THE WORLD CIVILIZER.

The greatest world civilizer that has yet brought its work to bear upon the human family, is the means of rapid transit that has been brought about by the railway.

The Age of Steel says that from official data compiled from a contemporary it appears that the total length of increase in the railways of the world during the five years ending December 31, 1888, was 63,994 miles.

One of the most important industries of the world comes from the fishing business. Especially important are they on this coast. In 1883 the capital employed amounted to $3,494,230.

Dr. HUMPHREYS'S Specifics are scientifically and carefully prepared, prescriptions used for many years in private practice with success, and for over thirty years used by the people.

It is possible to obtain data showing the increase in new lines of railway constructed during the past two years, it would probably be found that the ratio of increase during this period is as great as that during the period just reviewed.

THE tin question continues to bother lots of newspaper men, who want revenue for political purposes only, and who are bound to make out that no tin is or can be manufactured in this country.

Mr. Steinberger in Piqua, O., was compelled to eat a dish of very high flavored crow a few days ago. Mr. Steinberger was in the act of constructing a barn, and to help the democratic cause went to the Cincinnati Corrugating Company, which the free trade press had characterized as a mythical tin concern, and ordered tin for a roof, providing that it should be wholly of American manufacture.
