WEALTH AND ESTEEM.
EX-SENATOR INGALLS has finally captured some commendatory remarks from Oregon's newspaper, the first since he was misplaced in the Kansas senatorial fight. This commendation comes from Mr.
Ingalls having uttered an unanswerable truth according to the Oregonian's view of the case. In a recent lecture Mr. Ingalls said that millionaires in this country existed because they had more brains than their fellow men and by virtue of this brain power were enabled to accumulate their millions. This view of the case coincides with the Oregonian's idea which is taken from the standpoint of the millionaires themselves, and therefore it ekes out a few words of praise for Mr. Ingalls. The particular point that finds favor with the Oregonian, however, is not that Mr. Ingalls speaks the truth this time, but that he enunciates a seemingly telling blow against the people in the controversy between the money power and the people.

CABLE dispatches from London tell us that certain members of the English royal family are taking great interest in the preparations for the Columbian World's Fair and that it is highly probable that they will take advantage of the event to visit the United States. It is also possible that the Emperor of Germany, should his country and the world be at peace in 1893, may come and see us.

Have you seen the fine line of summer neckwear going at 50 cents at T. L. Wallace & Co's?
Elegant $1 goods all go for 50 cents.
HUMPHREYS'
DR. HUMPHREYS'S SPECIFIC is scientifically and carefully prepared prescription; used for many years in private practice with success, and for over thirty years used by people. Every single specific is a cure for the disease named.
These specifics cure without drugging, purging or reducing the system, and are in fact and deed the sovereign remedies of the world.

Take another instance: the man that possesses the only skill in existence whereby people who must reach their homes, must cross the otherwise impassable river; does any of that wonderful superiority of brains spoken of, when he makes the people pay a tariff for crossing that secures him the fortune that makes him the millionaire, show up in this case?
Certainly not, for it was a quality different from intellectual superiority that enables him to capture the situation for his personal aggrandisement.

Yet the application of the two principles mentioned is the actual foundation for nearly all of the millionaire accumulations in the country, and it is for that reason that a direct opposition to them exists in the hearts and minds of the people.

Undoubtedly there exists a great amount of feeling, akin almost to adoration, for the persons endowed with the power that these immense possessions seem to carry with them, but the vast majority of people, if they would stop to fully consider the subject, would leave that adoration for the duet above mentioned—Mr. Ingalls and the Oregonian—to sing together.
Wealth of itself should not convey a patent to esteem, but rather the employment of wealth in a manner to benefit and enlarge the sphere of human beings on earth, as well as its possession, should be the measure by which to gauge estimation.

These improvements made in explosives and small arms within the few years threaten to change so radically the science of war that the tacticians of Europe have been greatly disconcerted, not being able to decide how the armies of the future are to be maneuvered.
Smokeless powder seemed to set naught all the received rules of strategy, and the most experienced generals, in an agony of doubt, debated among themselves and in military reviews how they could best protect their own forces that could now with difficulty be concealed, and inflict serious losses upon an enemy endeavoring to deploy its soldiers under the same difficulties. The question has since been further complicated by the adoption for nearly all the armies of the great powers of a rifle of small caliber. The ball or cartridge of the new gun of small caliber is sheathed with steel, and if it explodes in the body makes a wound about as dangerous as that of the rifle of larger bore. The French experts agree with the German in regard to the wounds inflicted at the shorter ranges, that is to say they are smaller, and there is less damage done to veins, arteries, bones bones and muscles. But at the distance of three-quarters of a mile or more the case is reversed, at least for the Lebel rifle. Then the fracture of bones and other lesions become more complicated, and as in battles fought with the new weapons most of the wounds will be inflicted at long range the humanitarian value of the rifle of small caliber is far from being proved.

A MOVEMENT has been inaugurated at Washington by which it is intended to express the sentiment of gratitude which the people of this country hold toward France for the generous aid extended by that country in our struggle for independence. It is proposed to present a bronze copy of London's famous statue of Washington to the people of France, and it is to be known as the gift of the women of America. To this end an association has been formed, of which Mrs. Stephen J. Field is the president, which has undertaken to collect the means necessary and to see the plan successfully carried out. Every patriotic American will appreciate the peculiar fitness of the idea, and there should not be the least difficulty in obtaining the necessary funds.

The men of this vicinity need not be jealous because their wives talk so constantly about Matthews and Washburn. It is not their good looks the ladies are talking about, it is the good qualities of the cook and heating stoves they sell. Every one seems to be delighted when they buy from M. and W.
