THE COUNTY DIVISION.

The demand of the people of the "Forks of the Santiam" for a division of the county is not a question to be lightly considered. An overwhelming majority there demand a division. It is perhaps a national desire on their part, and it is the best division of the county that could be made.

Many of the leading citizens of Albany are willing for the division to be made, and since nearly all the voters in the "Forks" have signed the petition asking for the proposed division, it cannot consistently be refused and the legislature will no doubt take this fact into consideration.

If the question should be submitted to a vote of the people of Albany county the proposition would probably carry. The people of this city are inclined to consider the demand for a division of the county in a spirit of fairness, and a majority of the voters of Albany would not oppose it.

A remonstrance is being circulated against the proposed division, but the fact remains that nearly 700 out of the 750 voters in the "Forks of the Santiam" have signed the petition for a division. They are the people most affected, and their wishes should be law.

The threat made by some of the southern states to boycott the Columbian World's Fair, if certain legislation is not carried on to their notion, is very peculiar in its nature. It smacks too much of the ancient last bravado, which never had any real, practical application. The Chronicle truthfully says that the absence of exhibits from the states named from the World's Fair would not injure the exhibition materially, but the producers and business men living within their boundaries would suffer.

GOVERNOR PENROVER says he does not aspire to be placed on the democratic ticket for president, but would prefer to enter this race for United States senator from Oregon. His presidential boom, however, has assumed such proportions that he is already considered in the East as one of the available candidates in the event of the failure of Cleveland's selection.

The American hog was defeated in the German Reichstag by a majority of thirty, and will hereafter remain excluded from that pork-loving empire. The American papers which make the death of an occasional hog the basis for sensational articles about widespread disease, may be thanked for this German dislike of our pork.

EVIDENTLY the Corrupt Practices act of England is a far reaching measure if it defines a promise of a candidate to employ union men only as bribery. If this view of the act is maintained there will not be much show for an eight-hour movement, for no doubt it would be held that to promise a man shorter hours of labor would be a bribe. But how about the promises made to the other classes—the land-owners, for instance—will they be construed into violations of the Corrupt Practices act? The English will have to take a much more liberal view of the right of suffragists to demand and of candidates to promise than they do at present if they wish to secure a perfect representative form of government.

In Evanston, Ill., a co-operative housekeeping scheme was put into operation. But somehow it failed to meet the expectation of its originators, and the lawyers are picking over its assets and liabilities to ascertain how many substantial crumbs they can gobble up. Nationalistic theories are fine, when spun out to listen to, but practical application seems to destroy them completely.

Chicago is battling with the question of a smoky atmosphere with the intention of placing a quietus upon the chimneys that vomit out the sooty ingredients by making them wear smoke consumers. An inspector sits upon a commanding pinnacle and reports all offenders.

The proposition to divide Linn county is not a political question. The county would be about evenly divided politically should the division be made, and both parties would then be forced into putting their best men forward. It might result beneficially to all parties.
