After working for us over thirteen months, A. H. Moore, left for Albany Tuesday morning, where he has accepted a position on the daily Herald. As a printer, Bert is just as good a man as ever over care to see.—Harrisburg Courier.

Cool weather and the absence of rain for a few days has put an end to the fears that high water would interfere with the navigation of the Upper Willamette by closing the locks at Oregon City. The river at Albany is now falling rapidly.

The deer named "Nellie" which was donated to the Portland City Park by Arlene Train, the 6-year-old daughter of S. S. Train, editor of the Albany Herald, arrived in good shape last Thursday, and was received by the fathers at the Zoo with open arms.—Oregonian.

Graham, the tailor has received one of the largest lines of fine suitings and trousers to be seen in Oregon, outside of Portland, embracing all the desirable patterns for winter wear. His prices will be found so low that any one can afford to wear one of his neat fitting tailor made suits and overcoats. He warrants his goods to be first-class, and guarantees a fit. Call and see his new patterns.

The Congressional Bazaar. The Bazaar entertained given by the ladies of the Congressional church Friday evening was a successful and pleasing affair. A short literary programme was rendered, and the display of fancy and staple wares and dainty trifles in the booths was very pretty. Luncheon was served to the many present in an agreeable manner. Leo Payne gave a well rendered recitation; little Maud Laughland sang a pretty child's song, and Miss Edith Harris, of Salem, favored the audience with several charming solos. The sale of articles was quite satisfactory.

COMING TO OREGON.

The Movement of Capital to the West for Investment is Increasing. While there is not now so much activity in real estate in any of the cities of Oregon as there was a year and a half ago, and immigration is not as large, the number of men seeking actual investment is a steadily increasing quantity.

They invariably look upon the Willamette Valley as a conservative, safe place for investment. An exchange in referring to the fact that capital has ceased going southward and is now coming to Oregon, says that in the eighties the Southern states, coming to the realization of present circumstances, recognizing that "the war is over," became imbued with the Western boom methods and succeeded in inducing capitalists to invest. It enhanced the idea that New England, Pennsylvania and Ohio were the only regions that produce iron, and it was fully satisfied that the South had something more substantial than cotton and sugar. Capital of late has been invested in the South, and in many instances investors have come out whole, but in the majority of cases there have been many reverses. Capitalists relative to the South and its prospects have become weary. They find natives without the push and activity necessary to the rebuilding of a region and the accomplishment of their objects, and they are introduced to a country where the malaria is only exceeded by the electric storms. Practical experience has taught the men of the East, eager to invest, that the South is the worst place they can go to. The bottom is out.

The next question presented to the capitalist is, where shall he go? There is actually nothing in the crowded east, where money even at interest brings but a nominal figure, and does not invite the young of this generation to become ambitious for riches. The south is already worn out, and the west alone remains as the region where there is an opportunity for solid investments. By the "west" we do not mean the particular region to "sunny" Kansas or Colorado, where the grandeur is unsurpassed by another state in the Union; to the poor Dakotas, where the wind chases away the rain; nor to Oklahoma, where there is a rainfall station game in progress. We mean the "far west," across the ranges, where the wind and the lightning is unknown; where there are no cyclones, no tornadoes, no freezing weather, no continual sunshine, no scorched prairies, no blizzard plains and no snow block regions.

Not only on account of the resources, advantages and ailments, are the eastern men of wealth and families persuaded to locate in the west. The storms of the east furnish sufficient inducement. No man would wish to live in the extreme east, where terrific storms are of frequent occurrence, or in the Mississippi states with their cyclones will remain with any idea of security to life, and it is no little inducement that has turned them to the climate of the west, where health, safety and at the same time an introduction to greater wealth.

The statement that Oregon is the object point of capitalists who have turned westward from the south, is daily substantiated by their arrival. That they have selected Oregon out of the other states of the northwest is more creditable to their good taste and foresight.

The Mission Car. The Baptist palace missionary car "Evangel" which was in Albany Friday, was a novel sight. This car was bought and furnished by Messrs. John D. Rockefeller, Colgate Hoyt, John B. Trevor, Charles H. Coby, and E. J. Barney, who turned it over to the American Baptist Publication company, and under whose auspices the car was sent out. The car travels free over the Northern Pacific railroad, which courtesy was extended them by the officials, stipulating only, when the wheels went into effect, to have the wheels changed to paper ones. These wheels cost $50 apiece, but the whole amount needed was furnished by different Sunday schools in this city, and the car was visited by many people.

Young Stoll Again in Trouble. John C. Stoll, the young man who was arrested and brought to this city for forging his father's name to a bank check, has since leaving Albany got into trouble in Seattle. He is accused by the Seattle Press-Times of spending $2000 on a woman of questionable character there, having to pay her that amount to keep her from presenting for payment a forged check he had given her some time ago. Young Stoll says now that he is going to quit "sowing wild oats." It is certainly time for him to do so, if he wishes to keep out of the penitentiary.

An Election Contest. The city election held in Junction recently will be taken into the courts and contested by the "outs." The grounds for the contest will be that the judges of the election refused to receive ballots cast by those who paid no taxes, the charter of said city making such provisions, claiming that said portion of the charter is contrary to the constitution of the state. Attorneys Walton and Skipworth have been retained by the "outs" and Attorney Gilard by the "ins." —Eugene Daily.

NEWS OF THE COAST.

Interesting Items From Exchanges Throughout the Northwest. Lake county shipped 1,140,000 pounds of wool this year. The Corvallis Canning Company has increased its capital stock to $30,000.

Ducks and geese are more plentiful all over the Willamette valley than for several years. S. J. Chadwick, re-elected mayor of Colfax, Wash., is a son of John S. P. Chadwick, of Salem.

Klamath county's assessor is named Smart and has a credit to his name, for the state board of equalization has complimented him by saying that his assessment roll was the most perfect and neat paper of the kind sent from any part of the state.

Umatilla county farmers are jubilant over the prospects for a fine harvest next season. Rain has been frequent and abundant lately, and everything is favorable for the ranchers—the bone and sinew of the country.

Hugh Clawson, one of the best hunters in Southern Oregon, whose prowess is well known in Siskiyou county, California, a few days ago killed a cinnamon bear near William Eby's stock ranch which weighed over 1100 pounds.

The demand seems to be increasing for the horses of this state in the markets of the East, and the dealers will likely reach out to the Klamath ranges for stock before another year. No larger stock ranch which weighed over 1100 pounds.

Edgar Burlingame, of Wamic, Wasco county, got lost in the mountains west of Oak Grove, a few days ago, while out hunting, and remained out two days and two nights with nothing to eat and four feet of snow on the ground. He finally turned up at the residence of Hon. W. McEl. Lewis, which is close to the edge of the timber.

Part of the Wheat Saved. In the recent fire in which the Seio roller mills and contents were consumed, there was 7480 bushels of wheat that belonged to farmers and over 3000 that belonged to Mr. Goins. Of this amount there was saved, placed in the warehouse and disposed of at auction on Wednesday, 2020 bushels. This with what was sold for chicken feed, etc., amounted to $1333.40. The expense of saving the wheat was $96.75, leaving a balance to be divided among those having wheat in the mill of $1246.65. This is a dividend of 16 1/2 cents per bushel, much more than it was thought possible to save. Mr. Goins, the largest loser by far of wheat, does not put in any claim for his portion of the grain saved, which he justly could do. Messrs. F. S. Munroe and A. J. Johnson deserve the thanks of all concerned for their energy and good management in the affair, which we believe gives general satisfaction. While all feel their loss keenly, perhaps, we do not see any way in which matters could be managed more fairly for all concerned.—Seio Press.

More Ravages of the Storm. The Brownsville Times says that the recent storm in that vicinity was attended by a high wind that in many places it prostrated large trees and moved out buildings from their foundations. At the farm of Mrs. A. J. Warren, east of town, the barn, a large building one hundred feet long, was blown down, and fifty tons of hay scattered. In the same locality the saw mill building was destroyed, and also a cattle stockade. An immense amount of rain has fallen, swelling the streams, and raising the water in the Calipooia river to such a stage that the railroad bridge was washed away.

Death of Mrs. Westlake. Mrs. Cyrus Westlake, who with her husband resided in Linn county for many years, died at her home in San Jose, Cal., on the 11th inst. The deceased and her husband were Oregon pioneers, having settled in Linn county in 1850. They lived here until about ten years ago, when they moved to California and engaged in fruit growing. The deceased had many friends in Albany who will regret to learn of her death.

The Wheat Situation. Wheat continues to be the leading feature of the market. Dealers are rather puzzled, and are very wary of committing themselves, and as a natural result, the market is in a most undecided position. All eyes are turned to Europe, and all are waiting to see what comes next. The European markets are more firm than last week, it is true, but there seems to be no visible advance as a result of the Russian prohibition. However, it is too early for any definite action. There is no immediate demand for wheat, and until there is a general call on the American market, it is not very likely that any public transactions will take place, more than to strengthen the market and induce the dealers to a higher plane, though it may well be questioned as to whether or not they have not gone too far already. Bradstreet's reports: Total wheat available in the United States and Canada, both crops, November 28 equaled 74,371,321 bushels more than 11,000,000 bushels in excess of the total reported one month ago, fully 17,000,000 bushels larger than was reported December 1, 1890, 11,700,000 bushels more than two years ago, and 16,400,000 bushels more than on December 1, 1888.

The total increase in stock of available wheat east of the Rocky mountains, for five months, or since July 1, 1891, is about 41,000,000 bushels, fully twice the net gain during a corresponding period in 1890, 1889 and 1888. On the Pacific coast the net gain in available stock of wheat since July 1 has been about 9,000,000 bushels, less than in like periods of 1890 and 1889.

Utilizing Waste Glass. French glass manufacturers have found out a new method of utilizing material of various colors, after having been reduced to a suitable size, and then placed in molds lined with silica, talc or some other resisting material, and fired—a coherent mass being thus produced, capable of being dressed and cut into blocks, which are, of course, irregularly colored, and these blocks may be used as a decorative marble, says an exchange. The blocks are usually rough on one side, owing, probably, to incomplete fusion, but this gives a surface which is admirably adapted for a suitable base—especially those of a slab-like form—to adhere to walls, aided by the addition of a little mortar. Fine decorative efforts are by this means produced—designs in relief being obtainable by pressure while the block or slab is still plastic—and if a suitable mold be prepared with movable portions, then pieces of glass can be so arranged that, upon firing, a very attractive "stained glass" window is produced, the necessity of using lead, as in the ordinary practice, being entirely obviated.

HOLIDAY SHOPPERS.

Should See the Wonderful Array at Julius Gradwohl's Bazaar. Mr. Julius Gradwohl, the enterprising proprietor of the Bazaar store in this city, which contains the largest and best selected stock of crockery, glass and other wares for domestic use, in the valley, as well as fancy wares, toys and beautiful holiday goods, has replenished and enlarged his entire stock and now has a store that is a credit to himself and an ornament to the city. His shelves, counters and every available space are filled with the choicest and most varied stock of goods ever seen in this valley, including a mammoth display of holiday goods. He has added a new line which consists of a beautiful assortment of rolled gold jewelry warrantable to wear as good as gold and costing one-tenth as much money, diamond cut pins, rings, fine umbrellas for holiday presents and novelties. His stock is now in the holiday show and he has no time in seeing his wonderful array which is not surpassed by any on the coast either in elegance or prices.

He also carries a gigantic stock of beautiful hanging lamps, stand lamps, bicycles, tricycles, safes and velocipedes which he guarantees to sell as low as any place in Oregon. His assortment of fine teas and coffees is always complete, as well as a general stock of family groceries. He buys his goods direct for the cash and sells them the same way.

Simon, Lotan and Pennoyer. So the Oregon delegation has recommended Simon for the Federal judgeship and the recommendation is seconded by Governor Pennoyer and Jim Lotan and many prominent republicans of this state. We don't care if it is. The appointment would be as much of an insult in its way to every clean republican in the state as would the nomination of David B. Hill to the presidency to every clean democrat in the nation.

The only conceivable reason why Pennoyer and Lotan should recommend Simon for the position is that if Simon is appointed, the "patches" say, he will remove to California, and Oregon will get rid of him. No, no, the country does not want Federal judges whose chief qualification is that they are smart and unscrupulous political bosses, but Oregon would be perfectly reconciled if Simon should go to California or Canada.—The Dalles Chronicle.
