

What is this Disease that is Coming Upon Us?

Like a thief at night it steals in upon us unawares. The patients have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint, all gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-colored expectoration. The patient feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable and gloomy and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become constipated; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high colored, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All of these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms.

It has been found that physicians have mistaken the cause of this disease. Some have treated it for a liver complaint, others for kidney disease, etc., but none of these kinds of treatment have been attended with success; for it is really constipation and dyspepsia. It is also found that Shaker Extract of Roots, or Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, when properly prepared will remove this disease in all its stages. Care must be taken, however, to secure the genuine article. IT WILL SELL BETTER THAN COTTON.

Mr. John C. Hempstead, of Chula Vista, California, writes: "My wife has been so much benefited by Shaker Extract of Roots or Seigel's Syrup that she says she would rather be without part of her food than without the medicine. It has done her more good than the doctors and all other medicines put together. I would ride twenty miles to get it into the hands of any sufferer if he can get it in no other way. I believe it will soon sell in this State better than cotton."

TESTIMONY FROM TEXAS. Mrs. S. E. Barton, of Varner, Ripley Co., Mo., writes that she had been long afflicted with dyspepsia and disease of the urinary organs and was cured by Shaker Extract of Roots. Rev. J. J. McGuire, merchant, of the same place, who sold Mrs. Barton the medicine, says he has sold it for four years and never knew it to fail.

SHE WAS ALMOST DEAD. I was so low with dyspepsia that there was not a physician to be found who could do anything with me. I had fluttering of the heart and swimming of the head. One day I read your pamphlet called "Life Among the Shakers," which described my disease better than I could myself. I tried the Shaker Extract of Roots and kept on with it until to-day I rejoice in good health. Mrs. M. E. Tinsley, Bevier, Muhlenberg Co., Ky. For sale by all Druggists, or address the proprietor, A. THE PICTURESQUE PAVANE.

A Revival from the Ball Rooms of Bygone Times—How it is Danced.

The pavane is to be the next revival from the ball rooms of the bygone times. To dance in character, the performers should wear Louis XIII dresses, with their large puffed sleeves and wide vandyke lace turned back from the shoulders and drooping over the arms. The overdress and petticoat would not be any novelty in these days of Louis XV gowns, and the lace wired high at the back of the neck would be becoming to many and by the style of hair, however, would be rather trying. The coiffure of that period was perfect, but on the top. The hair was arranged around a comb, while a thick bunch of curls hung over either ear, concealing both. The buckles or rosettes worn on the pointed toes and high heels, are familiar enough to us all.

The men's dress is sufficiently picturesque, with silk stockings, ruffled shoes, knee breeches ending in a frill of rich lace and tied with ribbons at the knees, tight jackets of silk or velvet, with slashed sleeves and short coat hanging loose from the shoulders. Their deep cavalier collars and long lockets are inseparably connected in our minds with a later period, our own island history.

The dance itself is a graceful one, with many similes tending and by being danced, many sliding steps, deep courtesies and pretty prettily to bring up to the recovery. The music is in triple time, the time of the minuet and the first remarkable feature in the dance is the starting off of two out of each four couples, to the very end of the minuet and the first step, and their slow dance back again to place themselves as vis-a-vis to the other two couples. Immediately after the latter set off on a similar expedition, returning to their original positions. This preliminary center concluded, the real business of the dance begins, arranged in circles by scattering the four couples to the very extremities of the room.

Brought together again in the center, still holding hands, they content themselves with a more limited space, ranging themselves as though for a quadrille. The third figure is a pretty one, but one which men in modern costume would probably feel themselves to be ridiculous. Each couple on one knee, his sword held out at the back, his right hand resting—point upward—on his right knee. Each lady, taking a nap or her cavalier in each hand, sets off with the left foot and glides respectably in front of the partner opposite her own in a diagonal direction.

Then the men rise, lady and cavalier making each other a low reverence, the whole four couples the same. Much of the beauty of this figure consists in the courtesy being made exactly simultaneously by the dancers. This was the only point in the dance where the dancers at the costume ball failed in their gait. Some of them were rising after their low bow, at the moment when others were making the descent. This reverence over, the cavaliers go down again on one knee, while the ladies dance, each an rising before her own partner, when there are fresh courtesies, the men rising and giving their right hands to the ladies, who promise without letting go the hand, being supported by the other arm of their partners, which is passed round their waist.

In the last figure the four dancers form a circle by taking hands and then letting go, still holding the arms raised high in the air, each couple turns to each other with a step to the right and then one to the left, repeating this double movement four times. After this the couples stand ranged behind the first and dances off out of the room by a door on the opposite side to that by which they danced into it—London Society.

Started by a Pepper Corner. Corners in various articles of merchandise, and especially in foreign wheat and pork to primes, are characteristic of the business methods of the present day. But they are not a modern invention. The famous East India company, according to a document recently published, had its origin in a Dutch corner in pepper. Certain merchants in Amsterdam, who had begun to trade in the eastern seas about 1595, had by the end of the century so well established themselves, that they raised the price of pepper in London from three shillings to eight shillings a pound. The London merchants thereupon held a meeting and resolved to form an association to trade directly with India. Queen Elizabeth at the same time sent an envoy to the Great Mogul to secure a privilege for the company, and in 1600 the first British East India company was incorporated by royal charter under the title of the Governor and Company of Merchants of London trading to the East Indies. In due time the company, established a greater monopoly than the Dutch had ever dreamed of, and the British empire in India may be said to have been started by the Dutch pepper corner.—Philadelphia Times.
