WAR MACHINERY.

The amount of money and material that is now uselessly expended in war preparations, is simply enormous, and if expended in matters to make people happy and contented would make a millenium upon earth. A correspondent in Lond on writing to the New York Times has gathered some statistics upon the subject.

He says that during the six years between 1882 and 1888 the expenditures of the seven great European powers on armies and navies amounted to no less than £974,000,000. Since 1888 it is estimated that the average annual expenditure has increased one-fifth. In 1882, when, with the exception of England's small troubles in Egypt, the whole world was at peace, serious negotiations were begun with a view to the general disarmament. Such a cause would have been practicable then to a degree to which in no period since it has been even remotely possible, while in the future the question cannot be for a moment entertained. There can be no thought now of the reduction of the huge garrisons of Europe save by that natural process to which each year has brought us nearer, but had the great nations agreed in 1882 to be content with one half of the enormous outlays, and thus to reduce their insurance against war by 50 per cent what would they have saved by the end of 1888? In round figures France would have been richer by £115,000,000, Germany by £70,000,000, Austria-Hungary by £41,000,000, Spain by £21,500,000, England, by £81,000,000, Russia by £114,000,000, and Italy by £41,000,000.

If the voice of those who advocated an internationally assured peace had been then listened to, the result would have been a saving of £478,000,000. But this means money saved only. The actual commercial gain must have been indefinitely greater, since by a reduction of men by one half $1,-200,000 Frenchmen, 1,260,000 Germans, 572,500 Austrians, and 340,-000 Britons would have been restored to industrial pursuits, leaving the relative strength of armies as fighting machines not in any way altered. Reflections of this character are natural at a time when samples of the mighty war engines of two great Nations are floating side by side in the harmony and friendliness of Portsmouth Harbor.

The Chronicle wants to know why don't the tin-plate liars give the new industry a chance? Are they afraid that the experiment of stimulating it by a real protective tariff will result precisely as the effort to encourage the manufacture of wire nals did? By putting a tariff on wire nails of 4 cents a pound the industry was so stimulated in this country that the price of nails was reduced from 8½ cents a pound to less than 2 cents a pound, and the American production increased from less than 20,000 kegs to nearly 4,000,000. The bitter hostility of the free traders to tin-plate experiment is evidently due to the apprehension that the protectionist in a very short time will be able to triumphantly point to hundreds of tin-plate factories and lower prices as the good results which always follow the establishment of a great industry in this country.

The dominant strength of Russia seems to be reaching beyond the borders of its own kingdom, and to hold a sway over other nations. This is shown in a marked degree in the results of the recent visit of the heir to the Russian crown to Japan. It is said that the attack on the Czarowitz and the expense it entailed cost Japan over $20,000. What was even more costly was the humiliation of the Japanese emperor by his Russian visitor. The expense can be made up from the revenues, but the royal prestige cannot be restored. The fact that their ruler was made to play the role of a suppliant and a lackey hurt the national pride of Japan. If the drunken spree of a royal scion can cause such a result in a foreign country, it is high time that the royal scion be confined to his own domains.

Precept and example are all very well, but they do not succeed in learning human beings in all cases. In fact it nearly always takes downright hard experience to implant lasting impressions in the mind. The eastern cities have for years been given object lessons from the experience on this coast as to the evils of Chinese immigation, but they could never realize the truth of the matter until the wily Mongol invaded their own domains and gave them a taste of actual experience in the matter. Then they commenced to see the true inwardness of the case.

Belgium seems to be unhappily situated, for if the European powers actually get into a fight and commence maneuvering their armies against each other on the field of carnage, it is almost impossible to help drawing little Belgium into the squabble and making her territory the scene of some conflicts. She may wish to assume a stand and look on attitude but she cannot. The dog fight will be so near her own door that she cannot get in or out without kicking the dogs and getting entangled in the squabble.
