LABOR TO GET A HOME.

So far as possible every man should aim to secure a home of his own. In the long run it is cheaper. The temptation of one who rents is to make frequent changes, and no truer saying was ever uttered than that "three moves are as bad as a fire." You may have only an average amount of furniture. Its transportation cannot be effected without breaking some of it and marring a great deal more. As a rule nothing fits whither you go. Even things which you did not need will have to be bought to replace destroyed or damaged ones so as to meet new conditions. When all has been done you are fifty or seventy-five dollars worse off than you were before. Besides all connected with the household are worn out, are disgusted, sick of themselves and everybody that they know; that is, unless they are angels in disposition. It seems strange to see a large proportion of the families in the community tear up and move every spring, as if the vagrant habits of their ancestors away back in the early centuries still ran as a tendency in their blood and could not be resisted. In the second place, any man who ceases to live in a hired house in exchange for one of his own instinctively, unconsciously becomes a better citizen. He gains a new interest in seeing the taxes kept moderate, business flourish, good order prevail, general improvements go forward and the conditions of the people's happiness and prosperity multiplied. It is is among the propertyless classes classes chiefly that socialism, communsion, revolution and anarchy flourish and endanger the existing order of things. It is a duty that the head of the family owes not only to those dependment upon him for support but to the community to aim to become a homeholder. The larger the proportion of this class in the country the safer will sail the ship of state.

When land and building material is as cheap as it is in Oregon the opportunity to procure a home should not be overlooked, for as the country grows older, and becomes more densely populated the price of real estate will be beyond the reach of many.

WHEN the American emigration commissioners now investigating Europe get through with their work they will certainly be in a position to make a sensation. They have found the charges as to organized systems for unloading flawed humanity on the western continent to be more than verified. Half the truth is not yet known. If the commissioners have the nerve to tell all the facts, without regard to whom they hurt, it will open the eyes of the blatant demagogues who have so far prevented sensible legislation on the subject.

DAY by day the impression grows stronger that France and Russia have reached an understanding which will be formulated very soon as a treaty of alliance. Such a treaty would be the natural outcome of the renewal of the Dreibund, for that alliance is aimed, as directly at Russia and France as though they were specifically mentioned. An alliance between these two nations might do either one of two things—it might maintain the peace of Europe or it might precipitate a general war.

It is not improbable that paying coal mines will be contributing their wealth to the country tributary to Albany in the near future.

THERE are good reasons to believe that there will be no stopping of trains on the Oregon Pacific railroad. The company is earning more than enough money to pay the employes and other expenses and it would be folly to stop traffic. The men should have the first claim to the earnings until they are paid. The company should have paid them long ago. There is no danger of the employes losing it, but they cannot live on promises, and the money should be forthcoming.

THE Nevada City Transcript has a picture of a young woman of that place who wants a husband. The portrait bears a suspicious likeness to some advertising cuts, but if it be a genuine picture, the man who proposes matrimony to the original will need no other voucher for his courage. She has the eye and the mein of a grenadier, and nothing short of a Winchester would keep the head of the household in actual control of the situation.

THE cause of female suffrage has received a temporary backset in Australia. The legislative assembly of New South Wales, by a vote of 57 to 34, has rejected Sir Henry Parkes' motion in favor of extending the ballot to women. It would be interesting to know the sentiments of the women of that colony on the question. Probably the matter stands very much as it does here, that is, the women are united in asking the right to vote.

LINN county could and should make a creditable showing in the Oregon exhibit car that is to go East soon.
