THAT EUROPEAN WAR.

To the producers of cereals in this country, the question of war in Europe, is one of interest as bearing upon the price of grain in the future. If it comes we can sell our produce at higher rates, but the question of whe'her it will come is still a doubtful one.

The New York Herald says that the "New York Times yesterday printed a very startling bit of news to the effect that the German emperor had dictated a letter, which has been received by an "official high in the United States government," to the effect that the "war in Europe cannot be postponed beyond next spring." The letter confirms and attaches the gravest import to the personal animosity between the Czar and the German emperor, which was first made known to the world by M. Jacques St. Cere's special cables to the Herald. The Russian army is represented as partially mobilized, and 650,000 men are already in a position to assume the offensive on the Austro-German frontier. It is also hinted the Czar's recent ukase forbidding the exportation of rye and wheat was for military and not for economical reasons. The German emperor is moreover stated to have concluded arrangements with a New York house to corner supplies of war material in the United States, and this corner is to be controlled by the Emperor William himself. Ramification of this vast system are said to extend throughout the country and to embrace the most important gun, sword, belt, blanket and packing establishments in the the Eastern and Western States. All this is very alarming. But why wait until spring? The network of strategic railroads is now so vast and the capacity for entraining and detraining large masses of men, horses and supplies is so perfect that a war in Europe could be carried on to-day in midwinter just as well as in spring or summer. Those in the best position to know predict that when the next war does come it will flash upon us like a "bolt from the blue." Any trival incident, any exuberance of a Parisan gamin or a Berlin spitzbube may precipitate it, and the "first news of the war" will be a fierce cavalry battle on the frontier. For every army in Europe, except that of Russia, is ready to take the field at the first click of the telegraph. We don't attach much importance to the massing of Russian troops on her western frontier. Russia always does this in the summer and autumn because food for horse and man is cheaper in Poland than in the interior. Besides this a semi-mobilized army within striking distance of Germany and Austria tips with incisive eloquence the words of Russian diplomatists. These troops answer the Czar's purposes much better where they are than if they were hidden away in the inaccessible of the empire. Another reason—and from a military point of view a very weighty one—why there is no immediate fear of war is that the Russian army is not yet fully equipped with the new rifle. Another year must elapse before this can be accomplished. Moreover, the Czar is firmly resolved to maintain peace, and, aside from technical military reasons, it is safe to say that in Western Europe, at least, he will never be the aggressor. Isn't it rather significant that these wild rumors of "war next spring" always coincide with the floating of Russian loan, and with the efforts—usually successful—of London, Berlin and even Paris bankers to "bear" it?

THE war news was enhanced the other day by the Russian Minister of war ordering the preparation of 16,000,000 pounds of soldiers' biscuits by the first of the year, and a decided sensation has been caused in St. Petersburg in consequence, so says a dispatch from that city. It is possible, however, that the biscuits may be baked and eaten in peace, although the chances are the undue anxiety of the old world rulers to avert war by increasing their armies and navies may precipitate a conflict any day. The query naturally arrises, however, what effect shuch a large draw upon the breadstuffs of the country will have upon the starving peasants, whose supplies are already short.

THE harpoon found in a monster whale, recently captured in the Arctic seas by a San Francisco whaler, where it had been imbedded for forty years, seems like a link from the past. It was a part of the implements of an abandoned whaler that went to pieces in San Francisco harbor during the 49 er gold excitement That whale formed a good preservative for it.

THE arbitrators in the London carpenters strike, whose decision has just ended the six months out for the purpose of reducing hours of labor, and increasing wages, decided on lessening the hours, adversely on raising wages. The probabilities are that the strike will be resumed.

THE anti-foreign element in China seems to have met with the displeasure of the government as the decree has gone forth that the printing and publishing of anti-foreign placards is a capital offense, to be punished by decapitation. Placarding will probably decline in that country.

OREGON will have four electors in the next presidential race, and will outrank quite a number of the states. The whole number will be 444.

She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she was.—Free trial bottle of this great Discovery at Foshay & Mason's Drug Store, large bottles 50c, and $1.00.
