RUNAWAY AND SAD CASUALTY.

Two Women Seriously Injured.

Last Saturday a team from Yamhill county with a wagon load of women and children ran away at Dilley, a way station on the O. C. R. R., two miles north of this place, in which Mrs. Green Roland had her hip dislocated and one of the pelvic bones broken; Mrs. Fouts had her ankle broken, and several of the children were considerably though not seriously bruised.

But we Web-foot do not propose to run away. We love our fair golden haired sister Cal. but we love our buxom Web-foot girl more, and propose to stand by her through good and evil report, and if these California fellows don't like her they need't, that's all. We raise better apples than California can and more of them in the hill, and can just discount them on rain and mud.—Whoop!

Another Runaway and Painful Accident.—Last week on returning from a black-berrying excursion in the mountains on the North Yamhill the team containing the excursionists ran away and threw Mrs. A. Tyler out breaking her arm and bruising her badly. Mrs. Tyler lived here some time and has many friends who sympathize with her in affliction.

Acquitted.—On the 10th instant George C. Coker, the slayer of J. Y. Stewart, had a preliminary examination before Justice Simmler at San Luis Obispo Cal. where the murder was committed and was acquitted on account of "insufficient evidence". Coker did not deny the killing but said it was done in defence of his sister, Stewart's wife—a pitiable excuse when she was some distance from him when he was killed and when it is stated that Coker was able to handle Stewart and that the latter had no weapons. Coker remains in the neighborhood. The Grand Jury will probably sift the case.

Overland Monthly.—This popular and literary periodical for September comes to us filled with interesting and original matter, combining a host of popular writers. J. Ross Browne contributes an interesting paper on "Santa Rosa Island" and Julius Henri Browne gives a splendid pen picture of "Spinoza". The most striking poem is "Molokai" by our Oregon poet, Samuel C. Simpson, a remarkably vivid and musical description of the lepers' settlement on the Hawaiian Islands. The etc. is varied, scientific and literary. The whole volume is replete with romance and fact. John H. Carmany & Co. San Francisco. $4 per annum.

Pacific University.—This popular Institution will open its halls again for the admission of students on the 21 day of September. With a Faculty composed of men whose fame as classic and scientific teachers is national, it is needless to say that the College and Academy will have their share of the patronage of the people in Oregon who wish to educate their children by the best methods and up to the highest standard possible on the Pacific coast. For health and sober intellectual society the Grove is famous and the student who comes here to learn will be satisfied.

Riley Cave's statement in the Oregonian about the F. G. Baseball Club not coming to time is a fragment a roily conception of Riley's brain. The F. G. Club challenged what they supposed to be a Club at Hillsboro to come to the Grove to play a match game. The Hillsboro Club answered that they had no regular Club but if the F. G. would come down there they would try to amuse them. Now this is what we call cheeky. So our pencil caves Riley's Cave's statement in somewhatly.

A Good Chance.—In this issue Logan Johnson advertises his Planning Mills in this town for sale. To any one desiring to engage in this business this is a very desirable property, being situated in the heart of a fine agricultural district and a neighborhood of schools and churches. The machinery is all nearly new and as good as new and the purchaser will doubtless find every thing in the condition stated by Mr. Johnson. Come at once and see for yourselves.

The large excursion party from Hillsboro to Siletz returned Saturday. They report a good time. They got sadly sun-burnt, and now the scales are peeling off their noses threatening to reduce those necessary organs to diminutive tubers. The Sheriff talks of offering a reward for a couple dozen more noses soon.

JAMES LONG, a Californian, but a Web-foot formerly, has been here on a visit for a week. His parents lived near this place some eight years ago but they moved to California and have been farming on the Sacramento river thirty miles above Sacramento City. Like most Californians Mr. Long has a rather poor opinion of the Web-foot, who he says do business on a very small scale—have little enterprise—and who sleep too much. We are afraid that his criticisms are only too just. He laughs at the idea of a man setting his threshers or moving his reaper to cut 150 or 200 bushels of grain, and says that in California that the owner of said machines will scarcely move to harvest less than 1,000 bushels. Men there who have only quarter section farms make money even by hiring their work done, when here such a way of doing business would swamp the farmer.
