

One Name.
BY ABBY HUTCHINSON PATTEN.
Upon the silver shining sand,
A maiden wrote, with loving hand,
One name—no more.

A Parting.
You go—with calm smile upon your face,
Taking away the gladness and grace
Of life, from me.

The Song of the Decanter.
There was an old decanter,
And its mouth was gaping wide—the
Rosy wine had ebbed away,

Facts and Fancies.

A newspaper advertisement calls for a plain cook able to dress a little boy 5 years old.
A man up in Portsmouth, N. H. named his two children Ebenezer and Flora and always spoke of them as "Eb" and "Flo."

The editor who published a newspaper that made nobody mad has been dead a great many years; and he was a fool, anyway.
"Be ware of billious saloons and bowel alleys," was the good old Boston lady's advice to her son who was just starting for sinful New York.

The Lowell Mass. Courier says the most humiliating domestic use a full grown man can be put to is to be sent to the Raker's for "a cent's worth of yeast."
Many families, says the New York Mail, who reside in elegant stone fronts, and appear very wealthy, after marrying off their daughters, move into a smaller dwelling, in a less fashionable locality.

A Mobile paper hails the new departure in this lugubriously joyful strain: it is Northern all over. It is redolent of the victor spirit. It is the harvesting of the war results. It is the readjusting of the Captive's fetters. It is the commencing of thirty-seven stars into one.

"Stop!" said he, "stop right there. We'll settle this matter very shortly. You Mr. Clerk, hold on to the dog. You Mr. Plaintiff, go out into the far corner of the room out there. You Mr. Defendant, come into this corner here. Now both of you whistle, and Mr. Clerk let loose the dog." So said, so done; but the dog sprang between the legs of the by-standers, and "scotted" out of the door.
