A FIELD FOR EXTENSION OF TRADE.

Country Down the Coast from Yaquina West to Coos Bay: Reels less With Albany.

Mr. F. J. Miller, who has just returned from Florence, at the mouth of the Simula, says he thinks there is an opening for Albany to reach out and secure a healthy trade there. Florence is a thriving town of 300 inhabitants, and possesses several good merchant establishments. In the neighborhood of 1500 people draw their supplies from there. Eugene is 75 miles distant, and has no connection except by teams to tide water, and at present Florence receives all supplies from Portland and San Francisco in coasting steamers, via Coos Bay. The steam schooner Geo. H. Chance now makes weekly trips from Coos Bay to Yaquina, stopping at Simula and was ports. The transportation facilities of Albany, enabling quick shipments to the sea at Yaquina, offers a field for business operations in that direction that should prove mutually beneficial.

Henceforth there has been no direct communication, but now that vessels make regular trips from Yaquina down the coast to Simula the people there, Mr. Miller states, are desirous of securing closer business relations with Albany. The roundabout way of securing shipments of goods via Coos Bay makes prices there very exorbitant, as may be seen when it is stated that kerosene is sold at $5 per cent. The work on the jetty and light house is in progress, and considerable building is being done, which gives a healthy tone to business there, and it is natural that the merchants should look for some nearer place from which to draw supplies. An amount of $100,000 will be expended upon the jetty and light house within the next year, which will require a considerable amount of supplies as well as employing no small amount of labor.

A little effort on the part of Albany business men might create a valuable addition to the trade of this city. Mr. Miller states that the Sugar Pine Door & Lumbering Co. of this city expects to secure considerable business there, and the same can be done in other lines. It is certainly worth trying for. Albany as a competing business center can offer figures that cannot be discounted by any city in Oregon. This she is able to do on account of advantages in transportation, and a legitimate solicitation for trade at the right time and place would in doubt produce beneficial results.

Farm Residence Burned.

The farm residence of Mr. John Berry, near this city, caught fire Thursday night and was destroyed, together with nearly all its contents. Mr. Berry was in Scio at the time, the house being occupied by his wife and daughter. The fire occurred at 10 o'clock. Mr. Berry's son Charles, who lives near the roof and hastened to the house. Mrs. Berry and daughter were asleep within. He hastily awakened them and endeavored to save a portion of the household effects, but very little was removed, as the fire had got good headway and burned rapidly. It is supposed to have caught from the chimney. The loss was about $1000, with no insurance.

This Boat Corvallis.

A soda water deposit has been discovered in the Nehalem valley, near Vernonia. A soap mine has been found near Chadwell, on Lewis & Clark's; crystal springs of the purest water; gold is being dug out on Genevieve street and coal on West Eighth street. This is record of the week, with forty-eight hours more to go on. A tin mine is all we need to complete our joy, says the Astorian.

A Car Famine.

Grain men complain that they are hard to procure cars enough for shipping. Grain stacks are piled thirty-three deep in the Grange warehouse. Consolation, however, may be found in the fact that a car famine is about as desirable a kind of famine as a community could have, indicating as it does, big prosperity.—Yanhill Reporter.

THE NORTHWEST WHEAT CROP.

Over $15,000,000 Will be Received by Farmers—A Prosperous Year.

Harvesting operations in Oregon, which are now nearly over, reveal the fact that the coming year will undoubtedly be one of prosperity for the Northwest, as a result of the large amount of money which will be left in the country through sale of grain, and wheat in particular. Farmers will receive more money through the sale of grain this year than during any former season in the history of the Northwest. Prices are high, and the best indications show that they will remain high. Wheat is to-day worth from 85 to 90 cents per bushel in Portland. It is worth from 74 to 76 cents per bushel in Walla Walla; that is 14 cent per bushel deducted from the price for freights. Valley wheat is now from 75 to 80 cents delivered at the warehouse, and considerable has been sold in Albany for 85 and 86 cents.

INCREASE IN PRICE.

Last year wheat in the valley sold for 75c and 70c per bushel, an average for the crop. Walla Walla and Pomeroy wheat netted the growers from 55c to 60c per bushel as an average. This year it is from 10c to 15c per bushel higher for valley and the same for Eastern Oregon and Washington wheat. If the yield is equal to last year's, it means from 15 to 20 per cent more money at a weight for the Northwestern farmer.

The Evening Telegram of Portland, in presenting some figures on the wheat crop, thinks the crop in the district east of the Cascade mountains will not be quite as much this year as last. This estimate is no doubt incorrect. Wheat dealers of Albany think the crop in that district, like the Willamette Valley, will be in excess of last year. There is a greater acreage of both wheat and oats in both Oregon and Washington this year than last and a conservative estimate cannot but make the yield greater.

HOME CONSUMPTION.

Supposing 150,000 to have been the population of the Willamette valley during the last fiscal year, the consumption was 700,000 bushels. The greater portion of this would come from the valley yield of wheat, leaving some 3,750,000 bushels for export. This would be 62c per bushel, or $2,333,750. Were the population of Eastern Oregon and Idaho 525,000, the consumption would be some 2,500,000 bushels, leaving about 15,000,000 bushels for export at 57c per bushel, or $8,625,000. The valley crop, in addition to this, made some $10,553,750, which farmers in the Northwest received for wheat alone.

WILLAMETTE VALLEY.

In the Willamette valley this year the yield is larger than last, when it was some 4,500,000 bushels. Here, again, it is impossible to ascertain the increase more closely than in a rough estimate. The average is greater than last year, and the yield per acre is larger and will reach fully 5,000,000 bushels. The yield in the district east of the Cascades if put down at 17,500,000 bushels, the same as last year, would make the Northwest crop of this year 22,500,000. Deducting 3,150,000 bushels for home consumption there would remain 19,350,000 bushels for export. This at present prices, averaging the price in the various localities, would make $15,380,000 received by the farmers of the Northwest this year. This amount of wealth from wheat alone distributed throughout the Northwest ought to leave no complaint of hard times.
