MIDSUMMER VANITIES.

father of a family, was congratu- in Oregon at present. lated recently by a flippant girl upon the fact of the absence from the city of his wife and family and ready demonstrated the fact that ing a good time. This gentleman, year. an eminently sensible man, replied to her: "My dear young lady, now go forward. Work will what is there that a gentleman commence at once on this can do while his family are away important public improvement. to have what you call a good time ?

The question is a more serious and important one than may appear upon its face. It can hardly be assumed that all men, no matter what their ages or tastes may be, belong to the "razzle-dazzle" contingent; that they find their highest, or, indeed, any pleasure, the education of the Indian youth: tite. in sitting up at all hou, s of the night whooping it up with the boys and helping them paint the tried many different remedies, town red. These goods are heir evenings to pleasures even questionable. These are among Kidney Tea. I obtained a box of one seems to be delighted when the follies of youth, which society it and have derived more benefit they buy from M. and W. condones, perhaps unwisely, on from it than from any thing else I the score of ignorance and callowness, but which it will not excuse in men of mature years.

It is probable that the young summer neckwear going at 50 lady in question spoke from pure cents at T. L. Wallace & Co's? ignorance and from the idea that Elegant $1 goods all go for 50 many girls entertain that men cents. have some mysterious methods of finding enjoyment which they service at Trites Bros., stable Alrefuse to disclose to the other sex. bany Saturday's of each week un-In this connection the San Fran- til futher notice. cisco Chronicle proceeds to read a somewhat astonishing lecture, when it says:

Women, and especially young women, seem to regard the world as a huge secret society to which men are admitted by virtue of their being men, and from which women are rigorously excluded. They fancy that within this universal lodge there go on scenes which are wildly entrancing and highly delightfus, and as the unknown is always exaggerated, they conceive of men's pleasures when freed from restraint as something nearly approaching the joys of the New Jerusalem. Older women are not so apt to make this mistake, but even they are a little timorous sometimes, even though they know they can turn their husbands inside out as easily as a glove, and that the partners of their joys and sorrows can no more keep a secret from them than they can fly.

But all this does not answer the 30 Urinary Weakness, wetting bed question, what can the married 32 Diseases of the heart, palpitation .... 10 man whose family are away do with himself in his leisure moments or hours? Of course he can dine with his former companions; he can go the theatre; he can call on his wife's relations, SPECIFICS and, in an emergency, upon ladies of his acquaintance whom an unkind fate has kept in town. But CALIFORNIA he soon gets through this round of mild dissipation and is initial on his own resources, and then on his own resources, and then to do with himself?

It was suggested not long ago in an Eastern journal that the answer to the question lies in the revival of the ancient custom of polygamy, or at least of bigamy, it being proposed that the law be so amended as to make it lawful for a man to have a summer wife ELECTRIC COUGH CURE, while the original spouse is away in the country. Of course there are some objections to the plan, but it really seems to present more desirable and agreeable features than any other scheme vet suggested. It is not good for man to be alone, and if the materfamilias betakes herself and the family to the seaside or the mountains or the lakes, why should not the law provide for a deputy materfamilias, who shall keep alive the sacred fire upon the hearthstone of domesticity, and dusted and kept in there proper places? Unless some such system as this can receive the sanction of law and the approval of public forms the beginning of this contribution to the social studies of the day must remain unanswered.

Such sentiments coming from deplorable conditions of things in the minds of a portion of this great country. Fortunately the above semi-sarcastic philosophy finds but few devotees, else our social fabric would not long maina'n is purity and strength.
