

The Oregon Republican.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
DALLAS, SATURDAY, MARCH 19
A Good Butter Story.

The Louisville Courier greases the reputation of a landlady in that city with the following butter story:

There is a private boarding house in the city which is a kind of rendezvous for medical students. At least it is generally considered so—as much from the fact, perhaps, that it affords the necessities of an ordinary boarding house to some thirty of these young fellows as that it is devoted exclusively to the accommodation of this class of persons. Not long since the landlady made a purchase of some butter. Among the lot was a lump which was rather aged. It was put on one of the tables for dinner the same day, and no one there took butter. The next day it was put upon another table, and likewise remained intact. So it passed around to all the tables, and at the end of the week, when it had swung completely around the circle unmolested, the landlady was puzzled to know what to do with it. It cost her too much to be thrown away, and she had kept it too long now to return it to the grocery man. She couldn't afford to lose it, and she didn't mean to; so she took it and paddled it over into another shape, making it more round, and in no respect similar to its former appearance in its brand new dress at dinner that day, but it met with the same cold reception. Around it went again, day by day, from one table to another, till it arrived at that of a real specimen of a student—a wild rolicking, don't care, jolly fellow, always ready and eager for some mischief. He watched his opportunity, and when the landlady happened to step out of the dining room for a moment, he took the big roll of butter, which was then just soft enough to hold itself together, and with one swing it went spat against the ceiling, and stuck there in a kind of hemisphere. The landlady entered just a moment later, and her attention was immediately attracted to the unusual situation of the butter by the giggling and tittering of the boarders. "Who did that?" she screamed in a terrible rage. There was no answer, when the fellow who had done the mischief, looking very slyly up at the greasy substance, which was just hanging over his head, says, "Speak, butter! you're old enough to talk for yourself!"

FROM LOWER CALIFORNIA.—Mr. Caserta who left Santa Barbara two weeks ago, and arrived in Salem yesterday, looking for a location in which to settle, informs the Statesman of the 11th, that the drought in Lower California is actually causing suffering already. The papers do not mention this; even the country papers, published in the parched up region, never allude to it; but the facts are that there has been no rain there all winter, with the exception of the shower of which we were informed by telegraph, and which our informant says penetrated the ground to a depth of one and a half inches, and dried out immediately. The result that for hundreds of miles the old crop of grass has been eaten up or burnt off, and no new grass having started, the ground is perfectly bare, and stock are already starving. It is too late to look for rain now, in that section of the country, and Mr. C. says there are great numbers of small farmers who will have hard work to keep alive. The rich fare but little better. As an instance, Mr. Hollister, with his partner, owned a ranch of 22,700 acres, stocked with 60,000 head of sheep, said he should be compelled to drive them off in search of pasture elsewhere, and thus might save some of his flock. Mr. C. says they have always told him that in Oregon it rained all the time, and he concluded to go there and see if it rained enough to make the grass grow. He was agreeably surprised to find the weather delightful the first day.

An Illinois undertaker sent the following entertaining note to a sick man: "Dear Sir:—Having positive proof that you are rapidly approaching death's gate, I have therefore thought it not imprudent to call your attention to the enclosed advertisement of my abundant stock of ready-made coffins, and desire to make the suggestion that you signify to your friends a wish for the purchase of your burial outfit at my establishment."

PATRIOTIC.—A Western stump orator, in the course of one of his speeches, remarked: "Gentlemen, if the Par-sy-fix ocean were an inkstand, and the hull of our country were a sheet of paper, I couldn't begin to write my love of country onto it."

An effort being made to introduce the old style of ornamental coach doors in Albany, with heraldic devices and family coat of arms. Several orders to that effect have been received by prominent coach makers.

It is asserted by the Mechanic's Magazine that one hour after the gas of London is lighted the air is deoxidized as much as if 500,000 people had been added to its population. During the combustion of oil, tallow, gas, etc., water is produced as well as carbonic acid; in cold weather we see it condensed on the windows. By the burning of gas twenty-four hours in London, more water, it is estimated, is produced than would supply an emigrant ship on her voyage from England to Australia.

A London medical journal of the 22d of January states that "the Queen has been suffering repeatedly during the last few months from neuralgia, affecting the different parts of the body, and severe enough to seriously interfere with her rest. Her Majesty has just recovered from a recurrence of the neuralgia attacking the face severely. The attacks have been attributable to disturbance of the nervous system due to exposure, worry or excitement."

A successful school is in operation in London for teaching deaf and dumb children to speak. Although the inability to control the voice by the ear produces harsh and disagreeable tone, the pupils learn to articulate distinctly and to understand what is said to them by watching the movements of the speaker's lips.

The Philadelphia Ledger says that the new president of the Reading Railroad Company is voted an annual salary of $20,000, and on condition that he relinquishes entirely the lucrative business of his profession, except in the interest of the company $10,000 annually in addition.

SCROFULA is a taint or infection in the human organism which weakens the vital forces, and disorders or disarranges the functions of the whole system. This taint or infection is most usually hereditary in the constitution, but it may also arise from habits of life, unwholesome food, etc. In time, if this disease does not show itself in an ulcerous or tubercular form, it induces those other diseases, such as consumption, ulcerations of the liver, stomach and kidneys, salt rheum, dropsy, etc. The best remedy ever yet discovered is "Dr. Walker's VEGETABLE VINEGAR BITTERS." It will cure the disease if not too far advanced, and will eradicate the cause.
