

THE bees seem to be swarming. The Oregonian and Bulletin seem to be very indignant over our article giving the facts in relation to the sale of the west side rail road franchise to some stranger, for the benefit of Ben Holladay, and its effect on the people of the west side. Now it appears to us that if what we have related in relation to the matter had not been correct those journalists would not have been so wonderfully exercised over it. Truth told in regard to transactions fraudulent, per se, generally hurt, but falsity in relation to matters of this character never injures, and consequently sensible people pay but little or no attention to it. So we conclude from the answer of the papers referred to, that we have given the true history of the affair. We have already answered the Oregonian, and now, last of all, comes James O'Meara, in very bad spirits, and undertakes, also, to deny what we have said in regard to the affair, and says:

"The Dallas Republican devotes the biggest portion of its editorial columns each week to a sort of combined warfare on Senator Williams and Mr. Holladay. In connection with the west side railroad. Just what it aims at no reader is competent to divine, beyond the fact that the paper is down on both of these gentlemen. The girl in the verse gave as her reason for not liking Dr. Fell, that she did not like Dr. Fall, and no better reason is apparent in the columns of the Republican for its attacks upon Senator Williams and Mr. Holladay."

We have devoted no more of our columns to Williams and Holladay than we thought absolutely necessary to put the people of the west side on their guard against what we claim to be a conspiracy against their best interests, and if the editor of the Bulletin cannot see at what we aim, it is in consequence of his stupidity; no one else is at any loss to know. And it is true, Mr. O'Meara, as you suspect, we do not like the course pursued by Holladay and Williams. We have no acquaintance, personally, with either of those gentlemen, except that we have seen Senator Williams on his flying trips in the State during his Senatorial career. We have no personal feeling against either, but with their course as public men we have a right to deal in common with all others, and it is that which we oppose. Does the editor now understand? Now, Mr. O'Meara, we denounce to your answer because it is not specific. Your charges of vulgarity are irrelevant, and your complaint that we do not charge the right parties has nothing to do with the controversy. We were not speaking of what transpired two or three years back, but simply giving the history of certain transactions. We were not talking of failures heretofore made by any one; we were simply showing the people how they were to be cheated out of a railroad on the west side for at least six years to come by the operations of Ben Holladay, and those who work with and for him. So, Mr. O'Meara, you are out of court on that part of your answer; nor did we complain as you intimate, that Holladay had not built the road in a few weeks or since he has had possession. It is the act of getting possession of which we complain, and we plainly stated our opinion of the object, giving the facts and leaving the people to judge. The article finally signs up by saying:

"Of its misrepresentations in detailed series we have no occasion to speak."

And that is true, it does not deny a single statement we made in relation to the matter. Let the people notice: We said that the agent of the Philadelphia company offered to build the first twenty miles this year, and that in consequence of the sale to Ben Holladay we are only promised it within the time prescribed by act of Congress—two years for the first twenty miles, and the balance in four years; making six in all, when we could have had the first twenty miles in six months, and the Bulletin does not deny it; and we said that these actions and doings show upon their face that the object is to delay still longer our railroad on the west side instead of advancing it, and we leave the people to judge. You talk about time to make surveys; has not the first twenty miles of the west side road long since been located, the grading nearly all done and a large amount of trestle work completed. This kind of stuff is worse than nonsense. Mr. Holladay has no intention, in our judgment, of building one rod of road on the west side, but he wants favor at the hands of the next Legislature for himself and Williams, and this is the only reason, we imagine, why he has at present men on the west side pretending to locate railroad lines in different directions.

And how is it, Mr. O'Meara, that you take such offense at our opposition to Mr. Williams? when sir did you become his convert? and what is it that has so suddenly come over the spirit of your dream? is it true that you endorse the political course of Senator Williams? and can it be true that you are fighting modern Democracy? Most astounding developments!

Now, Jimmy, you know our forefathers were all from Ireland, and don't you know, Jimmy, that O'Meara and O'Sullivan were both very prominent names at Limerick, and Jimmy you know about ten years ago we were both Democrats together; and don't you recollect, Jimmy, that when the war broke out you went in with Jeff Davis and the Southern Confederacy, while I went in with the Union army to prevent you from disgracing the flag of our glorious country. Jimmy, don't you remember, that not many years ago, you claimed as a member of modern Democracy that if you could get into power you would wipe out the national debt in thirty days without taxation? And, now, Jimmy, are you cognizant of the fact that you belong to somebody? that you have abandoned all your time-honored principles of modern Democracy? that you are the tool of the meanest monopolists on the Pacific Coast? that you are to-day advocating universal suffrage, and all the Radical principles of the Republican party? that you are a dilapidated, superannated institution, used by Ben Holladay, and despised by the people? if you are, why don't you be friendly? Jimmy what's become of the pig?

The Oregonian has never attempted to answer any question we have asked or charge made by us, save and except that it claims we charge it wrongfully when we say that its colors have been beautifully changeable; and in order to prove that we were wrong, it quotes from its own columns of the 20th of June, 1868, when it finds it favored Negro suffrage. Now, this is what we expected, and we would call attention to the fact that our charge was, that neither two nor four years ago did the Oregonian advocate universal Negro suffrage, and, now, to prove that we were incorrect, quotes from a date subsequent to the campaign and election of 1868. Gentlemen, that will not do; every one understands that when we said two or four years ago, we had direct reference to the political campaign of 1863 and 1865; and comes now your evidence of a date subsequent to both. That simply proves what we charged, that before those elections you did not nor would not admit as true the other charge made by the Democracy, that we, as a party, were opposed to Negro suffrage, but since the election of 1863 you have advocated it, and now do. This is precisely what we charged, and the Oregonian has proved our assertion true, unless it can now show from its columns of a date prior to June, 1863, that it favored Negro suffrage. We hope the Oregonian will produce the proof. We know, Mr. Oregonian whereof we speak.

The Jacksonville N. Y. says that the wife of Kahl, who resides on Applegate, performed a bold feat recently, being nothing less than the seizing on to and mastering by main strength, of a good sized cinnamon bear cub. She came across the animal while out gathering berries, and had a tremendous tussle with it, young bruiser getting in some powerful blows, but Mrs. K. hung on like grim death to a d-funct monster, taking her capture home with her, where it whipped out all the dogs on the place. Beat that who can.

The same paper says that Wednesday was the hottest day of the season. The thermometer stood as high 112° in the shade; and a load of ice, crossing the desert from Butte Creek, is said to have been diminished by the extreme heat from 1,600 pounds on starting to 200 when it got here.

THE Oregonian undertakes to apologize for the action of the Senate in extending the citizenship to all Africa, in its usual style, by saying there is no danger of Africans coming here. But a short time since it made the same argument in reference to Chinese, saying there was no danger of their desiring to become citizens, and that more were returning to China than were coming here. If there is no more danger of Chinese than of Africans coming here why not extend to them the same privileges? But since Williams has become so terribly frightened as to Chinese coming here and taking the country if they are allowed to vote, the Oregonian, as usual, vacillates and goes back on its record, and now thinks that there is no danger from Africans, but sees great peril in the China question. Our last State platform emphatically opposes any further extension of the elective franchise to opposite races. The Oregonian stood squarely on that platform. Now the late naturalization law repudiates the platform, and the Oregonian says, in reference to it:

"Inasmuch as all persons of African descent born in the United States are already citizens, there is no valid objection to allowing the few here who were born in other countries to naturalize."

Who, now, is tuned up to the party? and who, now, is standing by the sentiments of the great body of the party in Oregon, the Dallas Republican or the Oregonian? But we will not leave the Oregonian here to slumber. You do not tell the people whether or not you favor that other portion of the law which lets in native Africans! Stand up to the rack, Mr. Oregonian, there's no stopping now. Tell us; do you endorse the principle or policy? Let us see, now, whether or not you dare to face the music.

Another, little question is agitating the public mind, and about which great men in our own party differ. Sumner, Morton, Trumbull, and other great men say the Chinamen have as good a right to come here and become citizens as Africans. What part will you take in this great question? You claim we have wronged by saying you had no mind of your own. Now, if you come out on this, the great question of the day, will you take the inconsistent course with Williams, or will you take that more sensible course pursued by Sumner and Trumbull? Be considerate, Mr. Oregonian, you are treading upon slippery places, while fiery billows roll beneath your feet; but we demand you shall speak, and on this subject we commend the Oregonian to the speech of Trumbull on the Fourth of July, and one of Nash's resolutions at the Democratic meeting in New York, which we here give.

Resolved, That America has bin the refuge of the oppressed of all nations, and as we are determined that it shall aluz be such, we protest agin any Chinese comin in on any terms, whatever.

Ben Butler Crispins won't save him, neither can our party be saved unless we stop and commence to go back on this heresy, universal suffrage.

The Portland papers are full of laudations respecting distinguished men lately arrived at that port. From their tone a stranger would come to the conclusion that all the extraordinary men of earth, past and present, had arrived in Portland. This is all well enough, but some little matters connected with the transaction engage our attention. Of course, the excursion down the river to meet the ship which had on board those distinguished characters, was all right, and just as it should be, and then the address of welcome, by Dr. Loryca, was a most magnificent production, of which any American may well be proud; it was, in fact, the right thing in the right place. There it was new, but must have been an imposing scene, to see Americans, with heads uncovered, paying their respects to Ben Holladay's count. And who is this that wears this title of nobility hereafter to be worshipped in America? How changed our habits. But one thing explains another. We have now a right to expect a title soon to be conferred on James O'Meara. Confer it, Benjamin, and let us know the worst, and what!

A New Advertising Dodge.—Every time a lady who uses fragrant Saponos opens her mouth she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them; the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breeze of June.

EUREKA! EUREKA!! EUREKA!!! What? Nature's sovereign remedy for healing the sick. Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery combines in harmony more of Nature's most valuable medical properties than was ever before combined in one medicine. For the cure of all coughs, whether acute or lingering, it has proven its superiority over everything else. For a torpid liver, or biliousness, and for constipation of the bowels, it is a never-failing remedy. As a blood purifier for the cure of pimples, blotches, eruptions and all humors it is unequalled.
