CHILE

Chile is divided into eighteen provinces, comprising sixty-one departments and four territories. The legislative power is vested in the national congress, composed of a chamber of deputies, 115 members, elected by the departments for a term of three years; and a senate, thirty-seven members, elected for a term of six years by a direct vote of the provinces.

The religion is Roman Catholic, but Protestantism is tolerated. The state church has one archbishop, nominated by the president and confirmed by the pope; also three bishops, each of whom receives $6,000 per annum.

Children Cry for PITCHER'S CASTORIA

Railway Age says that the rapidly with which steel rails have continued to replace those of iron in the railways of this country is remarkable. In 1880 there were down 33,680 miles of steel rails, out of 115,647 miles of road reported upon, or 29.1 per cent.

The defeat of Balmaceda in Chile seems to have been complete and final and only his prompt and rapid flight to some other country, presumably to Buenos Ayres, where his family were sent some time ago, saved him from death at the hands of the mob which sacked and burned his residence.

The men of this vicinity need not be jealous because their wives talk so constantly about Matthews and Washburn. It is not their good looks the ladies are talking about, it is the good qualities of the cook and heating stoves they sell.
