

THE HUNT.

BY J. F. COLLINS.

The rat had snuggled to his hole, To slumber o'er his pillage;

Facts and Fancies.

A head wind—a sneeze. A chop for breakfast—Hash.

Doing a heavy business—The iron dealers. To make a hot bed—Set the mattress on fire.

A chandler having had some candles stolen, a person bade him be of good cheer, "for in a short time," said he, "they will all come to light."

The Alexandria Post tells of a case wherein a farmer claims to have lost a favorite dog, which killed himself barking at reaper agents.

Tommy, what does h-a-i-r spell? "Dunno sir." "Why you numbskull, what have you got on your head?" "I dunno, sir, but I think it beca a flea."

A wise gentleman, who knew all about, on retiring from business gave the following sage advice to his son and successor: "Common sense, my son, is valuable in all kinds of business except love making."

"Sonny, does your father take a newspaper?" "Yes sir two of 'em. One of them belongs to Mr. Smith and the other to Mr. Thompson. I hook 'em both off the stoop as reg'lar as can be."

Never attempt to do anything that is not right. Just as sure as you do you will get into trouble. If you suspect that anything is wrong do it not until you are sure your suspicions are groundless.

A lady in Halifax county, Vermont, who year before last, was the mother of three boys at a time, none of them living, was week before last the mother of four boy babies, all hearty and kicking.

The man who shot and killed a boy in his melon patch, when called to account for the deed, said he did it in mercy to the boy, who otherwise might have died a painful death from cholera morbus.

A "citizen" standing near some scales at Rutland, the other day, asked a colored individual, "Can a nigger weigh hogs?" To which the colored man replied: "Put yourself on dem scales and see if he can't."

A Jew was observed looking intently at a prodigious fine ham. "What are you saying to that ham, Mr. Jacobs?" "I was saying to it: Thou almost persuaded me to be a Christian."

A southern editor, evidently a henpecked man, says that "if in our school days the 'rule of three' is proverbially trying, how much harder in after life, do we feel the rule of one."

An old sailor finding a corked bottle floating on the sea opened it, with the following soliloquy: "Rum, I hope; gin, I think; tracts, by jingo!" and then he threw them back into the water.

A man looking into a blacksmith shop observed the smith quite busy and several horses waiting to be shod and very poor and lean. "I say boss, do you make horses here?" "Make horses! No. Why?" "Oh! I noticed several frames set up around you, that is all."

"I don't miss my church as much as you suppose," said a lady to her minister, who had called upon her during her illness; "for I make Betsey sit at the window as soon as the bell begins to chime, and tell me who are going to church and whether they have on anything new."

A poor Irishman offered an old saucan for sale. His children gathered around him and inquired why he parted with it. "Och! me honeys," answered he. "I wouldn't be after parting with it, but for a little money to buy something to put in it."

An intoxicated man saw two cats passing him the other evening, with red and blue lights in the front and rear. His fuddled brain comprehended the colored lights, and he was heard to say to himself, "Must be pretty sick—sickly here; they are running drug stores around on whe—wheels."

A Yankee in Texas, who sat listening to stories of a Louisianaian in regard to the marvelous growth of sugar cane on his plantation, near New Orleans, finally said: "That ain't nothing. I've seen cane in New England more'n a mile long!" "What kind of cane was it?" was the general inquiry. "A hurricane!" answered the triumphant Yankee.

A young fellow, whose better half had just presented him with a pair of bouncing twins, attended Rev. Mr. —'s church, one Sunday evening. During the discourse he looked at our innocent friend, and said in a tone of thrilling eloquence: "Young man you have an important responsibility thrust upon you." The new dad supposing the preacher alluded to his peculiar home event, startled the audience by replying, "Yes I have two of them."
