Appropriate And Well Done. Among one of the most pleasant features of the presidential reception in this city was the attendance of the agricultural college students in their military uniforms and with their gentlemanly and military bearing creating a very favorable opinion of the thorough discipline of that school and their home training. The young ladies from the school, also presented, by their modest behavior and handsomely appearance reflected credit alike upon the institution, and their home training. After the reception the students were marched to the city and given an opportunity of visiting friends and relatives, and looking around before they returned to Corvallis by special train at 9:30 A. M. The agricultural college was quite prominent in the reception. The president was presented with a written address from the board of regents, and with handsome floral tributes from the green house, and was also presented with a copy of the publication, catalogue, Bulletin etc. of the college.

A CORDIAL WELCOME.

President Harrison's Early Morning Reception.

A GREAT THROG OF PEOPLE.

Mayor Cowan's Address of Welcome—The President's Brief Speech—Beautiful Floral Tributes.

Notwithstanding the steady downpour of rain yesterday morning not less 5,000 people had assembled at the Southern Pacific depot to welcome President Harrison and party to Albany, and although their stay was brief the nation's chief executive was given a hearty and pleasant reception.

The mayor and city officers, Board of Trade, citizen's committee, the band and citizens generally were present. At 7:30 a special train brought a number of people from Lebanon and a few minutes later several hundred people and the students from the state agricultural college at Corvallis, 125 strong, came over on a special train to pay their respects to the president. The young ladies were under the charge of Miss Snell, while Prof. J. D. Letcher commanded the battalion of cadets. The students in uniform were drawn up in line to receive the president with the military honor due his exalted rank and station.

At 7:55 the pilot train bearing the legislative committee and several state officers (not including the governor) arrived, and five minutes later the presidential train came to a stop at the platform. The band played "Hail Columbia," and ceased playing as the train came to a halt. Mayor Cowan, who had stepped upon the platform of the rear coach, where President Harrison, Secretary Rusk, and Postmaster-General Wanamaker, were standing, then said:

MAYOR COWAN'S ADDRESS.

MR. PRESIDENT: As the representative of these people, I am glad of the opportunity to bid you welcome to our fair western city, whose population does not exceed seven thousand, and extend to you all the greeting, and hospitality that your limited stay will permit. We sincerely regret that the arranged railroad schedule did not allow you more than five minutes in which to view the Kansas City of Oregon, and become acquainted with her energetic citizens. We could not of course hope to exhibit to you the grandeur so recently witnessed in our fair sister state to the south, but Mr. President, we could show you beautiful homes where thrift, contentment and patriotism reign. But without further words, I beg to present to you, these American citizens, who are loyal to their rulers, and devoted to their flag.

MR. PRESIDENT:

As the representative of these people, I am glad of the opportunity to bid you welcome to our fair western city, whose population does not exceed seven thousand, and extend to you all the greeting, and hospitality that your limited stay will permit. We sincerely regret that the arranged railroad schedule did not allow you more than five minutes in which to view the Kansas City of Oregon, and become acquainted with her energetic citizens. We could not of course hope to exhibit to you the grandeur so recently witnessed in our fair sister state to the south, but Mr. President, we could show you beautiful homes where thrift, contentment and patriotism reign. But without further words, I beg to present to you, these American citizens, who are loyal to their rulers, and devoted to their flag.

MR. PRESIDENT:

"My Fellow Citizens: It gives me pleasure to see you, and to have the testimony of your presence here this wet morning to the interest you take in this little party of strangers that are passing only for a moment in your midst. We do not need any assurance, as we look over an American audience like this, that upon some things, at least, we are of one mind. One of these things is that we have a union indissoluble; that we have a flag we all honor and that shall suffer no dishonor from any quarter. While I regret the inclemency of the morning, I have been thinking that after all that there was a sort of instructive moral force in the uncertainty of the weather, which our friends in Southern California do not enjoy. How can a boy or young woman be well trained in self-denial and resignation who does not know what it is to have a picnic or picnic dress spoiled by a shower, or some fishing excursion by a storm? I thank you for this welcome.

As soon as the president ceased speaking he was presented with many beautiful floral tributes. Among them was a floral flag, made of red, white, and blue flowers by the lady teachers of the public school, assisted by the scholars. It was presented to the president by Miss Daisy Hopkins. Many beautiful bouquets, one from the Ladies Aid society by Mrs. Dr. C. C. Kelly, were also presented. A basket of big red apples decorated with fresh blown apple blossoms was presented to Uncle Jerry Rusk by Mrs. M. J. Train. General Wanamaker was loudly called for. He advanced to the platform and said, "One and all, good morning."

A general handshaking with the president was then indulged in. The president remarked that he was the only early riser of the family, but Mrs. Harrison, who no doubt overheard the remark and did not propose to be accused of being in bed at 8 o'clock on a May morning, appeared, smiling, upon the platform and was greeted with cheers and a shower of bouquets. A few seconds later the train moved forward, and the president and party were speeding toward

OREGON CROPS.

The following bulletin for the week ending Saturday May 2, is based on reports received from 101 correspondents: The weather throughout the state during the month of April was very favorable for the growth of crops. The temperature was slightly below the average. The amount of cloudiness and rainfall were above the average. There were no injurious frosts. The rainfall retarded spring seeding in Western Oregon, but early spring sown grain have had unusually good growth. The fruit was never more promising. The grass is good, stock are fattening rapidly. May opens most auspiciously for a fruitful harvest of all productions. On 23, 24, 25, frost and ice and snow squalls occurred in sections of Eastern Oregon.

Western Oregon.—The fore-part of the week was cloudy, cool and rainy while the latter part was cloudless and warm. Douglas, Josephine and Jackson counties were warmer and had less rainfall than the Willamette valley and coast. There were occasional light frosts on the 27th, and 29th, but no damage was done. The usual frost period is now past and no damage now expected from it. The sunshine was greatly desired and is proving of great benefit to the growth of crops. The present weather is excellent for all vegetation which is now making rapid growth. Poplars, lindens and other deciduous trees are coming into leaf.

Spring seeding on lowlands is now being rapidly pushed. Early wheat is very heavy and is lodging in places. The farmers are an jubilant over present crop prospects. Fruit never promised better yields than it does at present. Apples are blossoming, peaches, pears and cherries are dropping their bloom and the calyx is enlarging. The grass is remarkably good and stock are fattening.

Health.—The late cool damp weather appears to have revived the "lagrippe" many communities are suffering from it. Eastern Oregon.—Showers occurred in the fore-part of the week in most sections, on 23d, snow and ice were experienced along and south of the Blue mountains. On 24, 25, and 26th, frosts were general no serious damage is reported. In Oregon, wheat and wheat were slightly injured in a few places. The temperature continues cool, but gradually rising. Not quite an average temperature prevails.

Fall and early spring wheat continues to be promising. Late sown spring wheat is not so good on account of lack of rain. More rain would prove of great benefit to the wheat crop. While the wheat prospects at present are of the best reports indicate that the promising condition will not continue unless more rain falls, the fields are dusty and little grain is already apparent. The grass is good. Stock are reported to be doing well.

The Harbour Murder Mystery. The killing of W. M. Barbour, the Lebanon merchant, whose body was found in the river in Portland, Sunday morning, is as much of a mystery as ever. The police have absolutely no clue to work on. They are satisfied, however, that Barbour was murdered for his money and then thrown to the river to conceal all evidence of the crime. If the murderers can be traced at all it will be by the gold watch and diamond ring the murdered man had on him when he disappeared on the evening of the 16th. The watch was engraved with his monogram. Mr. Dalgleish, the dead man's partner in the hardware and furniture business at Lebanon, has telegraphed to Portland in response to several telegrams. He at once went to the morgue and one look at the body convinced him that it was that of his missing partner. The young widow of the deceased passed through this city for Portland yesterday.

The Floral Flag. The floral representation of the American flag presented to President Harrison, by the public school of this city was made by the lady teachers with a great deal of labor and patience. The white portions was made up of apple blossoms and other white flowers, while the red stripes were magnificent large red tulips. The blue fields was made up of pansies and violets and the stars were white daisies. It was a superb and beautiful affair, and the teachers deserve great credit for their unwearied efforts.

Canadian Purchase Land. Writeman & Hulbert Bros, yesterday sold for Milton Hale 236 acres of farming land situated just across the Ca apocia about a half a mile from this city to Messrs. H. F. and W. C. Pound, of Manitoba, Canada. These young gentlemen are new-comers here and have come to stay, as may be presumed by the purchase just made. The gentlemen intend cutting the land up into small parcels of 10 and 20 acre tracts and offer them for sale for gardens, etc.
