The existence of a club whose members are pledged to commit to suicide is vouched for by the press dispatches in Bridgeport, Connecticut. It is said to have first organized with a fixed membership of only six, two of whom were to shuffle off the mortal coil each year until the club became extinct. The programme has been kept up with regularity with the exception that the original membership has grown to 18, from applications that besieged the club. Probably the story can be classed with the other Munchausenisms of the year.

The Chronicle is ever on the alert and sanguine for California enterprises, commendably so. Of the tin plate factory in that state it has this prediction: "The best proof of the McKinley bill is in such items as the report from London that the English tin-plate works will shut down during July because of the falling off in the American demand for tin plate. When the Pan Jacinto factory gets into full working order the English miners and manufacturers of tin-plate will lay off for half the year. But their loss will be the gain of a small army of American workmen."

SECRETARY RUSK is active and energetic in his work for the benefit of the American farmers. He recently visited the stock yards of Chicago, to inaugurate the microscopical examination of pork calculated for foreign shipment. He is determined to overcome the German interdiction upon American pork so that the markets of that country will be open to us.

QUARTER OF A CENTURY

There are those who say that the quarter of a century ago, the world was a different place. It is true, but the world is not a different place now. It is the same world, but it is a better world. It is a world that has grown and improved. It is a world that has become more civilized and more advanced. It is a world that has become more united and more harmonious. It is a world that has become more just and more equitable. It is a world that has become more peaceful and more prosperous. It is a world that has become more beautiful and more glorious. It is a world that has become more worthy and more noble. It is a world that has become more true and more honest. It is a world that has become more brave and more courageous. It is a world that has become more kind and more merciful. It is a world that has become more generous and more selfless. It is a world that has become more virtuous and more righteous. It is a world that has become more wise and more prudent. It is a world that has become more strong and more powerful. It is a world that has become more free and more independent.
