TEACHERS SECURED.—The Directors of the Forest Grove District school have hired H. C. Leiser, and Miss Brown to teach for the ensuing term. Mr. Leiser is well known here having been a student at the College for a number of years past and has had considerable experience in teaching. Miss Brown we do not know, but learn that her home is in the lower part of this county. We think that she was an assistant in the Hillsboro school three years ago.

NEW MILLINER SHOP.—Mrs. M. Grant has bought Mrs. Walker's stock of goods will open a milliner shop at her residence on Pine street near the Postoffice. Mrs. Grant asks the patronage of the people of the Grove and vicinity and will give satisfaction.

A LIBRARY FOR SALE.—We publish in this week's issue Appleton's Cyclopædia advertisement, which see in another column. Here is a chance to get a library for less than $100 which would cost, if you should have to buy a library of books treating the same subjects, at least $500.

STICKEEN.—We learn that Jerome Porter's family have received a letter from him lately which states that he had arrived at the mines and had taken a claim. The snow was five feet deep on the ground. He says that two of his party were frozen to death on the way to the mines.

J. R. WALKER and his wife who have been long residents of this town have rented a dairy ranch down on the Clatsop Plains in Clatsop county where they propose to move this week. We wish them all the good luck they desire, and all the happiness possible in their new home.

MR. MCDOUGALL has been lecturing at this place and at Hillsboro in the interest of the Independent Chanions of the Red Cross. He was unable to organize a lodge here.

AS WE WERE going to press we heard that Mrs. Scott had met with a painful accident. She fell and broke her arm near the wrist.

SCHOOL BELL.—A new school bell weighing 340 pounds has been donated to the Hillsboro District school by the citizens.

IN next week's issue there will be an original romance involving certain characters in this town and Cornelius.

MR. WM. WATSON of Reedsville killed two full grown panthers with strychnine last week.

AT the school meeting at Hillsboro a tax was voted to support the school at that place.

POEM.

Why am I vexed with earthly ill,
And worn with haggard mortal care,
When by thy word,dear Saviour,still!
I wait thy coming in the air;
When thou! amid thy angel band,
Shalt glorious with thy saints appear,
Received in clouds at God's right hand
In all thy Fathers glory there?
A world submitted at thy feet,
Shall hail Thee Sovereign Mighty Lord!
And every name and knee shall bow
Before the high eternal word.
Thy own elect, thy joy, thy crown,
With joy received there sorrow o'er,
Then ceaseless cries, avenged shall own:
No more to sigh, to weep no more;
And angels gather in their arms,
Those little ones to Jesus dear;
Who robed in white and angel charms,
Awake the Saviour's voice to hear.

W. N. GOODELL.

PROF. CONDON'S LECTURE.

AT THE COLLEGE CHAPEL, APRIL 9TH.

The lecture to-day was a continued consideration of the subject for last week. The relation of Geology to the natural sciences of Zoology and Botany was part of the subject left untouched.

If we look at any part of the animal or vegetable kingdom we find there divisions into varied groups, and we instinctively classify in the animal kingdom the first group we reach is that which has permanence in nature; this is called species. It may be defined as a group of living organisms that have natural permanence, that is, a persistent character in nature which separates them from all other groups and that defines the limits of ordinary breeding in nature. How did these groups get so formed? The first and most natural answer is, God created them so. The Hebrew word "created" means to cut, pare, shave, prune, shape, divide or form to the end to be accomplished. And we may rightfully say that God created these species so yet we may also enquire into this process of varying. There are in agriculture and horticulture new varieties of vegetables and fruit produced frequently, and this is done by artificial means—by mingling seeds or roots of two different varieties. Naturally these changes would not occur. The trees on the hillside retain their individual character continually. There is a marked resemblance between different savages but among cultured "pale faces," individuals differ more from each other. House variations in species are the result of culture. Do these variations ever cross the line of species? Human history does not give a satisfactory answer and we

APPEAL TO GEOLOGY FOR MORE LIGHT.

From this history of the natural world we learn that the smallest divergence multiplied by the producing cause—whether time or force—will inevitably give great difference in species. Take, for example, the horse. Here are four rough drawings taken from the American Journal of Science. The first is an horse-like animal of the Iocene period and is called Orohippus. Second is the Anchitherium of the Miocene. The third is my little Hipparion found in the Pliocene rocks which underlie the Blue mountains. The last diagram represents our present horse. The splints on the side of the cannon bone in our present horse revert back by a traceable gradation to the Anchitherium which has three hoofs, and this last animal is undoubtedly a changed Orohippus, whose four hoofs resemble very much the toe of a Tapir. There is at present a horse in Oregon having three tolerably developed hoofs which are governed by seperate sets of muscles and which sustain weight when the animal passes over the occasional muddy roads in Oregon. This curiosity is very like the Anchitherian; and why may I not conclude that if a horse of the present kind can be so changed as to have three hoofs, a horse with three or even four hoofs may not have been gradually in a length of time brought the present excellent specimen of a horse with one hoof? Along side of this change in the horse we put the rhinoceros, the same uncouth, worthless animal as formerly, and conclude that God works in the varyings in nature. I draw three inferences:

1st. It is not natural selection but providence working through Nature. 2nd, It results in the survival of the fittest because so planned. 3rd. There is no ignoring of natural selection.

There is much truth underlying natural selection but I am not prepared at present to receive it in the same understanding as the Darwinians do. Yet there is a great line of thoughts in this subject and field of study.

J. B. BINGHAM AGAIN.

Cornelius, Oregon April 14, 1874.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:

As it has pleased the Progressionist and a few of his backers to continue their tirade of abuse against me in order to cover up Davis' sins I will again ask permission to say a few words concerning

BEN HOLLADAY'S HIRED MAN.

I would not have again referred to this creature did I not desire to explain to the people of Washington county what are the objects and motives of this man in his attacks upon me. He has been in the habit of defaming me as a kind of stand off to the charges that people of his acquaintance have preferred against him.

In his issue of last week he says that Ben Holladay does not own one dollar in the Progressionist. Very well, let us briefly review the facts in the case and they will speak for themselves.

A FEW THINGS VENTILATED.

In February or March, 1873, we at Cornelius learned that the Democratic Era office at East Portland was for sale at a bargain, and as Davis was expected here in about six weeks to start a paper at this place and had written that he could get here with $1200 we concluded to secure the Era office and give it into his hands when he should arrive. Whereupon T. R. Cornelius went to Portland and bought the press, etc. for $800 giving his note payable in two years. We wrote to Davis that some materials were still wanting for the office and that he should bring them with him as he came through San Francisco. But when he arrived he did not bring the material, and said that he had been disappointed and had no money. But the money was raised here and the necessary material for the office secured. Then Davis went to work on his own responsibility, and he run the paper about a month and got disgusted and quit. He then said if

HOLLADAY

Would pay him a salary that he would run it for

HOLLADAY.

T. R. Cornelius then agreed to pay Davis $50 per month and Z. Taylor $45 per month to run the paper one year, provided that

HOLLADAY AND MITCHELL

Would pay part of it. When Holladay came home Cornelius went and saw him and when he (Cornelius) came back here he said that Holladay said to employ Davis to run the paper and for Cornelius and myself to

SELL TOWN PROPERTY

And pay him and that Mitchell (now Senator) would either buy the Forest Grove Independent or else buy up

FRANK MYERS,

Since which time Mr Davis has been running the Progressionist under that contract.

Now then, Mr. Davis, who owns the Progressionist? You, Tom Cornelius or Mr. Holladay? Not you, certainly. I admit that it is a little mixed nevertheless it is quite clear that Davis does not. But the ass loves his master's crib and likewise does Davis inasly.

Now I would ask this poor specimen of Southern chivalry who wears a No. 4 hat and No. 13 boots, who it is that compels him to attack such men as Bowley, Bateman, Marsh, Humphreys and all others whom Holladay and his satraps, henchmen, minions and hirelings desire to crush beneath the monstrous monopoly of his railroad and monied power? Those men Davis, you have attacked in your ignorance and weakness in obedience to the dictum of your masters, and they forgive you because you are very small potatoes, but the sharks and harpies at whose bidding you grind out your two or three weekly columns of idiotic drivel—these men they propose to hurl from power and bury them deep and forever. Now, I will answer some of Davis' questions

He asserts that T. R. Cornelius has fed and clothed me for two years, in which Davis lies. I here assert that I have not received a dime from Mr. Cornelius for which he has not had value received, and I do not owe a dollar in the town of Cornelius. And here let me say to those who control Davis and the Progressionist that if they persist in their present course that I shall bring to light some matters which will grate on their ears. So watch your paces gentlemen.

Mr. Davis asserts that the letter from Mr. Cline was a fiction, but even his own admissions corroborate much of what Cline asserted in his letter, and also my own assertions. Davis admits in a back number of the Progressionist that he voted for Greeley just as the letter states and in a late number of that paper he says he voted against Binghma in 1870, and in his issue of the 9th inst. he says that Heller sent him word that Humphreys and others were inquiring of all Missourians whether Davis was a "bush-whacker" or not. And now if Davis will admit that he was a Rebel deserter and that he has now on hands a large amount of Confederate money he will then have admitted all that his neighbors have said about him. I made none of these charges against him except that he has plenty of Confederate currency which he has not denied. The other charges were made against him by those who knew him better than myself.

Davis says that I owned that I lied to Willcox. I owned that when Mr. Willcox asked me if I believed that Davis was ever in the Rebel army I said simply no. Perhaps Mr. Davis will ask why I did not say yes? I did not do so because I had promised T. R. Cornelius that I would do nothing to injure him (Cornelius.) Davis took the same advantage of me in the Reeves matter when he told Reeves that I wrote that letter to get Davis into the Grange. He well knew that I would endure it rather than tell Reeves that Cornelius was implicated in the matter and in this underhanded manner he continued until I was compelled to a dissolution of partnership with Cornelius in order to defend myself.

Next Davis brings his printer Z. Taylor, who is his brother in-law to his rescue. I would ask Zack Taylor if that is all he can say for his brother-in-law. He informed us where Davis was not. Could he not throw some light on where his brother-in-law was at that time. Mr. Taylor says that he was in South Carolina during the war and that Davis was not there! He "wern't" eh? Well I was in the Union army during the war and Davis "wern't" there. Well where was he? that is the question. Zack Taylor "explains" about the Reeves letter. I would like to know what a Confederate typesticker would know about the editorial management of a Republican newspaper? (Stand back young man.)
