation and a feeling of uneasiness and discomfort; but before long the remedy begins to relieve the congestion, and then the patient is glad that that he did not follow his first impulse and strip it off when it began to burn and tingle. We are just beginning to feel the beneficial effects of the new law, and the cases cited are only a sample of the hard nuts which the free traders will have to crack between now and 1892.

THE English report that the want and distress in Ireland had been relieved and was a thing of the past, seems to have been somewhat premature, for now comes the information that in Galway hundreds of children are obliged to remain away from school because they are absolutely without clothing, and have to stay in the cabins crouching over the fire to keep warm. This looks as though the boasting of English relief being so effectual was merely a boast without any foundation.

OTHER institutions beside charity fairs, and religious institutions who need money, are dipping into the lottery, or raffle business to woo the necessary funds into their coffers. It is now said that the Panama Canal Company is going to try the lottery scheme to obtain money for the prosecution of its work on the canal. The committee in charge proposes a system of annual lotteries, to be continued until the canal is completed. From present indications the system would be carried on in perpetuity.

THE plan of utilizing the commercial travelers as agents of the World's Fair is an excellent one. The drummer goes everywhere and he is usually regarded as an oracle in the remote country places, where he has more direct influence than the newspaper. If the drummer is able to see any profit in it for himself he will boom the fair more thoroughly than anyone else.

THE baby King of Spain starts out well by causing the death of his nurse before he has cut his milk teeth. If he had been born four hundred years earlier this would probably have been regarded as a good omen of his prowess as a warrior, but in these degenerate days the incident will be variously interpreted by the superstitious.

The Brooklyn Bridge.

One of the loveliest scenes to be seen in New York city is at the Brooklyn bridge every morning and evening, thousands of people riding across on cable cars, which run at intervals of five minutes. The same can be seen at Mueller & Garrett's cash grocery. People can be seen going in and out of their place all day long with pleased contenances because there is the place to get just what you want at the lowest cash figures.
