WHEAT BURNED.—Last Saturday afternoon a fire caught from burning straw into John Gleason's wheat in his field near the Grove and burned and damaged about 300 bushels. The mishap occurred thus: The wheat consisting of some 750 bushels was standing stacked in three piles on the ground where it was threshed. Some rain had fallen and on Friday Mr. Gleason set fire to his straw which lay in large quantities adjacent to the wheat and where it had been pulled out from threshing. The straw being wet, on fire it burned slowly and seemed as if it would go out, so there seemed to be no danger from it. Mr. Gleason and his brother were hauling the wheat to the station. On Saturday they began hauling again and hauled all the forenoon. The straw had nearly all burned up except in a few places where it was burning slowly without flame and smoking from dampness. At noon they went to dinner. But when they returned to the field they found the wheat burning. The wheat was covered with straw and fire had apparently caught into the three piles at the same time. It had burned the ends of the sacks so that the wheat poured out and ran down in heaps, and the surface was slowly consuming away without flame as wheat always burns. They hurriedly shoveled the burning wheat into piles and soon stopped any further loss. This was an unfortunate accident for Mr. Gleason. He had hard work to save his crop from the rain and now to lose part of it by fire is too bad. The burned wheat is not an entire loss however. It would be used for chopped feed, or could be used for fattening hogs.

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—Last Saturday at the Fair Grounds at Hillsboro a team belonging to Mr. Wilkins which was hitched to a sled post before one of the stables got frightened and ran away pulling the post after him. Mr. Musgrove and several other men were under the sled when it fell. Mr. Musgrove stood down to catch up his child when the sled struck him on the back, pinning him to the ground. The timbers were hurriedly removed, when it was found that the child's leg was broken. A physician was summoned and the wound dressed. Other persons were scratched and bruised, but not seriously injured.

JAKE SEVENSON started Wednesday morning for Dayton in Walla Walla Co., W. T., where he proposes to stay for a while. He graduated in the Scientific Course in the Pacific University last summer and is a young man of industrious habits and good character, and is universally esteemed and respected at the Grove where he will be missed by many friends. Jake went his way through College and we have not the least doubt but that he will work out an honorable and useful life.

GRAVE PERMITS.—The Grove received a fair share of premiums at the County Fair. We are able only to publish a part of the premium list of the Fair in this county this week, and will conclude next week. But we will fore-stall it by giving the names of some of our successful exhibitors. Miss Abby Hughes got first premium on oil painting; Mrs. Buford took first premium on shell work; Mrs. Prof. Robb took first premium on wax-work—"Autumn Leaves"—and Mrs. B. Scott took first premium on fresh butter.

PROF. WHITE takes the place of Prof. James in the National Business College in Portland. This institution has turned out a goodly number of practical business men since it was founded only a few years ago and its patronage is gradually increasing. It will have the patronage of the young men who desire to make a short cut to wealth and active business capacity.

MELLEGAN & Co., who have been advertising their sewing machines in our paper are swindlers. Mulligan was arrested for fraudulently and is in jail and will stay there some time, we hope. We are sold to a small amount and so we will not say much about it.

PREMIUM BERRIES.—We have received a sale of good berries which took the premium at the county fair. We commend the judgment of the Judges who gave this honor to the first premium. It was made by Mrs. W. D. Hovex who is our donor. Thanks.

WILLARD LATHROP visited the Grove the first of the week and goes to Yamhill county to-day to take charge of a school near Dayton. Willard is a worker and will teach a good school. He graduated in the Scientific Course in the College here last summer and is well fitted for teaching.

REV. MR. MILLER, Methodist Minister, on his recent proposal to preach regularly at the Grove next autumn.

SALE OF THE FIELDS' ESTATE.—The estate of P. S. Fields, deceased, was sold at the Court House in Hillsboro last Saturday by Administrator Hughes. The property consisting of the old store buildings with the land, 50x100 feet in block no. 6, was sold to Jerome Porter for $256. The south half of lot no. 10 in block no. 12, was bought by Thos. Tongue for $71. The South half of lot no. 3 in block 7, was bought by J. T. Scott for $75, which was soon after purchased of him by Steve Harris at $100. Lot No. 4 of block 7, was bought by Malachi Johnson for $100; also lot 1 of block 7 at $67. Lot 2 in block 7 was bought by Steve Harris at $149. The property east of Mrs. Field's residence having thereon a barn and China wash-house, a part of block no. 1 of Walker's Addition to Forest Grove, 17x376 feet, sold to Malachi Johnson for $200. Lot no. 1 in block 9 of Walker's Addition to Forest Grove containing the residence of Mrs. Field was bid in by Mrs. Fields at $25; also lots 1 and 1 of T. G. Naylor's Addition to the town of Forest Grove was bought by Mrs. Field at $10. This property purchased by Mrs. Field was sold subject to her dower hence it sold very low. Mr. Field old farm lying a mile in a southerly direction from Cornelius was sold, the part lying west of the Fualatin river consisting of 183 acres was knocked down to G. H. Slaw of Cornelius at $12 per acre, and the remainder 137 acres lying east of the river was sold to Jerome Porter at $3.05 per acre.

THE IMPROVED HORN MACHINE small Timpani—Especially liked it, far surpasses the expectations of the people of Washington, all wondering at its strength, in sewing upon the various articles exhibited, far exceeding its competitor in the needs of the people, everybody talking about it and all going to be joyful to find a machine at last that has no superior. Satisfying themselves that it is a machine adapted for a general use of family work as was shown by its successful sewing to be thankful for the low price that they had bought at and expecting that it has outdone the families at large that the Horn Machine is still ahead and the Pioneer of all.

The public school in this place began again this week. It had a recess during harvest. Henry Leiser is the teacher and he has six months of the term of nine months to teach yet. Patrons of the school, send on your children.

ERRATA.—A part of the estate of John D. Richardson deceased, lying within six miles of Portland and advertised for sale in the Express, was sold by Henry Whiting administrator, in Hillsboro last Saturday to Mr. Caldwell for $700.

A FINE GUN. There is a chance for the sportsman or any man who wants a gun of Parker Bros. manufacture, West Meriden Connecticut, to purchase one at liberal rates by calling at this office.

A LITTLE rain has fallen this week but not enough to do much good. For the most part the ground is too dry to plow. The late rain will perhaps bring up the wheat already sown.

A new Florence Sewing Machine for sale at ten per cent. discount. Purchaser can have choice from machines at prices ranging from $70 to $150. For particulars inquire at this office.

A GROVE ARTIST, Miss Nellie Condon has had some paintings in oil which although first attempts manifest a high order of genius. If Miss Condon would devote her talent to that department of the fine arts she would undoubtedly make a famous artist.

HOS. A. HEMMAN has already sown 30 acres of fall wheat and is now plowing fallow ground. He is a granger, has a granger store, and sells lots of goods.

Mrs. W. MYERS of Wapato lake has been dangerously ill but is now recovering. So low was she from hemorrhage that no pulse could be felt except in the carotid artery.

The United Brethren have been conducting a series of meetings at the Watts school house for several days which have been largely attended.

MR. A. SIMMONS of the Grove who has been at work carpentering over in Clatsop has returned and is now helping build up the Grove.

Very pleasant tea parties were had at Prof. Condon's and President Marsh's residences Tuesday evening.

PROF. CONDON has gone to Salem to instruct the Legislature in regard to his geological work.

CHAS. BALL was in town Monday. He is attending court at Hillsboro.

W. D. HOVEX has sold his horse to boys.

RELIGIOUS. At the Methodist church, Rev. J. W. Miller preached on the first and third Sundays each month. At the Baptist church, Rev. Mr. Chandler preached on the second and fourth Sundays each month. Pres. Marsh will preach every Sunday evening at the Congregational church at Forest Grove; at Hillsboro the 2nd Sabbath in each month at 11 A. M. at Gaston the 3rd Sabbath in each month at 11 A. M.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE NEHALEM EXCURSION. He Despises the G. W. Argument.

ED. INDEPENDENT.—A grave and wholly unaccountable doubt as to the veracity of the Nehalem party to which I had the pleasure of belonging having arisen, imputations which I may remark have caused the keenest grief to those on whom they have been cast; and furthermore the published statement of K. &c. having been received with a lack of that implicit confidence which his previous high moral character would warrant all your readers in granting him, I feel moved to offer a brief account, for the truth of which, to the minutest circumstance, I can vouch. Not even G. Washington—but I smile at the thought of an example so comparatively obscure, and will desist. As K. &c. has said, we journeyed in single file, beguiling the weary way with pleasant and brotherly converse on various improving subjects. There seemed to be among the club, a general impression that, owing to the danger of exterminating all members of the deer family if we began at once an indiscriminate attack upon them, we would better confine ourselves to smaller game such as the blue-jay, squirrel and so forth, of which the woods afforded an abundant supply.

Our first day's climb was enlivened by occasional views, caught through the dense forests, of various parts of the Tualatin Plains. The hills were fragrant with the scented laurel, the road smooth and of easy grade, and we passed on our way rejoicing. After a sharp descent of several hundred feet we came to Cedar Spring, where we proposed to camp for the night.

A Touching Incident—Night of Horrors. The place was a beautiful one, platted with green grass, and roofed with lofty trees, through which the sky could scarcely be seen. A touching incident illustrating the way in which even after attaining manhood, we often turn back to the tender emotions of our childhood, occurred on this first night. Awaking at midnight, and looking in silent adoration upon the wondrous beauty of the firm as they seemed gently swaying in the wind, to sweep the floor of the sky and even to brush aside the stars strewn upon the fields of heaven, I heard a low wail of lamentation which I found to proceed from J.—. Inquiry revealed the fact that he could not sleep. The unusual situation, the entire absence of home comforts, the low respirations of the forest, the weird and ghastly moonlight which glinted upon the nodding trees and transformed their fragrant boughs into ascending and descending ghouls and sprites, conspired to excite a degree of terror pitiable to see in a strong man. He would sometimes doze slightly thinking himself for the moment in his little bed, but the ghostly surroundings would soon dissipate the sweet illusion.

A Panther Screams—L. Jumps into the Drink. To add to the horror of our situation, a panther attempted to eat one of the horses. However, as L.—, his giant figure enveloped in spectral garments, went staggering toward him over logs and bushes, and finally, with a loud whoop, fell into the icy waters of Cedar Spring, the feeble incontinently fled; the horse was also so much frightened as to pull down several large trees. After these adventures, we slept, all except J.— whose last remark which I heard, was to the effect that he wished he had not eaten that frog. From the continuous growling which H. kept up I judge he was troubled in a similar way.

They Take up Claims—Yellowjackets Welcome them. We found no lack of country over there. I think there is more land to the sq. mile on the head waters of Pebble Creek than in any place to which I have ever been. The boys took up claims in various places, in order that they might hit the prospective railroad track with some one of them. We found yellow-jackets in different places on the route; they showed in a pointed manner the vigorous characteristics of their race. H. thought so particularly, as a small swarm lit on his back, where they proceeded somewhat abruptly to acquaint him with their arrival.

The wild Beasts Enchanted by Their Songs. The glories of camping beside Nehalem's rushing stream where long horned elk and graceful deer, salmon and spotted trout drew near by nights to listen to the hymns we nightly sung; of the tropical luxuriance of the forests, and of the gentle showers wherewith the dusty earth was wet, I have not space to speak. I may briefly mention the human inhabitants to whom we seemed objects of great interest. Seeing the necessity of missionary work among the children, I was ready to consecrate fragments of Webster but not more, to the work; but this laudable design was frustrated by designing members of the club who conveyed the idea of a mental disorder to which I was subject at times, and which they also affirmed was contagious like smallpox. This rendered any close communication impossible. The only opportunity I had was on Sunday morning, when they were fishing, (we were doing the same thing, according to the scriptural injunction to be all things to all men) where I had some undisturbed and I trust, appreciated conversation with them.

Grouse and Gastric Vigor? Our hunting was not very successful, H. and J. becoming so perturbed as to fail completely. We found great numbers of grouse which were so tame, that one of the horses caught one; this was attached to a tree and H. and J. both fired at it simultaneously, and both missed; in their excitement they let the grouse go at last, to the disgust of the aforementioned horse. We enjoyed perfect health throughout, and a degree of gastric vigor which all with possibly one exception look back upon with tenfold longings.

Rich Lahds. In conclusion, there is plenty of rich land yet unoccupied in the Nehalem Valley. If a person is desirous of immuring himself in the woods for fifteen or twenty years he can find there a profitable place for life. I lay this statement before your readers, Mr. Editor, in full faith that it will be accepted, having myself the witness of my own heart for its truthfulness.

Yours Truly and in Truth, W. H. SAYLOR, M. D.
