STATE AND COAST.

Oregon's Assessment Shows a Large Increase the Past Year

GRANT COUNTY GOES BACK.

The Railroad Commissioners' Cases Progressing Slowly—An Accident at Salem.

SALEM, Nov. 21.—Eighteen of the thirty-one counties of Oregon have announced the total of their assessment for county taxes for 1891, and of the counties thus far reported all show an increase in the total taxable property of from several thousand to several million dollars with the exception of Grant county, which falls $8000 behind the assessment of 1890. The total taxable property of this state last year was $114,077,788, and the total of the eighteen counties returned this year is over fifty million. When it is considered that Multnomah, with fully $50,000,000, and a dozen other counties, among them Lane, Baker and Lake counties, it is conceded the assessment this year will be much larger than last year.

Wasco county's assessment roll just returned shows the total taxable property to be $2,748,110.

A boy named Fullerton, living south of Salem, had his leg broke this afternoon. The bone protruded through the skin.

The taking of testimony in the railroad commission cases versus the Southern Pacific takes another rest of a few days. The referee finds it a big task. He will have to go to San Francisco for a part of the railroad company's testimony. The Union Pacific case comes on later, and for some of its testimony it will be necessary to go to the company's head offices at Omaha. It is doubtful if the cases will be ready for hearing at the February term of circuit court.

THE HOP MARKET.

Growers Cannot Expect Over Fourteen Cents Per Pound.

PORTLAND, Nov. 21.—The hop market is generally reported as weaker. Hop growers are at last realizing the fact that the condition of the market all over the country is such that they cannot possibly expect over 14 cents per pound for the very choicest of their grades, and they are beginning to move their supply East. The shipment of several large lots to England had a tendency to stiffen the market. Choice hops are extremely scarce, not over 5 per cent of the entire crop, which averages this year 35,000 bales. It is estimated by the dealers in the hop district that there are not more than 10,000 bales of choice hops remaining unsold, and these will be held by the growers as long as possible. Eastern brokers are holding off all their orders being for small lots only and at the lowest possible prices, their excuse being that, from present indications, hops will be much lower in December than they are to-day. There is no apparent reason for this, however, as the hop crop has not been overabundant, and their excuses are regarded by most dealers as an attempt to bear the market.

Fight With a Crazy Wife.

GREENVILLE O., Nov. 21.—Mrs Charles Hellinger threw a bowl of concentrated lye into her husband's face at Arcanum Thursday night. Hellinger fled to a neighbor's house. His wife pursued him, and as he was washing his eyes she drove the blade of a hatchet into his back. Then the woman went home and cut her own throat. It is supposed that she was insane. Hellinger will lose his sight and may lose his life.

Appointed by the Pope.

ROME, Nov. 21.—The pope has appointed the bishop of Chicoutimi, a province of Quebec, Canada, to be coadjutor of the archbishop of Quebec, with the right of succession to the archbishopric. The vicar-general of Quebec, it is expected, will succeed to the bishopric of Chicoutimi.

HUMOROUS DRIFT.

"There are my last sad writes," said the country editor as he finished a notice of suspension.

She—When is a honeymoon supposed to end? He when the last quarter is gone, I guess.

Why are books your very best friend? Because you can shut them up without offending them.

A contemporary has the effrontery to ask is the horse race dying out? No, but it's going fast.

Night Clerk—How does it seem to be a hotel waitress? New girl—It seems as if I was maid to order.

McFingle—Poor Brown! He's gone over to the silent majority. McFangle—Wh—why—I—when did he—is he dead? McFangle—No; married!

Mrs. Youngwife—I would like a nice venison steak this morning, if it is not to dear. Butcher Cutlet—Madame, you forget venison is deer at any price.

Riggs—The execution by electricity of that last batch of murderers was to say the least revolting.

Jaggs—Yes, it must have been a very shocking affair.

She (sternly)—What was that noise I heard early in the hall this morning when you came in? He (hastily)—It must have been the day breaking, darling.

In Cyclone Land.—Traveler—What is that tall chimney for? Some one putting up a factory? Citizen—Naw. That's Jim Bisbee's well. Cyclone turned it inside out.

"My speech at the meeting last night was my maiden effort," said the young orator proudly. "Yes," cynically replied his friend; "I noticed it was something of a miss."

"I wish I were like them again," he sighed. "Ah," she queried. "Yes," he continued, "it sparkles so." "And it pops sometimes," she mused softly, but he was too stupid for any use.

Georgia's new law prohibiting physicians addicted to drink from practicing their profession will put the more convivial doctors down there out of all patients with it. Still, they can practice at the bar.

Old Fogy (reading newspaper)—It says they weighed anchor, but, confound them, they don't say how much it weighed. What I want is facts, but these newspapers never tell what a man wants to know.

"I see there is one class of men who are unable to obtain divorces in Chicago," remarked Mr. Stebbins. "For mercy sakes who are they?" his wife questioned. "The bachelors," he replied, as he shut the door.

Simpkins—So you are determined to marry Mrs. Weeds. Do you believe she cares for you—or your money? Vandergould—Cares for me? She swears she loves me with all her might! Simpkins—H'm—the widow's mite.

SIX INCHES OF SNOW

MINNESOTA COVERED WITH A COAT OF WHITE.

Indications of a Cold Wave in Dakota—Kansas and Montana Visited by Storms.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 21.—Over half a foot of snow fell in this city and vicinity this morning.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Two storm centers last night over Kansas and Montana have joined in an extensive depression over the Northwest from northwestern Illinois to Dakota. The snow and cloud area will spread eastward and probably over most of the Atlantic states during Sunday. An area of high barometer follows the storm over Dakota, with indications of the advance of a cold wave.

Call and see his new patterns.

A Beautiful Sight.

Julius Gradwohl wishes to renew his invitation to the ladies of Albany to call and see his beautiful array of hanging lamps. It is a sight worth looking at. He has just received a complete line of bicycles and tricycles for boys and girls. He has also received another large lot of sugar, and those who wish to purchase while sugar is cheap, should not wait. He still sells choice Arbuckle's coffee at one pound for 25 cents. It will pay you to call and inspect his goods. Those who want fine holiday presents should call early and have them laid away for them.

Fell Dead.

These words are familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizens. The explanation is "Heart Disease." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symptoms: Short Breath, Pain in Side, Smothering Spells, Swollen Ankles, Asthmatic Breathing, Weak and Hungry Spells, Tenderness in Shoulder or Irregular Pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at Stanard & Cusick, who also sells the New Heart Cure.

WILL WHEAT GO UP?

Probable Effect of the Russian Ukase on the Market.

A SHORTAGE IN SAN FRANCISCO

The United States at Present Holds the Wheat, and Controls the Markets of the World.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Secretary Friedlander, of the produce exchange and call board association, in an interview this morning regarding the probable effect on the wheat market of the Russian ukase prohibiting the export of wheat, said: "The opinion is advanced by some speculators that the ukase has been expected for so long a time that its effect now will not be so great as at first anticipated. You will note also that the ukase is issued at a time when Russia's ports of exportation are usually frozen up, and when the output goes chiefly by rail to Austria and Germany. As to its effects here this market usually follows that of London, on which Europe also depends. Liverpool and London are now dependent on New York and Chicago, as the United States at present holds the wheat. If New York and Chicago advance, London and Europe will follow, but if New York and Chicago markets do not advance, what can London do? The San Francisco market is now in a peculiar condition. The market has cornered itself with manipulation by reason of a scarcity of wheat, and an almost unprecedented abundance of ships available for wheat carrying. It is estimated that the stocks of wheat in this state December 1 will not aggregate over 450,000 tons, while there are at present in port vessels with an aggregate carrying capacity of 250,000 tons. Fifty more ships are due here by the end of this year, with an aggregate of 140,000 tons, making the total tonnage of 390,000 tons carrying capacity as against 450,000 tons of wheat on hand. This leaves a surplus of only 60,000 tons of wheat by the end of the year, and from this we may provide for our own use and for exports to the way of flour to Asia and South America. Of course the market will be relieved somewhat by Oregon's shipments, but they cannot send us enough to balance our needs. For this reason the market has been and must continue to be strong. Quotations will continue to be effected by those of London, but not to the extent that would follow were the conditions other than those I have stated." At 11 o'clock an advance of one cent in the Chicago market has been noted, and the London market was reported firm and tending upwards.

A Slanderer Horsewhipped.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Steit, wife of William Steit, a grocer, horsewhipped Edwin S. Willard on the street yesterday. Willard was formerly a clerk employed by her husband, but is now in business for himself. Mrs. Steit says that Willard had been talking about her. She lay in wait for him on Dixwell avenue, and when Willard came along she stepped from her place of concealment, saying: "You will slander me, will you?" and began plying her whip. Willard started to run, but as he is only five feet high and weighs 270 pounds she easily kept up with him. Bystanders finally seized Mrs. Steit and allowed him to escape. Mrs. Steit says that if he persists in slandering her she will shoot him, and her friends say she will keep her word. Willard applied for a warrant for her arrest, but by the advice of counsel he concluded to let the matter drop.

Barrillas Threatened with Death.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 21.—There is great complaint here of the bad service in regard to the mails from the United States and the delay attending their distribution. Letters are also very frequently lost. Telegrams recently received from Guatemala say the political excitement is increasing there, and that no day passes that President Barrillas does not find a note threatening him with death.

Killed With a Piece of Timber.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 21.—W. D. Bracewell was killed yesterday by W. D. Smith, at the latter's saw mill, in Laurence county. Bracewell had gone to the mill on business. Smith called him to one side, and the men had an earnest conversation, in which Smith was heard to accuse Bracewell of complicity in the murder of Smith's father, who mysteriously disappeared some time ago. All knowledge of the elder Smith's fate was denied by Bracewell, who then started to walk away. Smith seized a piece of scantling and struck Bracewell a violent blow on the head. Smith then walked to his home, a short distance away, and has not been seen since. Bracewell died within two hours.

BUCKED THE TIGER.

AN OREGON BOY LOSES $25,000 AT ONE SITTING.

It Remained for Massachusetts' Peculiar Laws to Reveal His Secret—A Remarkable Case.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—John Stetson, banker, broker and theatrical manager, yesterday paid to Mrs. Anna B. Everett $30,000, and thus settled one of the most remarkable cases ever tried before a Massachusetts court. Mrs. Everett claimed that Mr. Stetson was the proprietor of a swell gambling club, known as the Carlton, on Hamilton place. On the night of November 2, 1889, Jonathan Bourne jr., of Portland, Or., son of the late millionaire millowner, bucked the tiger at Carlton and lost $25,000 in one sitting. He was drunk at the time and played recklessly. He gave notes to cover his losses, and then kicked about paying them. After he had sobered off, to keep the matter quiet he compromised by paying $16,000. One of Stetson's clerks, George Everett, knew of this incident, and used it to good advantage; for, when he was arrested on the charge of embezzlement, he alleged that Stetson wanted to get rid of him, that he might not see too much of what was done at the Carlton. There were fifty-six counts in the indictment, and the jury declared him not guilty of fifty-three of them, and disagreed as to the other three. That case was placed on the docket for a new trial. Then Everett's wife went to his rescue in a novel way. There is an old law in Massachusetts which gives to any person the right to recover money lost at gaming by any other person, provided the loser does not bring suit within three months. In case of recovery, the plaintiff is to recover three times the amount lost. Mrs. Everett learned of this law, and she immediately sued Stetson to recover $51,000, which is three amount which Bourne lost at gambling including interest. Bourne was not a party to this suit. He would have given that sum to have kept the matter quiet, but Mrs. Everett had a twofold object in view and would not abandon her case. Bourne thereupon departed for Oregon, and is there now. The case was brought into court and Mrs. Everett was in danger of losing it on her original declaration, but she discovered new evidence which, it is alleged, proved conclusively that Stetson was the proprietor of the club and also that Bourne lost at gambling the sum named. There was a long legal wrangle over this amendment, and a few days ago permission was granted her to amend her original declaration. The defendant evidently did not care to have that new evidence go before the court, and Thursday he offered to compromise. Mrs. Everett refused to listen to any talk of a compromise until the criminal case against her husband was withdrawn. Yesterday at 3 P. M. this case was nolle prossed, and a few minutes later Stetson's lawyer paid to Mrs. Everett $30,000 in cash.
