OREGON PACIFIC TIME TABLE Arrives Departs

THAT TIN PLATE BUSINESS In a transmagnified daily paper in Portland, rejuvenated by the trenchant pen of A. Nolting, there is an editorial mention of the tin plate matter, in which it is averred that "the most diligent search has not yet been able to ascertain the whereabouts of operative tin plate factories or the extent of their production, except so far as relates to a fanciful contribution of American plate by Mr. Neidringhouse, of St. Louis, to two protectionist dinners."

Portland is a growing city. The consolidation vote has shoved it away up in the rating. Then, too, it is reaching out for everything within grasp. It has induced the Presbyterians and several other organizations to name it as the next place of meeting, and now it is bidding for the next meeting of the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows. If she keeps on she will want the whole world next.

Strayed or Stolen. From the farm of the undersigned near Muddy station Lane county, one dapple gray mare six years old fourteen hands high, branded on the left shoulder with the combined letters D. H. Anyone giving information leading to her recovery will be handsomely rewarded.

A HINT in regard to the gold that has crossed the Atlantic, is contained in the following from the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, which points a moral: "The crops of this country are most promising. The wheat is blooming; the corn is promising, while in Russia, Germany, France and England there are short crops, and teeming millions who will need bread and meat. These will be supplied from the surplus of the United States. This will bring the gold back with interest, and with an enormous addition."
