Have you seen that elegant piano at Klein Bros. W. R. Garrett and family went to Newport yesterday. Klein Bros. are giving a fine piano to their customers. J. H. Howard and family are visiting at Oakland, Oregon. The thermometer registered 90 in the sun yesterday afternoon. A fine line of ladies' lawn Norfolk waists just received at the Ladies' Bazaar. Regular meeting of the Albany Building and Loan Association will be held Friday evening. Your school tax will be delinquent if not paid at once. Look after it and save costs of collection. C. W. Cobb who has purchased the job printing office of Paisley and Smiley in this city, assumed control yesterday. Mine host J. A. Gross, of the Depot hotel, has returned from the hot springs, where he has received much benefit. Mrs. Royal, sister of Mrs. A. E. McAlister, came up from Salem last evening and will go with the McAlister family for an outing up on the North Santiam. Mr. E. E. Hammack, one of the proprietors of the warehouse at Fallman, has sold out his interest to Mr. David Smith, his partner in the business, who will carry it on. The sale of reserved seats for the Keene company in "Held by the Enemy" opens this morning at Will & Link's music store. We would advise all desiring to be present to assist in welcoming this splendid company to secure their seats early, as our patriotic citizens will doubtless crowd the house to witness the great play to be given that night. Paris is laughing over a joke about an American inventor who is said to have patented an electric carpet that is to bring about the reign of morality at once. If one of these articles is pressed by a lover's arm it at once emits a shriek like the whistle of a railway engine; and the inventor claims that he has already married three of his daughters, owing to the publicity thus thrust upon a backward lover.

To Clear a Mystery. At last there possibly has been discovered a clue which the Station Times says may lead to the solution of the mysterious disappearance of the young man, Tucker, in the mountains last winter. From an interview with a gentleman from near Gatesville the Times learns that grave suspicious as to fool play are now entertained. It is claimed that two men reluctantly consented to assist in hunting for Tommy Tucker, and that they have avoided directing anyone to a certain swamp in the mountains where shots from a rifle were heard on the day of the young man's disappearance. A company of men will be organized in a few days to thoroughly search that part of the swamp where it is supposed the body is hidden.

Well Done. The appointment of Geo. W. Davis, of this county, to the office of clerk of the board of school land commissioners, is a good one and will meet with the highest commendation from all parts of the state where he is known. He is well fitted for the position by his former business experience and his work will keep the office in perfect condition and efficiency.

Painful Accident. Yesterday the little son of James Cherry met with a painful, but not serious accident. While swinging in a hammock the rope attached to it gave away, and the boy fell to the ground, striking his head on the edge of the sidewalk, inflicting a painful scalp wound. Dr. Davis was called and dressed the wound.

Little Girl Died. Geo. W. Hughes' little girl, ten months and six days old, died last evening at nine o'clock, of scarlet fever. The funeral will be attended this afternoon.

NAPOLEON DAVIS' SUCCESSOR.

The State Land Board Appoints Geo. W. Davis, of Linn County.

The board of state land commissioners, consisting of the governor, secretary, and state treasurer, held a busy session Tuesday listening to the arguments in cases of land contest—and it was not until late at night that the matter of accepting the resignation of the old clerk was reached says the Salem Statesman. But at 10 o'clock a vote was taken accepting the resignation of Napoleon Davis as clerk and electing George W. Davis, of Linn county, to succeed him.

The resignation of Napoleon Davis as clerk was filed on February 7th, last and when the board came to vote upon accepting or rejecting it there were two votes for and one against, the governor having voted nay. Then a ballot was taken for a new clerk. In this George W. Davis received two votes and Napoleon Davis one. It was, then, a strict party vote, for the governor voted for the democrat and the two republican members of the board for one of their own political faith.

The newly elected clerk is a gentleman highly spoken of as well qualified in every way to perform the duties of the office. He was formerly engaged in business at Shedd's. Mr. Davis is expected to qualify in a few days and take charge of the affairs of the office. The retiring clerk, Napoleon Davis, steps down and out after a faithful service of four years, during which time there passed through his hands over a million dollars of trust funds. He has made an efficient and accommodating clerk and turns the office over to his successor with everything connected with it in perfect order.

Wheat and Flour Prospects.

The Oregonian makes the following comments upon the wheat prospects: "Harvest in the Willamette valley and throughout the state will be later than usual, and wheat will not be delivered before the middle of August. There is no market for new wheat, and no price has been fixed. The average yield of 75 cents a bushel for valley wheat and 65 cent at Walla Walla. It is thought that freights are about as high as they can go. A large wheat grower said yesterday: 'I do not expect to see wheat start at more than $1.40 or $1.42 per cental. If it starts at higher rates it will be very slow, and I want to sell early and pay my debts.' A wheat shipper says there is but little prospect for any amount of wheat being shipped East by rail from this region this season. They have plenty of wheat there, and don't want it. Yesterday wheat at the state farmers talk of was worth as much here as at Chicago, and the freight to that city is 30 cents a bushel. The prospects are favorable for large flour shipments to China and Japan this season. The trade is increasing, and the amount shipped last season would have been double what it was if transportation could have been procured. Now that we have a regular line of steamers, there is every prospect for them having full cargoes of flour on their return trip, as their is no trouble in selling the flour there if it can be got there."

A Silver Trowel. The Salem Statesman says that an interesting relic of some prominent event in Oregon's history was exhibited by T. McF. Patton yesterday. It is a small silver trowel on which is inscribed: "Presented to T. McF. Patton, M. W., A. F. & A. M., of Oregon, at the laying of the cornerstone of the state capitol, Oct. 8, 1873, by John F. Miller, Henry Klippel, and Samuel Allen, commissioners." It was presented to Mr. Patton just before the laying of the cornerstone of the capitol and was used by him in the ceremonies of that occasion. Later it was used by R. P. Earhart, S. M., in laying the cornerstone of the agricultural college at Corvallis.

More Opals. The Mullan, Tribune states that a rich strike of opals was made by Joseph Davis near the head of Mill creek on Monday afternoon last while chasing his buckskin mare over the hills. He brought several of them into Mullan and a jeweler at once purchased them, paying $86 for them in the rough. Davis says they are gunny sacks full of the gems where he got his samples. A Spokane jeweler pronounces them superior to the Moscow gems. They must be particularly clear and fiery if this is the case. It only remains now to find emeralds and diamonds in this great Northwestern country.

Baseball News. The request of an H. & L. man to the Evening Democrat the firemen did not win the baseball game and that No. 1's won it brings the question, where do you get your firemen if you don't go to No. 1's? It has been a noticeable fact for last eight or ten years that when No. 1's take hold of a thing it was always a sure case of win. We never challenge anyone for anything and if the other companies do not think No. 1's superior why do they send those challenges? I think that the H. & L.'s had better wait till next summer and then we will beat them again if they will practice enough between now and then so they can play a friendly game without kicking.

MASCOT. Special Meeting. The members of McPherson post No. 5, G. A. R., are requested to meet at the G. A. R. hall on Friday at 7:30 p. m. Business of importance that must be transacted. Full attendance expected. By order of S. V. C. acting commander.

NEWS OF THE COAST.

Interesting Items from Exchanges Throughout the Northwest.

Corvallis has a case of diphtheria. Oliver Witham, of Corvallis, is the owner of a hen that has laid an egg measuring 6 1/2 x 8 inches in circumference.

When the lightning struck the Polk county approach to the big steel bridge across the Willamette at Salem last week it did but little damage. One post was shattered and split, and this will be repaired at once at a cost of but a few dollars.

Considerable wool is now changing hands at The Dalles, but it is hard, in most cases, to find the exact price, owing, as we presume, to the fact that concessions have been made on both sides. It is rumored that 1500 bales were sold at 17 cents a pound.

The number of sheep in Eastern Oregon is estimated at 1,500,000 and the wool clip for the season of 1890 is estimated at 8,678,123 pounds. The general average price obtained was 14 cents, which amounts to $1,214,937.22. The sheep themselves represent an estimated value of $3,750,000.

With the majority of the fish wharves the fishing season is practically ended. A few wharves in favored localities will continue to catch more or less until the close of the season. Fishermen at The Dalles say that during the season hereto not more than a quarter catch has been taken.

Mr. H. S. Hannal killed Saturday morning on Chenoweth creek, one of the largest rattlesnakes that he ever saw in his life. The snake measured 44 inches in length and was fully as thick as Mr. Hannal's arm, which is by no means a small one. It had fifteen rattles and a button.

The other day at Naylox another barbed-wire fence did damage. It stretched across a thick clump of chaparral in a pasture through which a fine blooded colt, probably frightened by a panther, went racing at night. The splendid young animal was so badly lacerated that its owner was obliged to have it shot.

Mr. A. Loosely, of Boise City, the other day received a letter from his brother at Fort Klamath, Oregon, stating that it had been discovered that the old original Lost Cabin mine had been discovered at a point called Diamond Peak, 30 or 40 miles distant. Three hundred men had rushed in, and more going, including nearly all the people of Klamath and Linkville. Rich gold quartz had been found and several claims taken up. It was supposed that the Lost Cabin had at last been discovered. The remains of two men who had been burned had been found. Also pieces of pack saddles, sluce boxes, and a quarter of a mile of mining ditch.

It having been demonstrated that the sugar beet can be successfully cultivated in Eastern Oregon, papers in that section are urging the farmer to give some attention to the industry, and thus add another element to the state's industrial prosperity. They believe that the two-cent bounty should stimulate the industry until it comes one of the leading ones of the state.

A Big Tree in Thurston County. J. W. Times in Olympia Tribune. The star beet can be fashioned to tell what one knows about big trees and other wonders of our state on account of the near approach of the Chicago big fair, I beg leave to intrude on your time a short while. There is a fir tree standing about fourteen miles south of Olympia, two miles from the Collins ranch, that I, in company with others measured over twenty years ago, that was forty-five feet in circumference four feet from the ground. It is a round, smooth-bodied tree, free from knots or blemishes for 100 feet or more. There is a fir tree down here, about ten miles from Elma, that is considerably larger, longer and finer in every respect than the one near Olympia. I did not measure it at the time I was to it, but my judgment is that it is close to sixteen feet diameter. As to the lasting qualities of our cedar, my experience is that it is practically indestructible. I have seen fir, spruce and hemlock trees three, four and five feet in diameter growing on top of old down cedars that were yet sound, and the trees growing on them must have been 200 or 300 years old.

Not Insane. Salem Journal: John Hoefler and about a dozen others, neighbors of Carl Gruenwald, who was on Monday committed to the asylum, at once started for Salem when they heard what had been done. They went to the asylum this afternoon, demanding an interview and will try to secure his release. They will declare that he is not an insane man, and not proven to be insane to be at large. They propose to test the matter whether a man who is merely lovesick and excited over being arrested can be legally committed for insanity.

Quite a Slide. Astorian: An extensive landslide on the Skeena river at the North Pacific cañary last Tuesday destroyed huge mountains, annihilated mine houses, killed the wife of the foreman and forty Indians, missing the canner by about two feet. Had the tremendous mass struck the canner sixty more Indians would have been killed, as they were just getting ready to take in salmon from the boats.

SHREWD MONKEY.

Strategic Tactics That Look as Though Reason Inspired Them.

In real military organization and strategy monkeys are far ahead of all other animals, and notably the different kinds of baboon. Mansfield Parkins gives an excellent account in the London Spectator, of the dog-faced Hamadryde that lived in large colonies in the cracks in cliffs of the Abyssinian mountains. These creatures used occasionally to plan a foraging expedition into the plain below and the order of attack was most carefully organized, the old males marching in front and on the flanks, with a few to bring up the rear and keep the rest in order.

They had a code of signals, halting or advancing according to the barks of the scouts. When they reached the corn fields the main body plundered while the old males watched on both sides, but took nothing for themselves. The others stored the corn in their cheek pouches and under their arms. They are also said to dig wells with their hands and work in relays. The Goldbaboons sometimes have battles with the Hamadrydes, especially when the two species have a mind to rob the same field, and if fighting in the hills, will roll stones on their enemies. Not long ago a colony of Gelada baboons which had been fired at by some black soldiers attending a Duke of Coburg-Gotha on a hunting expedition on the borders of Abyssinia, blocked a pass for some days by rolling rocks on all corners.

A Great Play. "Held by the Enemy," an American play, by an American of Americans and for Americans, is the piece in which the I. Keene company will open its return engagement here on Thursday of this week. The play was written by Wm. Gillett, one of our most celebrated American authors, and is founded on the scenes of carnage enacted during the civil war. It appeals to the heart of every patriotic American whose natural love of country and liberty teaches him to appreciate the beautiful sentiment of a play, the object of which is to strengthen the bond of union between two formerly rival countries, both of which, after having struggled for supremacy, bow down and worship together, the stars and stripes. Through the entire play runs a humorous vein of delightful comedy, which, together with the startling situations and the wonderful horse scene, an imitation of the latest novel, in distance, gradually getting nearer until it seems that the horse itself must actually burst upon the stage at full gallop, renders the piece the most intensely interesting and effective of all the dramas which owe their origin to incidents connected with the war. The company presenting the play are known to be thoroughly first class and a performance such as we are seldom treated to in Albany may be confidently expected.
