THE INDEPENDENT.

THURSDAY .....MAY 10, 1888

Prohibitionists in this county will please bear in mind that we make no attack upon them in our remarks regarding Mr. Webb. We were placed in the most unpleasant position by him. He left us no alternative—we must publish or refuse to do so on the instant. We asked that time be granted for an explanation, with the assurance that due statement of facts would be made. But all to no purpose. We were told Mr. Webb could not be consulted; that he had gone to Eastern Oregon, and his demands would be carried out. Our denial was candid. No man can say he was ever refused a hearing by us on a fair representation of facts; no, not one. Even when the gentleman called with the letter, we made the same statement to him that had been made to Mr. Webb. The gentleman said we were surely in error, as he had read it from the outside of the paper in the issue of about four weeks ago. We immediately turned to the files and saw our error. Had Mr. Webb come with a direct charge, the error would then have been discovered and we would willingly and gladly have set him right. If Webb thinks to bulldoze, he would better select another individual and paper from outside THE INDEPENDENT and its editor. Since he has tried to injure the editor in his own paper, we have neither fear nor respect for him. And there is a ton of dynamite bitterness behind what we have said.

We are informed by a private letter from a sheep district in Eastern Oregon that the outlook is very blue for sheep men. Many assert their determination to quit the business, as sheep cannot be raised for mutton alone with profit. The result of the "free wool" agitation has depressed the market at from five to ten cents per pound; the poorest wages earned in years are now being paid shearers of sheep, and farmers have "lost their occupation" as conveyers of freights for sheep men, who are now forced to do their own freighting at the present price of wool. The letter ends with the remark: "If agitation alone of the question has done so much to depress our important industry, what may we not expect when 'free wool' is voted upon us?" "And yet," the letter states, "there is no panic in manufactured woolen goods, and we have not even the satisfaction to know that such goods will not be even higher than now." This is not campaign bombast, but the truthful statement of a social letter written to the editor of this journal.

The ticket nominated by the republicans of this county Wednesday meets with general satisfaction. The convention was harmonious so far as we could ascertain, and those nominated are well qualified for the positions to which they seek election. Contests between aspirants was animated, yet there seems to be very little soreness on the part of those defeated in the struggle for nomination. No doubt the ticket will poll the strength of the republican party in the county. If it does, then every candidate on the ticket will be elected. Our limited space will not permit of a review of the qualifications of the several candidates individually, so, for the present, we leave their fate in the hands of the public, wishing the party success as in the past.

Mr. Thos. H. Tongue was nominated for state senator by the republican convention, receiving 59 votes out of 75 on the first ballot. His name was presented to the convention by Col. Cornelius in a few pleasing remarks. The large vote received by Mr. Tongue is a compliment to his ability and a just recognition of a capable and busy life of thirty years spent in the county and among those who honored him with their ballots yesterday.

Hon. Geo. H. Williams, ex-attorney general of the United States, an eloquent talker and for many years a respected citizen of Oregon, will address our people at the court house next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. William's reputation as a debater of the first order, assures him the largest audience ever congregated in Hillsboro to listen to the words of an exponent of republican statesmanship.

The Herald reports that a New York life insurance company refused to write a policy of $50,000 on President Cleveland's life. That paper did not state if the policy was wanted on his official life.

The democratic party of this county nominated its ticket last Saturday, which appears in this issue. The ticket is a fairly good one and will doubtless poll the entire strength of that party in the county.

The Salem Statesman is among our most valued exchanges, and we do seriously doubt the statement of Webb to the effect that "it had to take it all back in next issue." We read no such retraction. How is this, Hendricks?

Elder Webb, stand up! Did you "go broke" at Gaston, and amble a la tramp to Forest Grove? In future beware of the Wapato tiger.

HERMANN OR GEARIN.

It will not be asserted by any candid person that Mr. Hermann has not been an active and fairly successful representative in congress. It would be useless to deny that he has labored with great assiduity, or that he has accomplished about all that could fairly be expected of a representative. During his two terms he has familiarized himself with the duties and learned the opportunities of a member of congress, and now he is better equipped for rendering service to his state than any new member could be.

No candid person would expect of Mr. Gearin better or more efficient service for the state than he would expect of Mr. Hermann. On the contrary, it is known that a new man is always at some disadvantage. The story of the boy who, though a bright fellow, couldn't study his lesson till he "got the hang of the new schoolhouse," fairly illustrates many things that reach beyond the period of boyhood. The business house that takes a young man into its service and trains him up in it, doesn't dismiss him as soon as he begins to be efficient, just for the sake of going through the same process of teaching another.

Looking, then, to the service of the state, there is no reason why Mr. Gearin should be preferred to Mr. Hermann, but on the contrary, there is reason why Mr. Hermann should be preferred to Mr. Gearin. There remains the political side, the party aspect of the case. If Oregon is a democratic state, if a majority of her people wish to commit the state to the support of the democratic party, with its policy, its history, its traditions, its past character, its present aims and future purposes, then, of course, Mr. Gearin will be elected. Otherwise, Herman will be sent to congress again.

The administration at Washington is forcing the political issue in this canvass in Oregon. Hence no republican can vote for a democrat this year for any political office. On this issue republicans are called upon to elect the representative in congress and a majority in the legislature. In order to do it they have only to come out and vote, and this, since the administration has challenged them, it is their duty to do. The report from all points is that the spirit of republicans throughout Oregon is higher than it has been at any time during the last twenty years.—Oregonian.

STILL WANTS OREGON.

Following is the latest from Grover Cleveland in his desire to carry Oregon, in which he is simply hoping against hope:

WASHINGTON, May 6.—That the president is exceedingly anxious to carry Oregon in the June election is well known, and that he is interfering in the politics of that state is also thoroughly understood. The latest phase of Cleveland's effort to carry Oregon was described in the New York Tribune this morning. The following is the article:

Smith M. Weed, the so-called "wizard of Plattsburg," who was Samuel J. Tilden's confidential agent in the negotiation of 1876, by which the sage of Gramercy park and Greystone sought to purchase his election, and who is known as one of the shrewdest political agents in the country, has gone to California. He had not expected to make this trip up to within forty-eight hours of the time when he started, for he had invited some friends to spend Sunday with him at his home in Plattsburg. Since Weed's departure for the Pacific coast it has come out that the administration is making desperate efforts to carry Oregon, in order to secure the control of the United States senate, and the hint is thrown out that this is the object of Weed's visit to the coast.

The election of members of the legislature will take place in Oregon on the eve of the assembling of the national convention, and the administration is said to have conceived the idea of carrying Oregon to make the St. Louis gathering enthusiastic, and depress that of Chicago. Among the methods of the democrats to carry the state is the promotion of the prohibition movement. There is a full congressional and legislative ticket in the field. St. John, of Kansas, has been sent out there and is making strong effort to get a large prohibition vote, in order to defeat the republicans, against whom he has been rancorous ever since the exposure of his proceedings in 1884. The democrats hold the state administration in Oregon, and are making every effort from state and national officers to carry the day. The republicans of the state are alive to the situation, however, and do not propose to let it go democratic.

Hon. Rufus Mallory addressed a large and intelligent audience at the court house last Monday evening. Mr. Mallory is an able debater and presented the republican side of the tariff question in a forcible and pleasing manner. He is thoroughly conversant with his subject and was listened to with rapt attention.

The interstate commerce commission has lately had under investigation complaints made by boards of trade and other commercial bodies regarding the prevalence of underbilling as an evil in the railroad freight transportation business. Underbilling is a device by which the shipper pays freight upon a less quantity than is actually carried, which is tatamount to paying a rate on the gross quantity, and it is made a form of discrimination, a less rate being charged some shippers than is charged others for a like service. The commission after an examination of the matter has come to the conclusion that the complaints made by the commercial bodies are substantiated. It finds that while special contracts, rebates and drawbacks have been comparatively unknown, the device of underbilling has become quite prevalent. Shippers are held to be mainly responsible for the existence of this abuse, though the commission censures the carriers for their failure to insist upon actual knowledge of the weights in all cases of carload shipments. As a result of its investigation the commission announces its concurrence with the request from the various commercial bodies for an amendment of the law, imposing a penalty upon shippers who by false billing, false classification, false weighing or false report of weight or other device obtain transportation for their property at less than the regular rates.

Representative Hermann has received an invitation from the chairman of the prohibition state central committee of Oregon, asking him to meet in joint debate Professor Miller, prohibition candidate for congress. Mr. Hermann will reply to this letter, saying that if the invitation was intended as an act of courtesy simply, he appreciated the spirit in which it was sent; but if it was intended to induce him to abandon his professional duties, leaving the interests of the state entirely unrepresented upon the floor of the house of representatives, he can only express his amazement that such an invitation should come from the headquarters of a party pretending to have the welfare of the state at heart. Bully for Hermann.—Transcript.

The house of congress has passed the river and harbor bill by a vote of 161 to 69. The bill has gone to the senate, and it is believed the committee on commerce will take up its consideration immediately, and have it brought up for consideration in the senate as soon as possible. There is a determination to send this bill to the president, so that if he signs it work on many of the improvements can be begun this summer. It is believed that the senate committee will increase some of the appropriations for the Pacific coast. Senators Dolph and Mitchell propose to increase the appropriations for Yaquina bay, mouth of the Columbia river, locks at the Cascades, The Dalles, Coos bay and other points in Oregon. It is thought the senate will increase the bill about three or four million dollars.

Members of the church upon which Webb is a parasite, desire him to drop the title of "elder" while engaged in the questionable work of politics.

Hon. John M. Gearin, democratic candidate for congress, has been telling the people of Eastern Oregon what he knows or does not know about wool and the tariff. Hon. Binger Hermann, member of congress, and republican nominee for re-election, is working hard in Washington City for a large appropriation in the river and harbor bill for the locks at the Cascades and for the ship railroad above The Dalles. Mr. Gearin's talk may sound very eloquent, but Mr. Hermann's actions are far more suitable to the wishes of our people.—Times-Mountaineer.

According to the Roseburg Plaindealer, Douglas county is the land of enchantment. Immigrants would better come to Washington county, where there is some reality. Away with your enchanted land of sagebrush and chaparral.

Canada, according to the latest figures, has within twenty-five years lost to the United States one out of every four of its native born population and three out of five of its assisted immigrants, and has spent for railroads $100,000,000 in a vain effort to settle up a region that would be a formidable rival to our Northwest wheat growing fields and people. Canada scorns annexation to the United States, and yet by emigration the annexation of her people to our population is proceeding so rapidly every year that by the time Canada begins to think favorably of annexation, she will be in the condition of a foreign poor house asking admission into the American Union.—Ex.

We hope Elder J. W. Webb will be enabled to attend the convention in the East, so he "may measure" his "mind against the great minds of those abroad," as he expressed himself in this office.
