Fox, Misses Isabel Senders, Amelia Senders, Flo Lewis, Alice Brenner, Sarah Sternberg, Kate Schlosser, Belle Senders, Messrs I. Fox, C. Casey, D. J. DuBrulle, J. Callahan, A. Allen, M. Senders, B. Magers, A. Baumgart, A. Boenicke.

The Albany & Astoria Railroad.

The people will presently begin to see that the Albany & Astoria Railway Co., while it indulges in no idle talk, is going steadily forward with its plans for the construction of the road from Albany to the city by the sea. Our dispatches this morning bring the news that the United States senate has passed a bill authorizing the company to bridge the Willamette river at this city and to construct other bridges and establish them as post roads, which means to make it a mail route. The Oregon legislature has also passed a similar bill. Albany's railroad outlook is assuming healthy proportions.

Still Missing.

The dispatch received from Salem relating to the finding of young Tucker, the hunter who was lost in the mountains above Gatesville, proves to have been a mistake. Authentic information was received in this city last evening that the unfortunate young man is still missing, and that his friends have given him up for lost. There is about four feet of snow in the mountains up there and the search has been abandoned for the present. Some people believe that he has been the victim of foul play and say that they believe when he is found, if at all, it will be with a bullet in his head, but no grounds are assigned for this belief.

Lost His Mind.

A religious revival has been in progsess at Heppner of late, and among those who were converted was an elderly pioneer settler, who has been a little ahead of civilization along the frontier nearly all his life. The effect has been disastrous, as the old man came riding into Heppner a day or two since, telling the citizens that he had left his farm forever, and was going to preach the gospel. He imagines that he is the prophet Elijah.

INTERVIEW WITH D. B. MONTEITH

He Returns from the East and Talks About Immigration and the Oregon Pacific Railroad.

Mr. D. B. Monteith returned yesterday from a two month's trip through the East. He was seen on his return by a HERALD reporter who interrogated him as to the probable immigration to Oregon during the spring and summer of 1891, and what the people of the East say and think of Oregon. Mr. Monteith went to New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, and in fact all over the East, and returned through New Mexico and the southern route via San Francisco, which enabled him to obtain authentic information about immigration to Oregon.

"I saw and talked with many people about Oregon," he said, "and I answered many inquiries concerning the Willamette Valley. The stringency in the money market has caused dull times throughout the East, and men of small means cannot now sell out. Hundreds of them are waiting until they can sell to come to Oregon. My advice was that men without means would not find fortunes awaiting them here, but that as a field for profitable investment of capital no country offered such inducements as the Willamette Valley, both in agricultural pursuits and manufacturing industries as well as mining in the districts adjoining. The bulk of the immigration this year will be men of means who are coming west to find a more profitable field of investment. I saw many men who visited this state last summer and are now arranging to locate here. After seeing Oregon they said they were only sorry that they had not come before.

"I think the Oregon legislature has made a mistake," he said, "in not appropriating more than $50,000 for an exhibit at the World's Fair. The states of the union will all be represented with magnificent displays, and her matchless resources ought to have a creditable exhibit, enough at least to give the state her proper rank among the progressive Pacific Coast states at the big exposition."

"Did you see Col. Hogg, while in New York," was asked, "and did he give you any information about the Oregon Pacific railroad?"

"Yes, I saw him, and talked with him about the Oregon Pacific, but the conversation was of a confidential nature, and I am not at liberty to make public what he said about the road.

"Did he give you any encouraging news about the resumption of work on the road this summer?"

"Do not quote me as saying anything about what Col. Hogg said, for I am not at liberty to do so.

Mr Hogg did not say when he expected to visit Oregon. I think the outlook for the road is very favorable, and the work will go forward in good time. I have heard that the Oregon Pacific contractors say that they have offers to commence work again this spring, but I do not know whether it is idle talk or not. The company has commenced the work of putting the road in thorough repair from Albany to the eastern end of the track, which looks very much as it work was to be resumed this season."

"Then you think that work on the road will move forward this year," he asked.

"I should hope so," was the reply.

"Did you get caught in any of the Eastern blizzards?"

"The coldest weather I found was at Kansas City, where the thermometer stood ten degrees below zero. It made an Oregonian button up his overcoat and keep close to the stove."

"Yes. I am glad to get home. Oregon is a great state—the best of them all, and the people of the East are just beginning to find it out. The result will not be unprofitable to this state, as will be witnessed in the next few years in her growth and prosperity and the development of her unlimited resources."

BONAFIDE CLEARANCE SALE.

At the Ladies Bazar—All Goods Will Be Sold.

Regardless of cost for the next thirty days, to make room for our large new spring stock. Don't miss this opportunity to secure bargains.

On Their Mettle.

The horsemen, all over the country, appear to be making efforts to put their steeds into the the best condition for the seasons trial of speeds and quality.

The Eugene Register says that twenty horses, mostly trotters, will be in training on Dr. Harris' track west of town the coming summer. Dr. Harris will have four or five, Thos. Chappel a couple, Geo. Gill, one, Tom Craig one, and Dr. Watters. E. C. Smith and M. McDaniels, of Creswell, will probably have several in training there. W. A. Mack, of Salem, expects to come up with a couple and will train for others. As soon as the weather will permit the track will be put in first class condition and training will commence early in the spring. A Montana trainer is now here on trial.

A Narrow Gauge Wreck.

Wednesday afternoon there was another train wreck on the old narrow gauge. This time it was just north of Scio. The rails spread and threw four cars of a mixed passenger and freight train off the track. No one was injured in the accident, and after a delay of three or four hours the train was righted and proceeded on to Woodburn. Wrecks of this description are less numerous than formerly, the company having for several weeks had its construction gang repairing the road in its weakest places.

A DESERVING MEASURE.

One of the State's Attractions Which Should be Improved.

An effort is being made by the citizens of Sodaville, assisted by prominent men in other portions of the state, to secure a reconsideration of the vote by which the bill to appropriate $5000 for the improvement of the soda springs at that place was lost.

The appropriation asked for was small, and in view of the free and general use of these springs by people from all parts of the state, it is a shame that it should be voted down. If there is any good reason why the delegation from Linn county will not to a man support this measure, the people of the county would like to know why. If they had all given it their cordial support the measure would have passed in the first place. A bill for public improvements of this kind ought certainly be supported at home, and when the demand for a very moderate appropriation for the improvement of this public health resort is met by the approval of the people everywhere, there ought to be no opposition to it in the legislature.

It is not a large weighty matter. It is only for an appropriation of a very small sum, much less than has been given for purposes not so deserving. Other states, which have public health resorts, take a pride in improving them, to make them a part of the state's attractions, instead of belittling them, as has been done in the case of the Sodaville bill in the legislature. It is to be hoped the members will correct the petty wrong they have done in this matter, and grant the appropriation asked for.

COUNTY PRINTING.

The Proceedings of the Court Should be Published in the Newspapers.

A strong sentiment has grown up all over the state in favor of the county printing bill, introduced by Representative Armstrong of Marion county. It is one of the two bills presented to the legislature by the State Press Ass'n and favorably reported by the house committee on printing. It provides that one newspaper in each county shall publish the orders and claims allowed by the county court of each county. The price fixed is a long one, fifty cents per square of brevier or its equivalent. As the State Press Ass'n is composed of newspapers of all parties, this is a strictly non-partisan one, and while it renders any monopoly or favoritism by the county court impossible, it guarantees to each publisher the right to prove his circulation and prevent any fraud or discrimination. In counties having over ten thousand population two papers may be selected in like manner, upon a showing of circulation.

There is no avenue of tax-eating and leakage of revenues equal to the county court. Its disbursements surpass all other taxes combined. At an expense of ½ to ¾ of one per cent this bill would bring each item of allowance by the county court under the immediate scrutiny of every taxpayer. This publicity will save the payment of many padded bills that are now presented against counties, expecting that they will be cut down and even then they are still often larger than they should be.—Salem Journal.

HARRISBURG NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McNeil went down to Halsey Monday to visit friends.

May & Senders shipped 5,000 bushels of wheat to Portland the first of the week.

Messrs. Scott, Parker & Canter are erecting a beautiful little residence for A. L. Sommer.

Ike Hyman, of San Francisco, purchased a lot from the Harrisburg Land Co. last week.

Dan. W. Kamp, special agent of the State Insurance Co., Salem, was in the city on business the first of the week.

Quinzeyer & Briggs were loading 10,000 bushels of wheat on board the cars last Monday. They shipped to Portland.

We are told that snodgrass Bros., have about filled a contract for 500 head of cattle and they will ship the same to Polk county in the near future.

The first car load of agricultural implements for the new store of agricultural implements arrived last week, and the manager, Mr. Ling, is now busy putting things in shape. A second car load of goods will arrive in a few days, when this new stock will be the largest of the kind ever brought to Harrisburg. We bespeak Mr. Ling a large trade.—Junction Pilot.

The Irrigation Project.

The Pendleton East Oregonian thinks that the irrigation project is daily assuming a more definite shape, and that it will be a "go" there is now little question. The giving right-of-way for the ditch across the reservation passed congress, which was the first and most important desideratum to be obtained. All the preliminary work has been finished, except gauging the water supply afforded by the Umatilla, which is now in progress and will be during the winter. Surveyor Adams says that the result of his tests has so far been very satisfactory and that there is no doubt that a sufficient supply of water can be obtained. The company will soon be ready to negotiate with farmers and enter into contracts for furnishing water. In fact, everything indicates that the work of constructing the ditch will be commenced in earnest early next spring.

Have you seen those beautiful cement walls in the cemeteries, put up by Egan & Achison, at half the cost of stone.

YAQUINA BAY NOTES.

How the Government Work on the Jetties is Progressing Shipping News

Prof. Rousseau, of Halsey, and B. C. Camp, of Salem, took the steamer for San Francisco.

Willard Hunsaker and J. Bower have bought out the business of John Kincaid for the consideration of $600.

The steam schooner Kate and Ann, put up here, is lying at this place preparing for a sealing expedition to Alaska in the spring.

Rev. F. T. Howell, of Salem, passed through here last Saturday on his way to Waldport, where he is assisting Rev. M. O. Brink.

The Oregon Development company has appointed Captain Wheeler, captain, and Captain Badage mate of their tug here. It is the universal opinion that they have made a good choice.

Taking into consideration the preparations being made for, and the prospects of crowds of pleasure seekers, the government works, and the work on the railroad, there will be lively times here this summer.

Last Saturday evening Charles Walker, of Scottsburg, walked off the sidewalks in front of Peck & Russell's store, falling about twelve feet. A sprained back is the result. There has since been a railing put up along there.

The steam schooner Mischief constructed here, owned by Winant & Buckley, and plying between this place and other points along the coast, is laid up here for repairs. She will be on the route again as soon as repaired.

Engineer C. A. Gyell is preparing to push the government works in the spring, when he will put on a large force of men. He now has about fifteen men at work on the jetty and about forty-five at the new quarry, under the superintendence of Joe Dougherty.

The steam schooner George H. Chance, built at this place and owned by the Deep Sea Fishing Co., of Portland, and plying between Portland and Coos Bay touched here last Tuesday to take passengers and freight en route from the Willamette valley to points between here and Coos Bay.

Curative Properties of Hops.

Are we not told that boys "are employed to communicate to beer its aromatic bitter?" So, at least, it should be. It is rather a suggestive fact, however, that though the consumption of beer and ale is rather on the increase than otherwise, the area of land under hops and the annual yield are on the decrease. Product of the hop, however, and the hop as cured for brewing purposes, are rather largely employed in medicine as a tonic, one need only ask any hop-picker, and he will at once learn that "in the districts where the plant is cultivated" the hopping "is looked forward to as a cure for many ordinary complaints, the air being full of the aroma of the hop; and the hands of the picker, which, whether he be a Pharisee or not, he has little opportunity of washing before meat, are so begrimed with the pollen, farina, or lupulin of the hop, commonly called "gold dust," from its resemblance to that precious metal, that a good deal of it is necessarily swallowed with the food, for which the healthy employment gives an eager appetite. The medical effects of beer especially old ale, taken hot on going to bed, are well known. If ginger and sugar are added a cold may in this way be "sweated" out.—All the Year Round.

The Hog Law.

Prosecuting Attorney Condon informs the Eugene Register that by a recent decision of the supreme court it is decided that the hog law, which prohibits hogs running at large, is valid. The law reads that on all such questions which are special issues at regular elections a majority of the votes cast is required to make it a law. The hog law question did not receive a majority of all the votes cast, but did receive a majority of the votes cast on that question. The supreme court has decided that the meaning of the law is a majority of the votes on the special issue is all that is necessary, and not a majority of all the votes cast at that election.

Coming Up the River.

The government snagboat, Corvallis, has started for the Upper Willamette, under command of Captain Miles Bell. Major Handbury has instructed Captain Bell to go as far up as Harrisburg, removing all the worst snags and clearing a passage for boats, and then to return, more thoroughly cleaning the channel on his way down. She will probably reach this city to-day.
