OUR WAR VESSELS.

The Charleston and the Esmeralda May Fight.

BOTH ARE NOW AT ACAPULCO.

The Reported Sinking of the Itata Was Untrue—The Latest from the Scene of the Trouble.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—After a week's waiting some tangible news was to-day received at the navy department from the Charleston. Through the state department a dispatch came saying that the Charleston had arrived at Acapulco and that the Esmeralda was still in port, but giving no news of the Itata. What the next step is to be no one at the department knows or is free to tell. The Charleston is to take on coal, as her supply has probably nearly run out during her weeks' chase. Whether the Esmeralda is to have the privilege of taking on coal cannot be learned here, as it is a matter entirely within the control of the Mexican government, but the presumption at the department is against it, as the neutrality laws would be broken by the Mexican government if they allowed anything beyond water and food supplies to be furnished. The theory at the navy department is that the Charleston, whose commander Captain Remy, has orders admitting of large discretionary movements, will now lie at or near Acapulco for a time, trusting that the Itata, which is a slow 7 knot ship, has not yet passed down and will try to coal in that neighborhood. If she is sighted the Charleston will doubtless try to seize her. She cannot do this in Mexican waters so that it would be necessary to head her off outside the three mile limit or if unsuccessful in that to follow her to sea when she goes out. What the Esmeralda will do in the meantime is problematical.

A cablegram received at the department from Admiral McCann announces that the Baltimore and San Francisco were both at Iquique, Chili, to day. It appears that the Baltimore has come north and the San Francisco has been stayed in her southern course just at the point where the Chilian insurgents' navy is now nearly all together assembled. This point is about the extreme north of Chili, and is where the Itata would naturally find her destination if she eluded the Charleston.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—The information from the navy department, announcing the arrival of the cruiser Charleston at Acapulco confirms the original statement as to the sailing orders of the Charleston when she left San Pedro last Monday and also serves as a complete denial of the rumors coming from various points along the Mexican coast the last three days. The Charleston has undoubtedly passed the Itata, foreseeing the possibility of which her orders were to go to Acapulco in the hope she would meet the Chilian cruiser Esmeralda, which has been waiting to convey the Itata to Chili. The Charleston will now undoubtedly remain in sight of the Esmeralda in the belief that the Itata will seek to meet her at Acapulco. If such proves to be the case, the attempted seizure of the Itata by the United States cruiser becomes more interesting than at any previous juncture. In case the Itata has continued on down the coast she will have given the Charleston a complete slip, and her capture, if made at all, would have to be by the United States cruiser San Francisco or Baltimore, off Iquique.

SAM SMALL IS MAD.

He Calls Rev. Hill, of Ogden, an Infamous Liar.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 16.—A special says; Rev. Sam Small, who is now in Toronto, has addressed a circular to the people of America concerning his troubles with the Ogden (Utah) university, of which he was elected president. He says telegrams attacking him were sent out by "that infamous liar," Rev. J. Wesley Hill, of the First Methodist church, at Ogden. He goes on to say that the Ogden university scheme was a "private snap speculation," and that the aforesaid Hill "lives a double life." Small is equally severe on the board of directors, boldly charging them with getting up bogus subscription lists and "robbing Salt Lake of the institution." He concludes: "Up to this hour I have stood between the church I love and the exposure of this whole scandalous Utah situation, but now I must let the truth be known."

How Thread Is Numbered.

The seamstress, whether she wants No. 30 or 40, or 120 thread, knows from the number just what kind of sewing it can be used for. When 840 yards of yarn weigh 7000 grains, a pound of cotton, the threadmakers mark it No. 1. If 1680 yards weigh a pound, it is marked No. 2. For No. 50 yarn it would take 50 multiplied by 489 to weigh a pound. This is the whole explanation of the yard measurement as used by the spool cotton manufacturer. The early manufactured thread was of three-cord, the number being derived from the number of yards to the pound, just as it is to-day. No. 60 yarn made No. 60 thread, though in point of fact the actual calibre of No. 60 thread would equal No. 20 yarn, being made of three No. 20 strands twisted together.

When the sewing machine came into the market as a great thread consumer, unreasoning in its work and inexorable in its demands for mechanical accuracy, six-cord cotton had to be made in place of the old and rougher three-cord, it being much smoother. As thread numbers were already established, they were not altered for the new article, and No. 60 six-cord and No. 60 three-cord were left identical in both size and number. To effect this the six-cord had to be made of yarn twice as fine as that demanded in making the three-cord variety. The No. 60 cord is made of six strands of No. 120 yarn. Thread is a simple thing, but simple as it is, there are 2000 kinds of it, and each kind goes through hundreds of different processes.

CRAZED BY LAGRIPPE.

A Victim at Vancouver Cuts His Throat with a Jack-Knife.

VANCOUVER, Or., May 16.—Pierce Barnett, aged 38, a widower, and a cousin of Dubois Bros., committed suicide early this morning, while in a temporary fit of despondency, by cutting his throat with a jack-knife. He came here from California two years ago and was employed by Dubois Bros. He had a severe attack of lagrippe, which caused his despondency, prompting him to commit the rash deed.

THE PRESIDENT.

HE RESUMES HIS DUTIES AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Several Important Questions Before the Executive Department—Effect of Blaine's Illness.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The president resumed his official duties at the White House to-day. There are a number of important questions pending in each of the executive departments and it is the president's purpose to dispose of them as rapidly as possible. The president will devote his attention to the Behring sea first, with a view of having the government's policy in regard to the seal fisheries, so far as the present season is concerned, clearly defined, pending the final settlement of the controversy by arbitration.

The illness of Secretary Blaine may necessitate a slight delay in the preparation of instructions, but it will be only temporary.

WOULDN'T CALL HER "LADY."

An Incident in the Life of the Late Leonard Jerome.

Leonard Jerome's three big pretty daughters, somewhat to his grief, chose Englishmen for husbands, and though he lived abroad during the later years of his life, he remained independent and a good American to the end. In fact, he never acknowledged Lady Randolph Churchill's title, and the first visit he paid her after her marriage he astonished the flunkey at the door by asking for "Mrs. Churchill."

The cockney footman at first seemed inclined to throw the tall, amused-looking American down the steps, and holding the door half open, announced indignanantthat "'Er leddyship is at 'ome, but not to ther likes o' you."

Whereupon Jerome smiled gently, reached in the doorway and by a twist of his long, strong arm on the back of the footman's coat collar twirled him around like a top.

"Now," said he, "go tell Mrs. Churchill that her daddy is down in the parlor and wants to see her, and I'll stand in the door way and see just how fast your calves can carry you up those steps."—New York Journal.

A VERY TALL YARN.

The Experience of a California Editor While Wood Chopping.

Speaking of liars the editor of the McCloud (Cal.) Pioneer need not take a back seat. He says: "Some days ago a shoemaker who was making shakes at Black Cox mountain, north of town, cut down a big five-foot sugar pine, but, after felling it, discovered it to be hollow some forty feet above the butt. Gazing into the cavity he found it to be chock full of bears—five black, seven cinnamon and three grizzlies—the animals haying holed up for the winter. With great presence of mind the man split off some slabs, sawed off the hollow part, nailed the slabs over the hole and started the log down the steep mountain toward this place, where it arrived safe and sound. The bears can be seen through cracks in the slabs, lying in a state of semi-torpor."

The Fireman's Wooing.

"You are out with Miss Rox?"

"Yes, her father put an extinguisher on the affair."

"You've done sparking, then?"

"No, I've gone back to an old flame."—Cape Cod Item.

PROSPERITY AHEAD.

Good Times Predicted Throughout the United States.

EX-SPEAKER REED'S VIEWS.

He Talks In Italy about the McKinley Bill and the Business Outlook in this Country.

LONDON, May 16.—Thomas B. Reed, ex-speaker of the United States house of representatives, talking to a correspondent of the Associated Press in Italy to-day concerning the McKinley bill, said in part: "It will stimulate our foreign commerce by a large number of articles on which duties have been reduced or which are added to the free list. It will stimulate our domestic industries by reason of the reduction in duties on the raw material and increase the duties on a very few articles of necessity which have been largely imported, but which hitherto we have been unable to manufacture profitably. It was extremely unfortunate that the bill went into effect in the time of, or was followed soon by, the most severe financial panic, when general insolvence seemed to shake the whole commercial world. Going into effect under such circumstances it was not a difficult matter to convince thousands of voters that these financial difficulties were due solely to the inherent defects of the measure. The commercial nations are not slow to take every possible precaution to protect and stimulate their trade, and that is exactly the policy on which the McKinley bill is founded. I am very confident that the next few years will be years of general prosperity to the United States and that they will prove to be favorable both to our domestic manufacturers and to our foreign commerce."

HOW HE WAS REFORMED.

Flowers and a Woman Made Him Honorable.

Asa Dame, an old newspaper man, was looking at a show window where there was a profusion of flowers. "I never see flowers," he said, "that I do not think of a poor fellow in our profession who was one of the most worthless in many respects that I ever knew. He had that habit of borrowing sums varying from the price of a beer to the amount necessary to get a meal from any one whom he chanced to know. As is usual with such fellows, he always forgot the favor. His early training and associations, however, made him a gentleman at heart. He came from one of the best families in the land. He was a West Pointer, and as brave a knight. But he was a deadbeat. Reconcile the inconsistencies if you can. He came to me one Easter and asked me if I would lend him $5. He had struck me for five times that amount in small amounts varying from 10 cents up, and had never paid back a cent, nor had he ever intimated an intention of wiping out the old score. I was consequently dumbfounded when he asked me for a fiver. Before I could question him about his wants he made me such an appeal and promised so earnestly to repay that in spite of my judgment I let him have the money. I did not see him for ten days. When I did he handed me the amount of the last loan. I was astonished and told him I never expected him to pay it back.

"'I'll tell you how it was,' he said. 'I had an old sweetheart come to town the day I met you, and she asked me to take her to church. We knew each other that well. She had known me when I was a dashing cadet. Of course I took her. I think if she had taken a second look at me I would have declined, but she did not notice that I was away off color. I would no sooner think of taking a lady to church on Easter without buying her some flowers than I would think of paying for a meal if I could get around it. I have a schedule of my expenses here, which I desire you to examine.'

"I have that schedule as a souvenir. Here it is: Shirt collar, 15 cents; shave, 10 cents; shine, 5 cents; cigarettes, 10 cents; breakfast and car fare, 25 cents; flowers, $4 25; balance, 10 cents.

"I asked him what had prompted the payment. He drew himself up as he knew how to do when he wanted to and said: 'Flowers and a woman will bring out the honor in a man if he has any. I would as soon beat you out of the price of a beer as to look at you, but, sir, I am too much of a gentleman to beat you out of the money which was expended to entertain an old sweetheart with flowers.'

"They tell me that when he was dying in a Southern hospital a few years ago a sister of charity asked him if there was anything he wanted, and he replied that he would like to have some flowers put on his coffin.—Chicago Tribune.

What Absinthe-Drinkers Get.

A Sixth-street bartender says: "Five years ago I seldom had an average of one call a day for absinthe, but now it is more likely one an hour, while on Saturday evening the demand is very large. Absinthe is, without exception, the meanest drink sold over the bar, and some men who know its horrible effects only drink it on Saturday, because I suppose, they need a day's rest to get rid of the effect. Of course a man who gets his living by serving drinks is not going to talk temperance, but I don't believe any saloon-keeper cares about selling a drink he knows contains blue vitriol, as is the case with nine-tenths of the absinthe sold. Years ago I was fool enough to drink this stuff, and it nearly blinded me. The eye-doctor, who fixed me up at a cost of over $50, threw in the explanation that it was the vitriol that had the effect on the eyes, and said the final results would be a loss of sight. The genuine absinthe comes from Switzerland, and the peculiar flavor is given it by means of anise oil. But this is costly, and blue vitriol answers the purpose just as well, and introduces a few more deadly effects. I have known Frenchman, who have sipped the pure article in Parisan saloons, drink the powerful imitation, and describe it as preferable to the genuine, so far as taste was concerned.

An Early Morning Arrest.

At 3 o'clock this morning Policeman Lee observed three men acting in a suspicious manner in the alley in the rear of Foshay & Mason's drug store. He captured one of them and blew his whistle, when policemen hastened to his assistance, but the other two escaped. What they could have been loafing about at that hour in a suspicious manner remains to be explained.

AN INHUNAN MOTHER

SHE SOLD HER SON TO A CHINAMAN.

The Little Fellow Discovered by Accident—He Called His Chinese Guardian "Papa."

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—For several days past a Chinese vegetable peddler had been inquiring among people on the outskirts of the city whether they had any small boys to sell, saying he would pay $50 for one. He then said that his cousin had purchased a little boy for $40, and that he was preparing to return to China and would take the boy with him, and there could dispose of him at a good figure. The people of whom the Chinese made inquiries at first thought that the heathen was trying to perpetrate a joke, but he was so persistent, and went into such minute details, that they finally arrived at the opinion that there was something in it, and reported the case to Humane Officer Wright. Wright commenced a search for the Chinese, whom he found to-day, and forced him to show where the boy was. He found a 4 year-old boy dressed in Chinese clothes. He did not know his name, but called the Chinaman, "Papa." The Chinaman said a woman had given the child to him. The woman was found, and proved to be Mrs. Coulter, whose husband committed suicide in this city some months ago. She admitted that the child was her's, but denied that she had sold or given him to the Chinese. The matter will be further investigated.

NEW ORLEANS BRAVE MAYOR

He Tells the Ruffians Their Reign of Terror Must Stop.

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—Yesterday Henry Peters, a stevedore, went to the city hall and complained to Mayor Shakespeare that the Provezanos were interfering with him and intimidating his laborers. He made an affidavit and the Provezanos Bros. were arrested and held under $20,000 bail. The mayor sent for the Proqezanos this morning and said: "I have sent for you because this city has grown tired of the intimidation and lawlessness you have carried on. I want to give you fair notice and warning that this thing must stop at once and forever. Matranza comes to me and tells me that he cannot pass a Provezano on the street without the latter spitting on him. Now, there must be at once and forever an end to this. I have issued orders to the chief of police that he use his entire force to prevent you from carrying your designs into execution. I am sorry now that I am obliged to go to Denver. If I could I would personally take command of the police force and use every means at my command to wipe from the face of the earth every member of your gang who tries to raise his hand against persons of this community, but my representatives will act for me. This reign of terror must stop, and if there is any way possible to do it, it will stop.

A Good Game of Ball.

TACOMA, May 16.—Tacoma, 6; Seattle, 5; 22 innings.

The longest professtonal baseball game on record was that played here to-day between the home team and the Seattle club. Donahue pitched the entire 22 innings for the Tacomas.

SPOKANE, May 16.—Spokane, 3; Portland, 2.

A TOWN IN ASHES.

Muskegon, Mich., Swept Away By Fire.

NEWS EAST OF THE ROCKIES.

Rev. Sam Small Gets Mad and Calls a Brother Preacher an Infamous Liar—Blaine's Condition.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 16.—Twenty-two squares of business buildings and dwellings were swept away to night by the most disastrous fire Muskegon has ever seen. The fire started at 6:30 at the Launkowell hotel barns and aided by a strong wind swept with lightning like rapidity to the blocks on Pine street, one of the chief business streets in the city; then by a sudden shift of the wind, the flames were driven toward Terrace avenue, one of the finest residence streets in the city, where they swept unchecked until the southern part of the city was reached, where the buildings were not so close together. There the firemen aided by the engines and more from Grand Rapids, succeeded in getting the flames under control, although at a late hour. Some buildings are still burning fiercely. Twenty-two blocks are devastated. Pine street business houses for ten blocks are entirely wiped out. No less than 350 residences, including some of the finest in the city, are in ashes. The $100,000 courthouse was gutted, but the public documents were saved. The prisoners in the county jail, which occupied the basement of the courthouse, were liberated.

TERRIBLE SCENES.

Several cows and horses were burned, and a little child sleeping in the Launkowell hotel is missing. A conservative estimate of the total loss is over half a million dollars. Hundreds of familes who were rendered homeless are being cared for by the people in the portion of the city which escaped the visitation. The scene on the streets to-night is terrible. Homeless people are running frantically about, making endeavors to save some little portion of their most valuable effects, which have been dragged from the houses, but in most cases the spread of the flames was so rapid that little or nothing could be carried away. Above the cries of the women and children and the shouting of men could be heard the explosion of dynamite used by the firemen to blow up buildings in the hope of staying the progress of the flames, and again the heavy concussion of a boiler in some business building, throwing the debris in all directions. The firemen labored under difficulties from the start. The gale which was blowing scattered huge blazing brands far beyond where the men were working, causing new fires to spring up constantly.

NEGRO MINERS.

Seattle Imports Them to Supplant the Striking Whites.

SEATTLE, May 17.—At 1 o'clock this (Sunday) morning 650 negroes arrived at Stone Siding station on the Northern Pacific. They will be marched across the mountains into the mining camps of the Oregon Improvement Co. and guarded by Pinkerton's men, who will protect them from the white laborers in case any violence is attempted. As soon as the white miners heard of the arrival of the negroes, every camp was notified and the men say they will refuse to work for a company which employs negroes. Every mine of the company is now closed.

PENDLETON NEWS.

Two Brothers Drown in John Day River—Good Crops.

PENDLETON, May 16.—Rain was quite general in this section last night. This insures large crops.

News has been received from John Day of the sad drowning last Wednesday in the middle fork of two sons of Mr. Wilmoth. The boys, aged 8 and 4 respectively, started to cross the stream on a foot-log. The younger lost his balance and fell in. The elder brother immediately plunged in to rescue him, but the current was too strong and both were swept away. The bodies were recovered.

LITTLE ENTHUSIASM.

Kentucky Democrats Refuse to Endorse Cleveland for President

LOUISVILLE, May 16.—At the close of the democratic state convention to-day resolutions endorsing Grover Cleveland, John G Carlisle, and naming Cleveland for president were offered by Tarvin, of Clinton, but the delegates were in no humor to delay, and a motion to adjourn was carried.

Secretary Blaine's Condition.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Dr. Dennis, after a visit to Secretary Blaine this morning, gave out the following: Blaine had a very good night and is free from pain this morning. He seems much better and while his feet are still slightly swollen, the attack of gout is subsiding, and in a few days he ought to be able to be about the house. He enjoyed a good breakfast this morning and seems very comfortable.
